PREFACE.

A GENERAL revision of Court appointments due to the demise of the Crown, together with the political changes of the last twelve months, and the numerous new creations in the Peerage, are responsible for an unusual number of alterations in the present issue.

The very full account of the last Coronation, which is included in the Introduction, will doubtless prove of especial use and interest in view of the ceremony which has been fixed to take place on the 22nd June next.

The new Editor cannot send the fifteenth annual issue to press without a tribute to the work of his predecessor, Mr Alfred Watts, who at the time of his death had already made some progress in its revision. Mr Watts was responsible for all the previous editions of this work, and was unwearied in maintaining a high level of accuracy and in perfecting and introducing improvements which occurred or were suggested to him. His successor trusts that he may look forward to the welcome aid of correspondents who, by pointing out alterations and minor errors which might otherwise have escaped observation, have in the past materially contributed to the success of the book.

WHITAKER'S PEERAGE.

INTRODUCTION.

THE SOVEREIGN

THE KINGDOM, ITS RULERS, AND THEIR TITLES—An English Sovereign is now Sovereign of the entire United Kingdom, but, as all are aware, this has not always been the case in Scotland the sovereignty was not amalgamated till 1603 and the countries with their Parliaments not till 1707, whilst in Ireland the country was first subdued by Henry the Second and the Parliaments remained distinct up till the close of 1800. For three centuries from the Plantagenet times the English Kings were styled "Lords of Ireland," Henry the Eighth was the first to substitute the title of King, but this remained a separate clause in the royal list of honours until the Union of 1801.

King George the Third at his death left seven sons, of whom the first and third succeeded him as the Fourth George and William. Both of these, however, died without leaving issue, as had the second son, the Duke of York, already before them. The fourth son, the Duke of Kent, had also passed away (only six days before his father), but he left, as his only offspring, the Princess Victoria, who became Queen, taking precedence, by the law of succession, of the fifth son.

The words "Defender of the Faith" were originally bestowed upon King Henry the Eighth by Pope Leo the Tenth, in recognition of his pronouncement against the doctrines of Luther, but upon Henry's turning Protestant the Pope withdrew the title, upon which the imperious monarch got it renewed by his own Parliament. The title of "King of France," which had been borne from the time of the Third Edward, was dropped by George the Third at the Union. Up to the death of William the Fourth our Hanoverian Sovereigns were also Kings of Hanover, but the Salic Law excluded Queen Victoria from that rule, so the fifth son of George the Third, Ernest, Duke of Cumberland, came to occupy that position. He was succeeded by his son as George the Fifth, who, in 1865, relinquished his crown at the fat of Prussia.

REGALIA—The robes and insignia worn by His Majesty on state occasions are those of the Sovereign of the Order of the Garter, but the term "Regalia" is understood to apply only to the crowns, orb, sceptres, swords, and spurs. Of the crowns more or less familiar to us we note the St. Edward's, the Heraldic, Queen Victoria's, and King Edward's. The last of these, however, is practically identical with the second, and to avoid confusion between "King Edward" and "Saint Edward," we shall in the further portions of this Introduction designate the form of crown worn by our late Sovereign by the older term "Heraldic," and for the same reason we shall apply the word "Imperial" to that of his early predecessor. The Heraldic or King Edward's Crown (figured at top of title-page) has its summounting "arches" rising sharply from their bases to an elevated summit, the well known Imperial or St. Edward's Crown has these bulging at first outwards, and then brought back and forming a summit slightly depressed at the centre, whilst in the Victoria Crown they rose almost perpendicularly to the bend, at which they were nearly square. The Heraldic Crown was so styled from its adoption upon royal arms, coins, and so forth, but its contour was followed in the miniature "half-crown" worn on semi-state occasions by Queen Victoria. The term "an imperial crown" is often applied vaguely to any regal crown as distinguished from a coronet, but in this Introduction we shall use it exclusively of St. Edward's Crown, which was so called from a supposed resemblance (though a very remote one, for the original had probably no "arches") to the one worn by Edward the Confessor, and before him by Alfred the Great. It has the minor distinction of having the upper edge of its principal circle entirely level, whilst those of the Victoria and King Edward's Crowns are wrought into festoons, all three concur in possessing upon this rim four crosses-pattée alternating with four fleurs-de-lis—the former ornaments denoting the Sovereign's religious headship, and the latter being a survival of his French dominion. The crown in each case is wholly of gold, but covered over in every part with a blaze of jewels. The four crosses-pattée are frequently called Maltese crosses, but we believe incorrectly, their limbs not being cleft at the extremities. The arches rise from behind the crosses, and above their intersecting point over the crown of the head is a miniature of the "orb" to be presently described—both arches and ball being completely overlaid with jewellery. The entire crown of Queen Victoria contained nearly 2800 diamonds (brilliant, rose, or table), 377 pearls, 17 sapphires, 11 emeralds, and 5 rubies, including ones stated to have belonged to the Black Prince. Its weight was 3lb 3½ oz troy, and we read that a crown worn in mid English history scaled up to something over 7lb, whilst even that of George the Fourth weighed 5½ lb.

Next among the insignia comes the Orb or Mound (the latter word derived from the French monde, so that the idea of a world-wide dominion is implied equally by either name). This is a somewhat ponderous emblem of sovereignty, consisting of a globe 6 inches in diameter surmounted by a cross, which brings up the entire device to a height of 11 inches. The globular portion is of gold, and is engraft with a band set with diamonds, emeralds, rubies, and pearls, on its summit is a large amethyst, from which springs a golden cross bedecked with diamonds, pearls, a sapphire, and an emerald. Next in order we note three sceptres—the Sceptre with the Cross, or Royal Sceptre, 2½ ft in length, borne in the King's right hand, St. Edward's Staff (ending in an orb said to contain wood from the true Cross), over 4½ ft in length, borne before the King in the coronation procession, and the Sceptre with the Dove, or the Vige, 3½ ft in length, placed in the King's left hand—these are of gold, set with jewels, and finished by a "mound," from which the dove, when there is one, appears to spring. The Queen Consort has also her Sceptre with the Cross and two Sceptres with the Dove, one of these being known also as the Ivory Rod. The Sword of State claims the next notice: it is girded on to the Sovereign at his coronation, and this was done even in the case of Queen Anne, but Victoria, who was not then out of her teens, was better satisfied by having it placed in her hands. There are three other swords borne before the Sovereign at this ceremony, but, like St. Edward's Staff, they are not personal insignia: the Sword of Mercy (called, like King Arthur's weapons, by a proper name, "Curtana"), an unpointed weapon, the Sword of Justice to the Spirituality, which is pointed, but rather obtusely, and the Sword of Justice to the Temporality, which is sharp-pointed. Finally come the Spurs, called the Great Golden Spurs (used at the coronation only), which are without rowels, but highly wrought, and are attached to embroidered velvet straps. The Bracelets have been wholly discontinued. The Ring has been ranked among the Regalia, but it was not among those figuring at the coronation of King Edward. Other royal insignia or accessories of that ceremony may be thus described:

The Coronation Chair or King Edward's Chair (distinct from both the Recognition Chair and the Throne) is a venerable oak structure said to have been made in the reign of Edward the First, who had brought from Scotland the sacred inauguration stone, and had it embedded beneath the seat of this chair. This famous stone is of a sandy granular formation consisting, principally of quartz, but with an intermixture of felspar, mica, and hornblende, and measuring in inches 25 x 16 x 10½; it is called the Stone of Destiny, and possesses a mythical origin. It is traced from Scotland to Ireland, thence to Spain (where a king of Scottish race had given it to his son, Simon Brek, whom he sent to Ireland with an army), and before even this it was said to have come from Egypt—in fact it was the identical stone used by Jacob for a pillow. Another story represents it to have been hauled up out of the sea, in the form of an already constructed chair, by the sailors of Simon Brek himself. Sir Archibald Geikie has thought, by improved these fables, for, speaking as a geologist, he pronounces the stone to have been almost certainly quarried in the sandstone district between Argyll and the Forth.

The Ampulla, called also the Golden Eagle, is a golden vessel in the form of that bird, with its wings outstretched its feet resting upon a stand, the head raised to serve off for reception of the oil, some 60x, which is poured out through the beak. There is a legend that this Eagle was presented by the Holy Virgin to St. Thomas à Becket, who gave it in charge to a monk of Pontefract, who again secreted it—with other similar treasures and a written account of the vision—in a church at that place, whence they came into the hands of the Black Prince, who deposited them in the Tower.

The Anointing Oil is now pure olive, formerly it was a marvellous compound designated chrism or crem. It is consecrated previous to the ceremony. In an account of Queen Anne's coronation we read that the Dean of Westminster followed the Archbishop and wiped off the oil with "fine linnen or fine Lombard wool."

The Anointing Spoon is of pure gold with four pearls in the broadest part of the handle and finely chased in the bowl. Its extreme thinness makes it appear to be very ancient. Its length is about 10 in., the bowl 2½ in.

The Colobium Sindonis is a sleeveless garment of fine white linen, worn by Kings only. This is the first of the garments to be put on after the anointing, and it corresponds to the 'jub of a priest.' The Superhumana which follows is short and very wide sleeves, and is made of rich cloth of gold with purple embroidered tunic. A 'girdle' used in the coronation ceremony is also called the Stole, Armil, or Amula. Lastly the Dalmatic Robe is and is called also the Imperial Varile or Pallium, which hangs loosely over the shoulders. It is embroidered with golden eagles, roses, shamrocks, and thistles.

The Ruby Ring which has been styled by some 'the wedding ring of England,' is of pure gold with at the back a large violet ruby marked with a cross of St. George and encircled with 26 diamonds. It is jointed like a bracelet to adapt it for different sizes. There is a legend attached to this ornament also. King David, and the Confessor is related to have been once asked alms of by a certain 'fayre old man,' to whom having nothing else at hand to bestow, he gave this ring. Soon after this two English pilgrims happened to lose their way in the Holy Land, where 'there came to them a fayre ancient man with whyte hair for age.' Having learnt their mishap and who they were, he comforted them goodly, and brought them in the righte waye againe. And when he should depart from them, they besought him what he was and said, 'I am John the Evangelist, and saye ye unto Edward your kynge, that I grette him well by the token that he giff to me this rynge with his own handes, whych rynge ye shalle dalyver to hym "gayns," and when he had dalyvered to them in the rynge, he departed fro them suddenly.'—Golden Legend, p. 157.

The King's Chymney on formerly flured at coronations, riding fully armed into Westminster Hall and challenging any challenger to single combat. The office is stated by Sir W. Dugdale to have been founded by William the Conqueror, who bestowed it upon Baron de Marnion, in whose family it remained till, by the extinction of the direct line, it passed to that of Sir John Dymoke, by one of whose descendants, Frank S. Dymoke, Esq., it was held up till the last coronation, when the decision of the Court of Claims against the application must be regarded as the extinction of the office itself.

ACCESSION OF A NEW SOVEREIGN—From the time of Henry the Eighth it has been a recognised constitutional principle that immediately upon the death of a monarch his heir becomes his already constituted successor. We may now follow up the course of occurrences upon the decease of his late Majesty. This event, which took place at a quarter to twelve on the night of Friday, the 5th of May, 1910, was personally witnessed by his presence to the coronation, as well as others of his family. A meeting of the Privy Council was summoned on the following morning at St. James's Palace, at which orders were given for the proclamation of the new King. Those present were then re-sworn as members of the newly constituted Council. Several public announcements followed in the course of that day, the first signed by the male members of the Royal Family, the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Privy Counsellors in attendance, and the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and other officials of the City of London—making known the event of his late Majesty's decease, and pronouncing the succession to have come to 'the High and Mighty Prince George Frederick Ernest Albert,' whom they accordingly proclaimed as 'our only lawful and rightful hege lord George the Fifth, by the grace of God King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and of the British Dominions beyond the Seas, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India' (this being a shortened form). The next entry in the London Gazette gives the words of the King's first speech to the Privy Council. Then follows a notice of his having taken the oath relating to the security of the Church of Scotland, and to this was prefixed a list of the members of the Council (over a hundred) who were present on the occasion. The Houses of Parliament met in the afternoon of the same day for the purpose of taking the oaths of allegiance and supremacy (up to the Reform Act of 1857 the House was subject to dissolution on a change of Sovereign, but this is no longer, on the contrary, the existing Parliament must meet at once, and even in the event of its having been dissolved it is temporarily resuscitated, and permitted to last for so long as six months if its successor has not before that been elected). The formal public proclamation of the new monarch took place on the morning of Monday, the 9th of May, at nine o'clock, when 'the Officers of Arms habited in their tabards assembled at St. James's Palace and, attended by the sergeants-at-arms, proceeded to the balcony in Fifiery Court, where, after the trumpets had sounded a fanfare, the proclamation was read by Garter Principal King of Arms, in the presence of the Earl Marshal, several of His Majesty's Ministers,' and many other officials, in addition to various personages of distinction. A state procession of officials, with trumpeters, heralds, and an escort of Life Guards, was then formed, and started for the City, reiterating the reading of the announcement at Charing Cross. At Temple Bar, where the Lord Mayor in his state carriage was awaiting them, the High Bailiff of Westminster, who had thus far headed the procession, filed off and returned. A barrier had been erected on the site of the famous but now removed archway, and on arriving there Blue Mantle, Pursuivant of Arms, dismounted and advanced between two trumpeters, preceded by two Life Guards, the trumpeters sounded thrice, and demand was made for admission into the City to proclaim the accession to the throne of King George the Fifth. Being admitted, and the barrier again closed, Blue Mantle was conducted by the City Marshal to the Lord Mayor, to whom he delivered the Order in Council, and who thereupon ordered the barrier to be opened and the procession allowed to pass. At the close-adjoining corner of Chancery Lane the proclamation was read by Norroy King of Arms. Then the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, Recorder, Sheriffs and other City officers fell into line with the pageant, which now moved on to the Royal Exchange, where the final reading was given by Somerset Herald, the guns in St James's Park and the Tower being by signal simultaneously fired.

CORONATION.—This solemn and elaborate ceremony is the formal public ratification of an event which, as was above stated, is already of binding force. The date of its occurrence is thus unvarying, having in its last incidence been originally appointed for the 20th of June, 1902, some seventeen months after the accession, and then, on account of King Edward's illness, further postponed till the 9th of August, in the case of Queen Anne, on the contrary, the interval had been for less than eight weeks. Before the coronation of His late Majesty Westminster Abbey was for a considerable period closed to the public during the construction of an annexe for a vestibule outside the entrance door, and for the process of a gorgeous decoration within under the superintendence of Viscount Esher. The carpets and hangings were of blue and old gold, and the chairs and boxes were equally splendid. Entrance was made by the annexe and the western door and thus along the Nave, and near the centre of the edifice, where the Transepts divide that portion from the Choir, a raised square platform termed the Theatre was erected. In the front of this, facing up the Choir and towards the Altar, were placed the two Thrones, that of the King elevated by five steps and that of the Queen by three. Immediately in front of these, also upon the raised Theatre, there were to have stood the Recognition Chairs, but, to save the King any unnecessary steps, these were transferred to almost close by the Altar, where they were placed sideways on the South side of the area, the lower space in front of the Theatre, where the officiating Prelates were located. Next before the spot where these Chairs were to have stood came the Reading Desk, and then the Coronation or King Edward's Chair in front of which and near to the Altar was the Baldstool at which the Queen was to be crowned. This was consequently in the centre line, the Recognition Chairs were on the South side, and the Prelates on the North, whilst on each side of the Altar was a door opening into King Edward's Chapel where stands St Edward's Altar. The South Transept was assigned to Peers, with the Royal Dukes in chairs before them, and the North Transept to Princesses, similarly preceded by the Princesses, all in their robes, but with their coronets thus far borne in their hands—by pages, however, in the case of those Peers who had to take part in the ceremonies. Nearly all round the Abbey there were raised galleries for the accommodation of spectators, some five thousand in all, the Members of the House of Commons in galleries which stood high above the Peers in the South Transept. Visitors had to appear either in full court dress or in uniform, Members of Parliament, however, having the further option of morning dress, ladies were instructed to court dress without trains.

There were three distinct processions to the Abbey (as there were upon entering it), those respectively of the Royal Relatives, the Prince of Wales, and the King. Of these the first was made up of eight dress carriages, preceded and followed, as were the other two, by escorts of the Royal Horse Guards, trumpeters heralded the first only. The Duke of Connaught had the marshalling of the troops. The procession of the Prince of Wales, his present Majesty, contained but three carriages, these conveying himself and the Princess and the Officials of their Household. In the King's own procession there were first four dress carriages, then a long train on horseback of the leading Officials in various Military and Naval Departments, including Volunteers, Yeomanry, Militia, Regulars, Honorary Indian, Naval and Marine, Marshalmen, Yeomen of the Guard, Equerries Extra and in Ordinary, with Escorts of Colonial and Indian Cavalry besides the Horse Guards, then the gilded state coach conveying their Majesties, with the Duke of Connaught and Lord Bunnings on horseback on their right, and other high officials with Grooms and Equerries in the rear, a further Escort of Horse Guards and and Life Guards closing up the whole.

The Great Officers of State and other participants in the ceremonies arrived at an early hour in time for preparations, and the Regalia were allotted in the Vestibule as follows:

The Queen's Regalia

The Ivory Rod with 2 Doves, to the Earl of Grosford
The sceptre with the Cross, to Lord Harris
Her Majesty's Crown, to the Duke of Devonshire

The King's Regalia

St Edward's Staff to the Earl of Arundel
 The Spurs, to the Earl of Loudoun and Lord Grey de Ruthyn
 The Sceptre with the Cross, to the Duke of Argyll
 The Pointed sword of Temporal Justice or Third sword, to Field-Marshal Viscount Wolseley
 The Pointed sword of Spiritual Justice or Second sword, to Field-Marshal Earl Roberts
 Curlew or Sword of Mercy, to the Duke of Devon
 The sword of State, to the Marquess of Londonderry
 The Sceptre with the Dove, to the Earl of Lucan (Deputy to the Duke of Richmond and Gordon)
 The Orb, to the Duke of Somerset
 St Edward's Crown, to the Duke of Marlborough, as Lord High Steward
 The Patina, to the Bishop of Ely (Dr. Compton)
 The Chalice, to the Bishop of Winchester (Dr. Davidson)
 The Bible, to the Bishop of London (Dr. Creighton)

The Royal personages of the two preliminary processions having taken their seats, that of His Majesty now entered the Abbey. First came the Chaplains in Ordinary, the Prebendaries of the Abbey (in dark crimson copes), and the Dean. Then the Heraldic and Knightly group—the Pursuivants in medieval array, and the Officers of the Orders in mantles of purple or blue velvet, the Ushers of the Scarlet and Green Rodes, two Heralds in cloth of gold, the blue and gold standard of Ireland, the orange and red one of Scotland, the red banner of England, and the flag of the Union (borne by the Duke of Wellington). Next came the Keeper of the Crown Jewels, the four Knights of the Garter appointed to hold the golden canopy at the Anointing (Lords Cardigan, Rosebery, Dehcy, and Spencer), in mantles of dark and white. Then the Lord Chancellor of Ireland, the Archbishop of York, the Lord Chancellor (England), and the Archbishop of Canterbury. Windsor Herald with two Pursuivants came next, ushering in the Queen's Regalia. Her Majesty, who was attired in purple and wearing a golden circlet on her head, walked up to and stood by her seat in the chair by the side of the King's Recognition Chair, with a Bishop and five Gentlemen-at-Arms (in scarlet tunics and with white plumes), standing on each side of her, her train borne by the Mistress of the Robes, supported and followed by eight Nobles or Gentlemen of the Suite and her Ladies of the Bedchamber, Women of the same, and Maids of Honour, four each. The King's own attendants came next, introduced by Richmond Herald and two Pursuivants, with the thirteen bearers of the Regalia. Then the Kings of Arms in gold and emblazoned tabards, Deputy Garter, the Lord Mayor, accompanied by the City Mace, and Black Rod, the Duke of Abercorn and Earl of Enniskillen as High Constables of Ireland and Scotland, the Earls of Crawford and Snewbury as Scottish and Irish High Stewards, and the Duke of Marlborough, as Lord High Steward, bearing upon its cushion St Edward's Crown, whilst the Duke of Somerset on his right carried the Orb, and the Earl of Lucan on his left the Sceptre with the Dove. Twenty Gentlemen-at-Arms succeeded these, and were followed by the Ecclesiastical group, conveying the Bible, Chalice, and Patina. The boys of Westminster School enjoy the special privilege of witnessing coronations and shouting "Vivat" as King or Queen enters.

The Queen, who had been standing by her chair, took her seat on the King's arrival to take the one by her side. He was attired at this stage in his crimson Royal Imperial Mantle, with his Cap of Maintenance of the same hue and his Collar of the Garter. The Nobles who were bearers of his train were in red and white, whilst the Bishops of Durham and Bath and Wells with ten Gentlemen-at-Arms were on each side of him, the other three Bishops, bearers of the Bible, Chalice, and Patina (plates for the bread), stood near the Reading Desk, the Nobles with the Four Swords on his right, and the Lord Chamberlain of the Household and the Groom of the Robes behind him. On their entrance the Anthem "I was glad when they said unto me" was sung, and at its conclusion the Archbishop (Dr. Temple), attended by the Lord Chancellor, the Lord Great Chamberlain, the Lord High Constable, and the Earl Marshal, proceeded to make the Recognition. The form of words was this: "Sirs, I here present unto you King Edward the Seventh, the undoubted King of this realm, wherefore, all you who are come this day to do your homage, are you willing to do the same?" The "people" then reply with repeated acclamations, "God save King Edward the Seventh!" and the trumpets sound. This form is regularly gone through four times over, addressed to each point of the compass, but on account of the King's recent illness the ceremony, which nevertheless occupied some four hours, was here curtailed, as it was further on by omission of the Litany and Sermon. The King, who had been standing, now resumed his seat, whereupon the Archbishop proceeded to the Altar and read the Prayers of the opening portion of the Communion Service. Sir Edward Sullivan's "Introit" was here brought in, and then the Bishop of Ely read the Epistle and the Bishop of Winchester the Gospel.

The Coronation Oath was the next item, the King having, so far back as the 14th of February, 1891, made and signed the Declaration against Popery under its old form in the presence of both Houses of Parliament. He now knelt upon the cushion, kissed the book, and set his sign manual to a transcript of the Oath, the following dialogue taking place:

ARCHB. Will you solemnly promise and swear to govern the people of this United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and the Dominions thereto belonging, according to the Statutes in Parliament agreed on, and the respective laws and customs of the same?

KING. I solemnly promise so to do.

ARCHB. Will you to your power cause law and justice in mercy, to be executed in all your judgments?

KING. I will.

ARCHB. Will you to the utmost of your power maintain the laws of God, the true profession of the Gospel, and the Protestant Reformed Religion established by law? And will you maintain and preserve inviolably the settlement of the Church of England and the doctrine worship discipline, and government thereof as by law established in England? And will you preserve unto the bishops and clergy of England and to the Church therein committed to their charge, all such rights and privileges as by law do or shall appertain to them or any of the same?

KING. All this I promise to do.

Following upon these words His Majesty pronounced, "The things which I have heretofore promised I will perform and keep—so help me God." The Hymn was then sung by the Choir, the Archbishop reading the first line "Veni Creator Spiritus."

The ceremony of Anointing follows, the Archbishop first reading the Prayer commencing "O Lord, Holy Father, who by anointing with oil, &c., and then the Choir singing the Anthem "Zidok the Priest." The King was then divested, by the Lord Great Chamberlain, of his crimson Robe, took off his Cap, and removed to the Coronation Chair, where he was surrounded by the four Knights of the Garter, who held the pall of cloth of gold over him so as to conceal him from the view of the spectators, whereupon the Sub Dean of Westminster (in the absence of the Dean, through infirmity), poured some of the consecrated oil from the Ampulla into the Anointing Spoon and handed it to the Archbishop, who then anointed the King, in the form of a cross, upon the head, the breast, and the palms of both hands, the Prayer after Anointing following, during which the King knelt at his faldstool, and then returned to the Chair, when the Sub-Dean invested him in the Colobium Sindonis and the Supertunica of cloth of gold. The Great Spurs were now brought from the Altar when the Lord Great Chamberlain knelt before the King and touched his heels with them. The Sword of State was next delivered to the Lord Chamberlain of the Household, and by him to the Keeper of the Crown Jewels, who in its place gave to the Peer who had borne it another sword, in a scabbard of purple velvet, which sword the Peer passed to the Archbishop, who, after another prayer, placed it in the King's right hand. The Lord Great Chamberlain then girded it round him, and the King himself ungirded it, when it was placed upon the Altar and then redeemed for a hundred shillings by the Peer, who now drew it from the scabbard (which he passed to the Groom of the Stoles) and carried it naked for the remainder of the ceremonies. The King was now invested by the Sub Dean in the Armilla or Stole and the Imperial Mantle or Dalmatic Robe, handed to him by the Master of the Robes. The Orb was placed temporarily in the King's right hand, the Ruby Ring upon the fourth finger of the same, and a glove handed to him by the Lord of the Manor of Workop (the Duke of Newcastle, who a few years back had purchased that estate from the Duke of Norfolk), an Exhortation or Prayer accompanying every stage.

Now succeeds the Coronation itself. The Sceptre with the Cross is placed in the King's right hand and that with the Dove in his left, and then the Archbishop stands before the Altar with St. Edward's Crown upon it, takes it up and consecrates it, lays it down again, and, attended by other Prelates, proceeds to the side of the King, when the Sub-Dean brings to him the Crown, which he now places upon the King's head, whereupon the "people" shout "God save the King," and the Peers put on their coronets, the Bishops their caps, and the Kings of Arms their crowns, the trumpets sound, the drums are beaten, and the guns of the Tower and the Park are, on signal, fired off. An exhortation is now spoken, and the Choir sing "Be strong and play the Man." The Bible is next handed to the King, and then the Archbishop pronounces the Benedictions, which the Bishops and Peers accompany with frequent "Amen's." The process of Enthronisation succeeds, when the King is lifted into his Throne by the Prelates and Peers around him.

Lastly comes the Homage, which is pronounced kneeling by a leading representative of each of the various ranks in succession—by the Archbishop for the Lords Spiritual, by the Prince of Wales for the Royal Family, and by the senior Peer of each degree—each touching the Crown and kissing the King on his left cheek. The words as uttered by the Peers were in this form "I, Henry, Duke of Norfolk, do become your liege man of life and limb and earthly worship, and faith and truth I will bear unto you to live and die against all manner of folk—so help me God." For the Prince the form is the same, but for the Prelates there was substituted for the latter clause, "And I will do, and truly acknowledge, the service of lands which I claim to hold of you as in right of the Church."

The crowning of the Queen had now to follow. When the Hymn and Anthem were completed, Her Majesty, who had been sitting in the State Chair by the side of the Recognition Chair, now removed to the Altar, where the Archbishop of York, the constituted performer of the office in the case of a Queen Consort, repeated the Prayer of Consecration. She then knelt at her Foldstool, where four Duchesses (Portland, Sutherland, Marlborough, and Montrose) held over her a pall of cloth of gold, whilst the Archbishop anointed her head, put the Queen's Ring on the fourth finger of her right hand, and then the Crown upon her head. The Princesses and Peers hereupon put on their coronets, and the Archbishop put the Sceptre with the Cross in her right hand and the Ivory Rod in her left, upon which she rose and was conducted to her own Throne, bowing reverently to the King as she passed him. They both of them now made the customary Offerings or Oblations of a pall of cloth of gold, the King accompanying his with an ingot of gold of a pound weight and the Queen hers with one of a "mark weight." The remaining and principal portion of the Communion Service then followed, the two Archbishops and the Dean of Westminster first communicating, and then the Archbishop of Canterbury administered the bread and the Dean the wine. After this the Choir sang "Gloria be to God," and the Archbishop pronounced the Blessing.

Their Majesties then passed into King Edward's Chapel, the King by the South door and the Queen by the North. Here the King was disrobed, by the Lord Great Chamberlain, of his Royal Imperial Mantle and invested with his Royal Robe of Purple Velvet, together with his Crown of State (his own Crown, not that of St Edward). They then returned through the West door of the Abbey wearing their Crowns and bearing their Sceptres: the Four Swords were borne before them, and the Princess and Princesses followed wearing their coronets. The three processions, in reverse order, now made their return journey, taking the route of Parliament Street, Whitehall, Cockspur Street, Pall Mall, St James's Street, Piccadilly, and Constitution Hill.

RELATIVES OF THE SOVEREIGN

THE QUEEN-CONSORT—When, as now, a married King occupies the throne, his consort holds a specially privileged position, having her own officers distinct from those of the King and being in a legal point a single rather than a married woman. She has her personal revenue from reserved portions of the rents due to the Crown, as well as from a variety of perquisites. She is crowned on the same occasion with the King himself, or by special ceremony after her marriage if this takes place after his coronation, but in either case the act proceeds as performed at his injunction and not by the will of the people. The ecclesiastic charged with the office of crowning her is the Archbishop of York. The Queen-Consort's Crown, much like that of St Edward, and known as "the Ancient Queen's Crown," is one of the Regalia to be seen at the Tower.

THE QUEEN MOTHER—This royal lady, so styled when the occupant of the Throne is her son or daughter, as at the present time, otherwise the "Queen-Dowager," remains in most respects in the same position as when she was Queen Consort, but it is no longer high treason, as it then was, to conspire her death. No man can marry her without permission from the reigning Sovereign, but she does not forfeit her royalty by marriage with a subject.

THE CONSORT OF A REIGNING QUEEN—The Constitution has never attached any special privileges to this personage, conformably with the maxim that a woman can receive honour from her husband but cannot confer it upon him. We have had only three examples in our history. Philip of Spain, though designated King Consort, and though the statutes were enacted under the joint names of "Philip and Mary," was most rigidly excluded from anything more than a nominal dignity, and in disgust thereat quitted England after a year. The late husband of Queen Victoria, again, after having for years been known simply as "Prince Albert," received the title of "Prince Consort" by individual creation, as he had previously received that of "Royal Highness." Prince George of Denmark, husband of Queen Anne, constitutes the third example.

THE HEIR TO THE THRONE—This Royal personage is styled "the Heir Apparent" if a son or grandson of the Sovereign, but if any other relative, "the Heir Presumptive" (even if a daughter, as it is "presumed" that there may be born a son to displace her). In either case such personage, though still only a subject, is next in the realm to the Sovereign, at whose right hand he sits in assemblies of state, while to compass his death or that of his consort is high treason. For the personal order of succession as it stands at present, see the paragraph so headed.

THE PRINCE OF WALES—The Heir Apparent to the Throne, if the eldest (or eldest surviving) son of the Sovereign, bears regularly this title, but by individual investiture and not by birth. He is by right Duke of Cornwall in the Peerage of England, Duke of Rothesay, Earl of Carrick, Baron of Renfrew, Lord of the Isles, and Prince and Great Steward or Seneschal of Scotland, also Knight of the Garter, whilst at the Sovereign's pleasure he is created by patent Prince of Wales and Earl of Chester, the patent testifying that he is confirmed in the same by the "ensigns of honour, the girding on of a sword, the delivering of a cup and placing it on his head, with a ring on his finger and a golden staff in his hand, according to custom," all at the hands of his royal parents. The Prince is a born member of the House of Lords, and minority in his case does not count, though, by the late King, his seat as Prince was not taken until full age was attained. In the event of the decease of the Heir Apparent a son of his or a brother in the absence of sons would naturally succeed to his titles, but that of Duke of Cornwall cannot be borne by the son of a Prince of Wales who has died whilst such: thus George the Third never held the title. But a brother can succeed thereto, being the eldest surviving son of a King, as was ultimately decided in the cases of Henry the Eighth and Charles the First, and so in the case of His present Majesty, though no possible son of the late Duke of Clarence could have held it. The title, however, has been dormant more than once, and Richard the Second received it by a new creation. On the other hand, Sir H. Nicolas notes six Royal Princes born Dukes of Cornwall who were never created Prince of Wales, namely, Kings Henry and Edward the Sixth, two sons (besides this latter) of Henry the Eighth (who died at birth or in infancy), an infant son of Charles the First, and the "Old Pretender," to whom, however, some do assign the title. This title of Prince of Wales was originally borne by those native rulers of that territory who governed it as sovereigns of the English Crown, and the commonly received though not wholly undisputed story of the transfer of this title to the heirs of the latter is that Edward the First, when expecting the birth of his second son, promised the Welsh to give them a Prince "free from any blame upon his honour and unable to speak a word of English," and that he then sent at once for Queen Eleanor, whose child was duly born at Carnarvon Castle. The title thus practically dates from the year 1284, and was at first, as we have just seen, wholly unconnected with heirship to the throne of England, though in itself intended to be hereditary, the Kings of Wales having in 1301 been formally settled upon the then Prince and his heirs, but upon that Prince ultimately succeeding to the throne as Edward the Second (his elder brother Alfonso having died) the title became merged in the Crown, and from that day it has in every instance been made a distinction of personal investiture. The above series of Scottish titles were conferred in 1469 upon the eldest son of the King of Scotland, and thus they naturally passed with James the First to the Royal House of Great Britain: in fact there was prefixed to them, on the union of the two Crowns, the still loftier title, "Prince of Great Britain and Ireland," though this has never succeeded in supplanting the older one. It must be observed that "Carrick" is one of the Scottish titles, though Irish in sound, and even the title "Earl of Dublin," now merged in the Crown, was when extant a peerage of the United Kingdom and not of Ireland, in fact, the Duke of Cumberland is the only member of the Royal Family who has an Irish peerage.

The insignia of the Prince of Wales comprise in the first place the special feature known as the Prince of Wales's Feathers, consisting of three ostrich plumes, formerly figured as drooping, though in 1878 this form was abandoned for the older one in which the feathers are erect except just at the ends. At the base of these is an antique coronet, pendent from which is a scroll with the motto "Ich dien" (old German for "I serve")—both feathers and motto having been taken by the Black Prince from the head of the King of Bohemia, who was slain in the Battle of Crécy. In 1901 there was added the badge of a red dragon, designed to represent the Principality of Wales. The Prince of Wales has also his distinctive coronet, which resembles St. Edward's Crown except that it possesses but a single arch (surmounted however with the orb) and is of gold without jewellery. His Parliamentary mantle is adorned with five bars of ermine, each bar having a gold lace above it, that worn at a coronation is doubled below the elbow with ermine, spotted diamond-wise. All these insignia, however, appertain to the heir to the throne, whether bearing the title of Prince of Wales or not.

THE PRINCESS ROYAL—This title, which is conferred only on the eldest daughter of a Sovereign, was bestowed on the Princess Louise, Duchess of Fife, by Royal Warrant in 1905.

REMAINDER OF THE ROYAL FAMILY—Daughters other than the Princess Royal enjoy no special precedence, but simply that of near relationship to the Sovereign, neither do younger sons until a dukedom is conferred upon them, when they enter the House of Lords as next in rank after the Prince of Wales. Their seats in that House are to the left of the Throne, but when, upon the death of the Sovereign, they are converted from sons into brothers, they are transferred to the first places in the ordinary ducal bench. This latter position is also occupied by first cousins of a reigning sovereign, but beyond that grade they lose all distinctive precedence and take rank among the other Dukes according to the dates of their patents alone. This is at the present time the case with the 3rd Duke of Cumberland (whose title of "Royal Highness" is due to his father having been King of Hanover, for—as stated in the next sentence—that father, being a King's grandson and not son, was the last who would have borne it in virtue of descent from King George the Third). All sons and daughters, brothers and sisters, paternal uncles and aunts of the Sovereign are of the "Blood Royal" and are designated "Royal Highness," and the latter term is bestowed also upon grandsons and granddaughters if they are the offspring of sons, and yet further (by decree of May 31, 1898) upon great-grandchildren if they are children of an eldest son of "any Prince of Wales," but nephews, nieces, and cousins are Princes and Princesses of "the Blood," and, in common with grandchildren the offspring of daughters, are addressed as "Highness" only, though the husbands of those daughters often receive by warrant the title of "Royal Highness" for themselves, moreover, the title of "Royal Highness" once acquired is not forfeited by a change of Sovereign notwithstanding the fathers being changed from grandsons to nephews. The coronets of Princes of the Blood Royal differ from that of the Prince of Wales in the absence of the surmounting arch with its orb, the place of this latter being supplied, as with coronets generally, by a golden tassel to the cap. Those of Princesses of the Blood Royal vary again from these in the presence of two strawberry-leaves in place of two of the four crosses-pattée, whilst Princes and Princesses of "the Blood" have strawberry-leaves in place of all four of the fleurs-de-lis.

THE PEERAGE AND ITS DEGREES

GENERAL REMARKS—The rules which govern the arrangements of the Peerage are marked by so many complications that even an expert may occasionally be perplexed. All Peers of England are Peers of Parliament, and have been such from the creation of their titles, except in those instances in which Parliament itself is the more modern. In Scotland and Ireland there are Peerages of equally long standing, and upon the successive Unions of these two Kingdoms a certain number of the Peers of each were granted Imperial titles and summoned to the House of Lords, the new titles being sometimes totally different from the old, sometimes identical, and sometimes only variations in rank—as "Baron A" in place of "Earl of A," or Earl instead of Marquess, or vice versa—the old titles subsisting by the side of the new, and remaining, when of superior rank (which they most frequently are, but with numerous exceptions), the respective Peers' ordinary, though not official, designations. The use of the term "Imperial" is convenient as covering three variations entailed by the Acts of Union as above. All Peers of Parliament up to June 20, 1707, are classed as "Peers of England" and rank in precedence before all others of like degrees, from that date down to the close of 1800 all fresh creations either in England or Scotland were called "Peers of Great Britain," and creations from the 1st of January, 1801, onwards, either in Great Britain or Ireland, are known as "Peers of the United Kingdom," save only that the Sovereign retains the power (provided by the Articles of Union) of creating one new Peer of Ireland for every three Irish Peerages of older date than the Union which had become extinct—a function which had been dropped by her late Majesty (the latest Irish creation up till 1898 having been that of Baron Rathdonnell at the close of 1868), but which was revived in the case of Baron Curzon of Kedleston, to allow of his intended return to the House of Commons instead of entering the Lords (see below). One apparent exception to the exclusion of non Imperial Peers from the House is exhibited in the case of the Elected Representative Peers of Scotland and Ireland, who take their seats by their native titles, but do not hold them as hereditary members—those of Ireland as Life Peers, and those of Scotland for only a single Parliament unless re-elected (see further under "Peers Elected"). No Imperial Peer can be elected a member of the House or Commons, neither can a Scottish Peer, but an Irish Peer who has no Imperial title can be so elected anywhere out of Ireland itself (such election, however, would involve his being summoned to any royal function as an M.P. and not a Peer). Viscount Palmerston, so long member for Tiverton, was an eminent example, whilst more recent ones have been afforded by Lords Fermoy, Kensington, Muncaster, Dunsany, and the Earl of Cavan, and we have two at present in Viscount Valentia and Earl Winterton.

The titles of Peers very commonly have a local connection, but below the rank of Dukes we find more or less numerous examples in which the personal surname gives the title. With the local titles, broadly speaking, the connecting preposition "of" is inserted (except in the conventional titles of Viscounts and Barons, where it is never used, though common enough in the formal language of their patents), whilst Marquesses and Earls who are designated by their surnames are as a rule without this word. But to this rule there are exceptions, for we have the "of" inserted, in spite of identity with the family name (itself sometimes that of a place also), in the titles Ashburnham, Cholmondeley, Coventry, Craven, Graham (Marquess, not Earl), Lytton, and Onslow, whilst it is omitted, though the surnames differ, in those of Beauchamp, Brooke, Brownlow, Camden, Castlestewart, Cadogan, Cowley, Ferrers, Manvers, MountCashell, Sondes, Strange, Temple of Stowe, and Winterton. Again, a local title does not always give the place of the Peer's principal residence, as to which see the final paragraph under "Devonshire," and in particular there appears to have been a special fancy in the Irish Peerage for selecting a title apparently English or Scotch, though in reality that of some obscure or imaginary place in Ireland—as Caledon, Conway, Ely, Fife, Kensington, Sheffield, and Teignmouth, all of which titles are (or were originally) of Irish creation. The following is a revised list of all the titles in use of Marquesses and Earls which omit the "of" in modern practice.

MARQUESSSES	Dathurst	Cathcart	Fortescue	Manvers	Spencer
Camden	Beauchamp	Cicely	Gower	MountCashell	Stanhope
Conyngham	Brooke	Compton	Pratham	Nelson	Strange
Douro	Brownlow	Cowley	Craville	Percy	Talbot
Townshend	Dane	De Grey	Grey	Poulett	Temple of S
	Cadogan	De La Warr	Grosvenor	Roberts	Vane
EARLS	Cairns	Ferrers	Howe	Russell	Waldgrave
Amherst	Carrington	Fife (Irish title)	Innes	Sondes	Winterton
Aunceloy	Castlestewart	Fitzwilliam	Jermyn

Descent or succession of nobility commonly follows general rules, but there are variations, for whilst in most cases it is limited to heirs male, in those older Baronies which were conferred by writ of summons instead of patent, and in Scotland in the cases of some higher peerages, it is open also to females (in Ireland there is no female descent except in the two cases of Massereene and La Poer). When this latter succession prevails, it has the peculiar feature (but not in Scotland) of ignoring primogeniture and regarding all the daughters as co-heirs, not one of whom can actually obtain the title until she becomes the sole survivor, or else until the Sovereign relieves the dilemma by selecting one of the ladies as immediate recipient. This delay is what is known as a title "falling into abeyance," for which subject see below in the third paragraph under "Barons." A somewhat similar exercise of the prerogative to that by which an abeyance is terminated is the one noticed under the second paragraph of

"House of Lords," of summoning to that assembly the eldest son of a Peer during his father's lifetime. At a Peer's death his eldest son will succeed as a matter of course, but a more remote relative will be required to prove his claim, and this may involve a delay, sometimes of nine months. The succession to different titles is likely to perplex the novice, who finds himself continually confronted with such statements as "The Earldom passed but the Barony passed to his relative So-and-so." There may be "limitations of remainder" as they are called (though "extensions of remainder" would often seem more correct) according to which a certain title is open to "heirs general" or the nearest relative whatever (female included, unless the term is "heirs male general"), or a "special remainder" may open a succession to any relative who may be named. But the ordinary law is that a title can only pass to a direct descendant of some former bearer of the same. The direct heir comes first in claim, if he, the eldest son, is deceased but leaves sons of his own, the eldest of these sons comes next, even he has occasionally a son to take the third heirship, but if there are none out of all these then the Peer's next surviving son is turned to, and then his sons and so on. But if there is neither son, grandson, nor great grandson, then the eldest brother of the Peer is looked to for the succession, then his son or grandson, then his next brother, and so on as through the former series. If the entire series fails to provide an heir, then the law of inheritance goes back the next step and seeks for paternal uncles and their sons in the same routine (provided that these are actual descendants of an earlier Peer of the line). But now suppose that the late Baron had been created an Earl, whilst his predecessors were Barons only, in that case, in default of either a "special" or "general" remainder, no one but a son or grandson of his own could possibly succeed him in the Earldom, though his Barony might be open as before to any one who was descended from an earlier Baron, as far back even as the first. The law with Baronets is the same (except that these can never be females, though under a few patents the male issue of females can succeed) hence, on the one hand, a Baronetcy which was associated with a lapsed Peerage may be "liberated" and make its reappearance, whilst, on the other hand, if the Peerage chanced to be open to female succession it may be the Baronetcy only which expires.

Peers possess various privileges. If members of the House of Lords they cannot be arrested unless for an indictable offence, and whether belonging to that House or not, they can, in charges of felony or treason, be tried only by that House, all the members of which are then summoned (though not compelled) to attend, when each one delivers his verdict with the form "upon my honour," a decision being arrived at by the voice of the majority. The Lord High Steward (a Law Lord appointed for the occasion) sits as president of the court, and enquires the verdict of each Peer, beginning at the lowest rank and proceeding regularly up to the highest. The trial in July 1901 of Earl Russell for bigamy was held in the Royal Gallery, a corridor leading from the Victoria Tower to the House of Lords. The Lord Chancellor was constituted Lord High Steward, and a long white rod was handed to him at the commencement of the proceedings and broken by himself at their conclusion. Ten Judges of the Law Courts were called in to give advice in the case of legal difficulties, and about two hundred members of the House of Peers sat as both judges and jury, retiring, however, to that House to resolve upon their verdict and sentence. No similar "trial before Peers" had occurred for sixty years, and it is a general impression that this will have been the last. In cases of misdemeanour this elaborate form is not adopted, but the Peer is tried by a jury like other people. Nor does the aforesaid privilege of trial pertain to Scottish or Irish Peers. A Peer is not put upon his oath when sitting in judgment as above, nor yet in a Chancery suit, but if called as a witness, either in the High Court of Parliament or in an ordinary civil or criminal case, the oath is administered to him as to others. He can only be bound to keep the peace in the Court of King's Bench or that of Chancery. Peers are not liable to serve on juries, and are entitled to sit covered in courts of justice. To the Irish barony of Kingsale and to the English one of Forester there is, moreover, attached the singular concession of the right to remain covered in the presence of the Sovereign. To assault a Peer (or even his servant in the case of a Peer of Parliament), or to spread a libel respecting him, is an offence treated with exceptional severity. And lastly, among the privileges of the noble order—availed of by the 8th Lord Stourton, and again by the 4th Earl Ferrers—if a Peer is sentenced to be hanged, he has the consolation of swinging by a silken cord.

The forfeiture of nobility can now only take place through attainder or death, though in the reign of Edward the Fourth a Duke of Bedford was deprived of his rank by an Act of Parliament. If an attainder is pronounced in a case of high treason, it annuls the title for ever (unless restored), but if only for felony, then if the title was granted by letters-patent and not by summons, its effect expires with the death of the Peer deprived. Similarly, if the heir to a peerage should be attainted, then in the case of a writ of summons no descendant of his could ever succeed to the title, though a descendant through a collateral relative might revive the title if the direct heir's issue came to an end, but if the peerage was held by letters patent the attainer would wholly expire on the decease of the one attainted person. Several instances will be met with in the DIRECTORY of an attainer being removed by Act of Parliament, and then, almost for a certainty, there will be a confusion among authorities as to how many Peers of the title there have been.

The arms of all Peers contain "supporters" (the pair of human, animal, or mythical figures on each side of the shield). Those of many Barons are similarly distinguished, not "as Barons," we are told, but the exceptions seem too numerous, and in Scotland rather the rule, even the coronet some Barons imitate very closely.

DUKES—This designation, or its Latin original Dux, is stated by Selden to have been primarily used in this country as one of the appellations of an Earl, but its first employment as the title of a distinct grade was in the eleventh year of Edward the Third, when the Black Prince, who was already Earl of Chester though not as yet Prince of Wales, was created Duke of Cornwall. In English usage it is thus less ancient than either Earl or Baron, though the military term "Dux" was common even among the Anglo-Saxons, whilst William the Conqueror is an early instance of a foreign Duke (indeed, it is remarked that the existence of the title among the Normans accounts for their tardiness in permitting the adoption by their subjects of an honour so distinguished among themselves). The Duke of Lancaster (1351) was the next creation, and others followed, though so sparingly that when in 1572 the Duke of Norfolk was executed for high treason, the title became wholly extinct. It was speedily revived, however, under James the First, by whom the Dukes of Richmond (extinct line) and Buckingham were created in 1623, whilst Charles the Second restored with full precedence the attainted dukedoms of Norfolk and Somerset, still the leading titles in the English Peerage. The Duke of Norfolk (1483) is thus our Premier Duke and Peer, the Duke of Hamilton (1643) is Premier Duke of Scotland, and the Duke of Leinster (1766) of Ireland. The total numbers of Dukes in the three Peerages now are—22 Imperial (besides Princes of the Blood Royal), 7 Scottish (besides the heir to the throne), and 2 Irish. Dukes were anciently created by the ceremony of girding on a sword and throwing a state mantle over the shoulders. They are now, like Peers generally, given their rank by patent. A Duke is styled in official language "Most Noble," but conventionally and more commonly "His Grace," in very formal style he can be spoken of as "The Most High, Potent, and Noble Prince," and by the Sovereign, "Our right trusty and right entirely beloved cousin," adding "and Counsellor" if of the Privy Council. The term "cousin," according to Blackstone, began with Henry the Fourth, who was actually related in some way with every Earl in the Kingdom, from which rank it has passed to all the others, Barons only excepted.

The insignia of a Duke are the coronet and mantle. The coronet, which is worn over a crimson velvet cap, turned up with ermine and finished, like that of the younger Princes, with a gold tassel, is a circle of silver gilt surmounted by eight golden strawberry-leaves. It is chased, but no coronet of a noble must contain jewels. The mantle, as worn on state occasions in Parliament, is made of fine scarlet cloth lined with white tuffeta, with four bars of ermine on each side (narrow strips of black fur passing horizontally round to the divided back of the mantle), each bar adorned above with gold lace. It is tied at the left shoulder with a white ribbon. At coronations this robe gives place to a crimson velvet mantle and surcoat, lined as before and edged with miniver, the mantle doubled from the neck to the elbow, the cape being furled with miniver pure,* and having four rows of dark spots on each shoulder. A Duchess on the same occasion wears a crimson velvet mantle the cape of which is furled with miniver five inches in breadth, and varied ("powdered" is the technical term) by four bars of black ermine train, two yards on the ground. Her coronet is a miniature of the Duke's.

A Duke's eldest son is in courtesy "born in the degree of a Marquess," and therefore follows this order immediately in the table of precedence, and yet in the eye of the law * Ermine takes its name from the ermine tassel, which in winter is pure white with the exception of the black tip of the tail. These tips are used to form the variations in the regular ermine as well as the dark bars. Miniver is strictly the pure white fur of the Siberian miniver squirrel, but the name appears to be applied to ermine when unvaried by the black tail tip.

he is only an esquire in legal phraseology he is accordingly termed "John —, Esq., commonly called the Marquess of —." As a rule, he takes by courtesy his father's second title, and is treated as if he were an actual Marquess, yet his title is often "Earl," once (Manchester) it is "Viscount," and once (Somerset) only "Lord," in which cases he will be termed only "Right Hon." but retain the degree of a Marquess. A Duke's younger sons are born as in the rank of Earls, though never taking the title of such, but simply prefixing the word "Lord" to their Christian names. So a Duke's daughters prefix the word "Lady," but they are "born in the degree of a Marchioness," and rank after these and the wives of Dukes' eldest sons, whilst if a Duke's daughter is the sole heir to his estate she ranks before the eldest son's widow.

MARQUESSSES—The first known use of this title in England was on the elevation, by Richard the Second in 1386, of Robert de Vere, Earl of Oxford, to be Marquess of Dublin, when the King performed the ceremony of girding on a sword and placing a golden coronet on his head. Eleven years later the same monarch made the Earl of Somerset Marquess of Dorset, but no further instance occurs till the reign of Henry the Sixth. The word is said to be derived from Marchio, a title previously applied to both Earls and Barons, especially those who were "Lords Marches" of the frontier counties towards Wales and Scotland. The French form Marquis long obtained preferential use in this country and is by no means gone out even up to this day, but it is strongly objected to by some, and one of the changes adduced against it in Thoms's 'Book of the Court' is its frequent unwarranted adoption as a travelling-title—which it must be confessed is rather a reason for wishing it abolished than for proving it to be wrong. Indeed, in old usage we have met with the form "Marquess" used as the feminine of "Marquis." We have, however, both here and in the ALMANACK, decided to adopt what seems to be the more favoured form with the upper circles. The German title corresponding to it is Markgraf, which in historical works is usually rendered "Margrave." The dignity itself has never been one of large occurrences among our nobility. Three times, indeed, it became wholly extinct (either by forfeiture or by the elevation of its possessor to a dukedom, which happened to the Peer who had previously been the third to be made Marquess of Dorset), but in the year 1532 the title of Marchioness was bestowed upon the daughter of the Earl of Wiltshire, and in 1551 the Peer who had then succeeded to this latter title was raised to be Marquess of Winchester, thus becoming the founder of what to this day remains our premier marquessate. The Marquess of Huntly (1599) is premier in Scotland, and the Marquess of Waterford (1789), if decided by the Roll of Marquesses so styled, is premier in Ireland, but the marquessate of Kildare (1761), merged in the Leinster dukedom, has an earlier claim if we regard the title itself. We have in all 23 Imperial Marquesses, 4 Scotch, and 10 Irish. The style of a Marquess is "Most Honourable," not "Most Noble," though it is stated that in some formal descriptions both he and an Earl may be termed "Most Noble and Pleasant Prince." A Marquess is designated by the Sovereign, "Our right trusty and entirely beloved cousin" (see under "Dukes").

As to insignia, the coronet of a Marquess differs from that of a Duke by substituting silver balls (technically called "pearls"), slightly raised on points (as in title-page), for four of the eight strawberry-leaves, whilst the robes take but three and a half bars of ermine or rows of spots (that is to say, four on the right side and three on the left). The Marchioness's coronet is by latest orders exactly like a Marquess's but much smaller, her robe has three and a half bars of ermine upon the miniver, which is reduced to four inches in width, whilst the train is a yard and three quarters in length.

A Marquess's eldest son is "born in the degree of an Earl," and takes usually that courtesy-title, though occasionally (whilst still ranking as an Earl) only that of Viscount, the younger sons are born in this latter rank, but the daughters in that of Countess. In other respects the corresponding paragraph at the close of "Dukes" applies here also. See, for all degrees, the "Table of Precedency" and "Forms of Addressing."

EARLS—This degree is much older than either of the preceding. Blackstone says that "Earl is a title of nobility so ancient that its origin cannot clearly be traced out. Thus much seems tolerably certain, that among the Saxons they were called Ealdor men, quasi Elder-men, signifying the same as Senior or Senator among the Romans, and also Schiremen, because they had each of them the civil government of a several division or shire. On the irruption of the Danes they changed the name to Eorles, which, according to Camden, signified the same in their language. In Latin they are called Comites from being the King's attendants. After the

Norman conquest they were called Counts or Countesses from the French, but they did not long retain that name themselves, though their shires are from them called counties to this day. This, it is needless to say, does not imply that the same Anglo-Saxon nobles retained their lands and positions under the Normans with simply an altered name, for we know too well how largely they were dispossessed, and that it was the Norman appropriators who were termed "Counts," though they speedily came to revert to the title habitual among the conquered people. From the Conquest to Henry the Third the two ranks of "Earls" and "Barons" may thus be said to have been the only dignities existing in England, that of Earl being accordingly the very highest then in English usage, so that even the Conqueror is frequently spoken of, especially by William of Malmesbury, as "Earl of Normandy." There are stated to have been two or perhaps three orders of Earls, the highest of which exercised nothing less than a regal jurisdiction—even having power to create Barons—within the counties of which they were granted seisin and possession, and which thus became Counties Palatine. A lower order was made Earl of a county but without this seisin of its territory and with only the tentum denarium or third part of the profits accruing from pleas in the county court, or probably in some instances there was simply made over to them a considerable tract of land to hold for the service rendered by the county. They were thus in some degree all county lords, the first to be created apart from a county was Roger Mortimer, made Earl of March in 1328. The rank of Earls has largely increased, till now in England it amounts to some two fifths of the number of the Barons, whilst in Scotland and Ireland the proportion is larger still—in Scotland, in fact, exceeding by three the entire remainder of the Peerage, whilst in Ireland, though not quite so disproportionate, it is but three short of the number of Barons. The present numbers are—Imperial 124 (1 female), Scottish 45, Irish 59. "For many centuries," says Sir Harris Nicolas,† "earldoms have always been conferred by letters-patent or charters. The investiture has long been dispensed with, and the ancient practice of creating a person Earl of some county or town has, from the great increase of dignities in this country, given place to deriving the title from some village or estate, and even from the name of a family. In most instances the title has been limited to the heirs male of the body of the grantee, but remainders are by no means uncommon to the issue of a sister or daughter, or to some other person named in the patent." The premier earldom in the English Peerage is undoubtedly that of Arundel (1155), merged in the dukedom of Norfolk, but as decided by the list of Earls upon the Roll the Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot is premier, the former of his two titles dating from 1442. So in the Scottish Peerage (the title of Mar, though dating from about the year 1100, being given precedence of 1405 only) the premier earldom is that of Sutherland (1230), now merged in an Imperial dukedom, but the premier Earl upon the Roll is Crawford (1398), and again in Ireland we have been directed to the earldom of Kinnik (1315?), merged in the Ormonde marquessate, but Mr. Cokayne, though a believer in its genuineness, can find no proof as to when such title was conferred, and thus the Kildare earldom (Leinster dukedom) must stand first in antiquity (1316), whilst the Earl of Waterford (1445), who is also Earl of Shrewsbury, is premier upon the Roll as he is in England. Earls, Viscounts, and Barons are all designated "Right Honourable." An Earl is designated by the Sovereign, "Our right trusty and right well-beloved cousin" (again see under "Dukes").

Under insignia we note that an Earl's coronet is very distinct from that of any other rank by the fact of its eight silver balls being mounted on golden rays which reach to the top of the cap and have small golden strawberry-leaves alternating between them. His mantle is distinguished from the preceding by having but three bars of ermine. A Countess wears a similar coronet, and her robe for coronations has three bars of ermine, a narrow edging three inches in breadth, and a train a yard and a half on the ground.

An Earl's eldest son is "born in the degree of a Viscount," and regularly takes that courtesy title, but frequently "Lord," though his rank as Viscount is unaffected. Younger sons are esteemed as equal to Barons, but all daughters as Viscountesses, these latter also receive a preference over the former which is one of the anomalies of the Peerage (though only a part of that unfair elevation of daughters over all sons but the eldest which runs through every one of the ranks), they being designated as "Ladies" and "Right Honourables," while the younger sons (and their wives) are only "Honourables." Again see at the conclusion of "Dukes" and under "Peers by Courtesy" and "Addressing."

* The title "Count" is now purely honorary in France.

† As the name of this learned herald is liable to be misspelt we may observe that it's correct and complete form is Nicholas Harris Nicolas (famously "Sir Harry Nicolas, as Hood calls him" "Miss Kilmanlag").

VISCOUNTS—This degree, like that of Marquess, has been but sparingly conferred, though its numbers have been doubled during the past quarter of a century. The word, however, was of very ancient usage in the Latin form Vice-comes, Earl's Deputy, which was thus its original function, and it was of old feudal use in France, but its first employment as designating a rank in the English nobility was in 1440, when Henry the Sixth elevated John, Lord Beaumont, to the title of Viscount Beaumont. Letters patent were then made use of limiting the succession to heirs male of his body, and this form has ever since been the one usually observed in the creation of any Peer. Twice the degree became extinct, but it was finally revived in 1550 by the elevation of Baron Ferrers to be Viscount Hereford, his successor being now the Premier English Viscount. In Ireland this degree is proportionally more numerous than in England, there being now 36 to English 43, the premier being Viscount Gormanston (1478), in Scotland, on the contrary, it numbers but four (now that that of Strathallan is merged in the Feith Earldom), with Viscount Falkland (1620) for premier upon the Roll, and Viscount Fentoun (1806), Earl of Mar and Kellie, as holder of the premier viscounty. At first a viscounty was simply the advancement of a barony, and then its superior accompaniment, but modern Viscounts have usually no second title, though exceptions do crop up, as in the creation in 1900 of Viscount Ridley, who is also Baron Wensleydale. It is stated in 'The Book of the Court' that any English Premier on retiring may claim a viscounty, but in practice it would be far better to say this of every Speaker of the House of Commons, for, of the Premiers of the nineteenth century, we note three who were made Earls, one a Viscount (Sidmouth), and five who died or retired without any advancement, the remaining eleven having held some title of nobility upon entering office. A Viscount is designated by the Sovereign, "Our right trusty and well-beloved cousin." The word "cousin" does not extend to Barons.

The insignia consist of the coronet distinguished correctly by sixteen silver balls (this is the number enjoined at coronations, but fourteen may often be found in books), and of the mantle with two and a half bars of ermine (i.e. three on the right side and two on the left). A Viscountess's coronet is similar to her husband's, and her coronation robe is marked on the same distinctive rule, and with but two and a half inches of bordering and a train of a yard and a quarter.

A Viscount's eldest son and his daughters are born respectively in the rank of a Baron and of Baronesses, younger sons have no definite equivalent, now that the degree of Banneret is obsolete, but they come above the younger sons of Barons. All sons and daughters without distinction bear the title "Honourable."

BARONS—The word "Baron" is supposed to have been derived from the Celtic Bar or Dai, which served the Romans for the original of their Baro (plural Barones). The Anglo-Saxons altered the title to Thegn or "Thanes," and these terms, as well as the later one "Baron," were applied, both for ecclesiastics and laymen, to those men of rank who were about the King. "Baron" came thus, for a time, to be prefixed to the names of saints (e.g. Baron Saint Jacques), and after it "Monsieur" was similarly used down to the fifteenth century.

In France the nobles would even drop the title of "Prince" for that of "Baron," and we read that the family of Montmorency styled themselves "les premiers Barons de la Chrétienté." A Thane under the Anglo-Saxons, if not a countess as above, was required to possess "fully five hides of his own land," together with a church, a "borough gate" where he could dispense justice on the Scripture model, and a "kitchen and bell-house" for the exercise of hospitality and the due summoning of his guests to its participation. The Normans either introduced or restored the term "Baron," and it is under their rule that we come to recognise the first of the three orders of Barons who successively figure in the history of this degree.

These were the Barons by Tenure. Amid conflicting and obscure accounts we gather that at the outset these scarcely constituted an order of nobility, for, though the lowest of them were leading citizens, they were as distinctly subordinated to the Earls of their respective counties as the Knights were or came to be subordinated to themselves. But this low estate was only for a time, and eventually their order had grown to so commanding a position in the kingdom that the term "Barons" was used conventionally for the entire nobility, as we find Sir Simon de Montfort, though Earl of Leicester, speaking of himself in the warrant issued in the name of King Henry the Third as "Simon de Montfort with other Barons," though in the same sentence he speaks of the "Earls and Barons of the realm of England." And even during the period when they had to look up to the Earls as their chiefs, they still held their assigned territorial baronies.

immediately of the King, to whom they had in return to render a stated feudal service. As they grew in importance they were summoned to attend the King's Great Council—the nucleus of our Parliaments, or at least of the House of Lords, where those who were "Barons and Earls" to the King became "Peers" to each other. The dignity of a Baron was now estimated by the number of his Knights' fees, a Knight being attached to each "fee" or division of his lands, and thus with his retainers contributing to swell the troop with which the Baron could accompany the King to war. It was now held that the fact of a baronial tenure of land constituted in itself a right to a writ of summons to the Great Council. But by the time of John many of the Barons had become greatly impoverished in their estates, and this led those others who still retained the whole of their ancestral domains to obtain the passing of an enactment dividing the order into Barones Majores and Barones Minores, or Baronetti, who were scarcely at all higher than Knights, though it was impossible to deprive them absolutely of their higher title. These "Lesser Barons," who were called also "Tenants in Chief," appear to have constituted the original members of the House of Commons, the King having taken to summoning individually the Greater Barons, with the Earls, Archbishops, and Bishops, and leaving these others to be summoned collectively by the Sheriff; hence, says Blackstone, commenced the separation of the two Houses (accomplished 1332). As yet, however, the Lower House was not really established, and the Greater Barons constituted the only regular Legislature for another half century. Baronies by Tenure have now been long a thing of the past, for even in 1669 it was decided that there had been none "for many ages," though there is still an earldom—that of Arundel—which is attached to the ducal house of Norfolk by the feudal tenure of Arundel Castle.

The dignitaries of the degree which supplanted them were the Barons by Writ. We have just observed that the "tenure" was regarded as giving claim to the "writ," but, owing to the prolonged dissatisfaction at the degraded condition of the Lesser Barons, it was enacted in the 49th year of Henry the Third (Dec. 24, 1254) that none should in future come to Parliament except "those Earls and Barons unto whom the King himself vouchsafed to direct his writ of summons." Thus, though issued in the King's name, was really the proclamation above quoted of Simon de Montfort, who at that time was holding the King as his prisoner, and he on the same occasion, from his seat of Kenilworth Castle, ordained what was practically the commencement of the House of Commons (though it was not a separate House till the reign of Edward the Second, and it has been remarked that probably the commoners came less as legislators than as petitioners to plead what the Peers might enact) by directing the election, "along with one hundred of the dignified clergy, of two knights for each shire, two citizens for each city, and two burgesses for each borough." The writs in respect of the nobility appear to have been issued but partially, the King himself summoning the Greater Barons, and leaving the others to the Sheriff. The still existing Baronies then named are those of De Ros, Le Despencer (Falmouth viscounty), Hastings, and Segrave (renewed below), whilst in the line of Camoys (q.v.) the first Baron by writ was originally summoned twelve days earlier than any of these. Following this we read of writs of summons in the 11th year of Edward the First (1283), constituting a small number of Barons, among whom was that of Mowbray, whilst in the 22nd of the same King (1295) those of Hastings, Fauconberg, and Segrave were added, and there was published a decree commanding some sixty persons "to attend the King wherever he might be, to advise on the affairs of his kingdom," though whether this summons constituted its recipients Peers of Parliament is by no means clear. In the course of that same year, however, an unmistakable writ of this character appeared, and Baron Berkeley was one of its recipients. The writ when followed by a single sitting in the Lords sufficed to establish the barony (Blackstone states that some had supposed two sittings to be necessary, but Nicolas shows this to be an error), which then regularly passed to the lineal heirs both male and female. These writs are of the class termed Brevia clausa, from being "closed up" with yellow wax sealed with the Great Seal of England. It is under this arrangement that we are occasionally brought into presence of the phenomenon of abeyance, which, as already stated under "General Remarks," consists in the co-heirship of more than one daughter or daughter's descendant. In the case of females, primogeniture is disregarded in the succession of the English nobility (though not in that of the Royal Family, nor yet with Peers of Scotland, with those of Ireland there is practically no such thing as female succession not even with the one or two Irish baronies by writ, but see under * Mr. Walford quotes Sir Edward Coke to the effect that he had seen a record of the date 1390 (9th year of Henry the First) giving the degrees and seats of the Lords and Commons of that year as constituting one united body.

"Waterford"), and thus when there exists no male heir, but there exist more than one female, both or all of these latter are equally entitled to the heirship, and not even the birth of a grandson (i.e. a son of one of these) will relieve the difficulty so long as the original plurality continues, nor after that original plurality has ceased can either son or daughter succeed if any later plurality remains (even of sons only). Thus the abeyance may be prolonged, and it has thus actually lasted through centuries, but there is a prerogative of the Crown which enables it to cut the knot by forthwith conferring the dignity on any one of the co heirs, or on any other person who is heir to one of the first co heirs, or heir through a brother or sister of some earlier heir—a female of a nearer generation to that of the last Peer taking preference of a male more remote, but males of the same degree being preferred to females. The succession may thus pass to a cousin, uncle, or aunt, though it cannot, unless open to "heirs general," go outside of the descendants of the Baron first created. The process followed by the Sovereign in calling the barony out of abeyance is by letters patent in the case either of a female or of a person already holding a higher rank in the Peerage, in that of a male holding no such higher rank it reverts to a writ of summons. But except in this instance and in that of summoning the eldest son of a Peer in his father's barony during that father's lifetime, there have ceased from 1605 to be any new creations of "Barons by Writ," many of the older ones of course remain on the Roll of the Lords, for, generally speaking, it is only under these titles that the phenomenon of abeyance can occur.

Lastly, then, we come to the Barons by Patent. Though a patent is now the only form by which new baronies or any other peerages originate, it is anything but a modern innovation, for Baron Beauchamp of Kidderminster was thus dignified by Richard the Second in 1387. From this date for a long period the processes of writ and patent were followed indifferently, but the former has now wholly died out, and the newly created Baron receives his honours by means of a document stamped with the Great Seal, clearly prescribing the terms of succession—generally limited to his own heirs male. Up to the thirteenth year of James the First the creation by letters-patent was accompanied by an investiture at the hands of the King, who solemnly arrayed the new Peer in a scarlet robe with a hood furred with miniver, but in that year it was decided that the patent itself was sufficient, not even the "sitting" being required as under baronies by writ. It need hardly be added that the dignity of the one class is in no way inferior to that of the other, and that the Barons in the Peerage take precedence among each other by the date of their creation alone. In all there are now 360 Barons (counting Baronesses) of England, Great Britain, or the United Kingdom, with 65 Irish, but only 26 Scottish. The premier English barony as decided by the Roll is that of De Ros dating from 1264. In Scotland, where the term "Lord" long took partially the place of "Baron," we find the Earl of Crawford holding the lordship of Lindsay of Crawford (1398), whilst Baron Forbes (1445) stands first upon the Roll (Gray and Saltoun, however, are slightly earlier). But the oldest barony of all is in the Irish Peerage, where (disregarding those which were by tenure at first only) that of Kingsale (1172) stands first upon the Roll, though its only certain title is by tenure (Sir John de Courcy, the famous English champion who obtained the notable hat privilege, having received no peerage whatever). A Baron is conventionally called "Lord," and is addressed by the Sovereign as "Our right trusty and well-beloved" (without "cousin").

In the Scottish Peerage we notice the extensive use of the term "Lord" instead of "Baron" in the official titles. On this see further under "Scottish and Irish Peers" (page 24). On Life Baronies see "Life Peers" under "House of Lords."

A Baron's insignia comprise the coronet—which from the time of Charles the Second has been denoted by six silver balls—and the mantle with two bars of black fur. The Baroness wears a similar coronet, and her coronation robe has the cape marked by two bars of ermine, the miniver edging is two inches broad, and the train one yard long.

A Baron's eldest son used once to have the rank of the now extinct order of Knights Bannerets. As it is we can only note that he comes after the younger sons of Earls, but before those of Viscounts, whilst his younger brothers succeed those latter sons though they precede all sons of Life Peers and all Baronets. As with Viscounts, all sons and daughters without distinction take the designation "Honourable."

NOTE ON CORONETS AND ROBES—There may be a convenience in our here appending in immediate sequence the scale of variations observed in the form of the two leading insignia. The crowns of Royalty are richly jewelled, but those of the nobility must be chased only. All alike have the cap of velvet, lined with white silk and turned up with spotted ermine (page 12, note) The following are the distinctions among crowns and coats of arms (those of Peers being small and fixed to the top of the head with pins)

Soberaigns—4 crosses pattée and 4 fleurs de lis, with 2 arches
Princes of Wales—the same with only 1 arch
Princes of "Blood Royal"—the same with no arch
Princesses of ditto—2 crosses pattée, 2 strawberry leaves, and 4 fleurs de lis
Princes and Princesses of "the Blood"—4 crosses pattée and 4 strawberry leaves
Dukes—8 strawberry leaves
Marquesses—4 strawberry leaves and 4 "pearls" (silver balls) slightly mounted
Earls—8 pearls mounted on high golden rays with leaves alternating
Viscounts—16 pearls, not mounted
Barons—6 pearls, not mounted

Of the mantles of the Peerage (as to which see "Insignia" under "Dukes") the differences consist in the number of bars or guards of ermine upon those worn on state occasions in Parliament, and the corresponding number of rows of ermine-spots upon the Coronation robes—Dukes having four rows, Marquesses three and a half (see above in loc.), Earls three, Viscounts two and a half, and Barons two. The coronation mantles of Peersesses vary thus

Duchesses	5 inches narrower border, 4 bars ermine, 2 yards train
Marquesses	4 " " " " 3 " " 1 1/2 " "
Countesses	3 " " " " 2 " " 1 " "
Viscountesses	2 " " " " 1 " " 1/2 " "
Baronesses	2 " " " " 1 " " 1 yard "

ARCHBISHOPS—The general character of this division of our Introduction seems to render it advisable to consider the Spiritual Peers together at the close of our remarks on the Lords Temporal, though in point of precedence Archbishops stand superior even to Dukes. The Archbishop of Canterbury has twenty-seven Bishops in his Province (including his own see) against ten in that of York, he thus takes a position of decided superiority, being placed above the Lord Chancellor, whilst his colleague follows after that high official, their respective appellations being also distinguished as "Primate of All England" and "Primate of England," whilst the one styles himself "By Divine Providence" and the other "By Divine Permission." To the Archbishop of Canterbury, who is thus the highest personage in England after the Royal Family, the duty pertains of crowning a new sovereign, and it has been decreed that "whosoever the Court may be, the King and Queen are his domestic parishioners" (the Bishop of London, however, crowned Henry the First, Edward the Second, Queen Mary, and William the Third), the Bishop of London is his Provincial Dean, the Bishop of Lincoln his Chancellor, and the Bishop of Rochester his Chaplain. Previous to the Reformation this Archbishop held great secular power, especially when he was also Lord Chancellor. The Archbishop of York crowns the Queen-Consort, and is constituted her perpetual chaplain. This Archbishopric is more ancient than that of Canterbury, having been originally founded in 180 A.D. on the first introduction of Christianity into Britain, and then restored by Gregory the Great in 532, the southern See dating from 597 under Augustine. William the Conqueror, however, gave the pre-eminence to Canterbury, owing to a suggestion from Archbishop Lanfranc that if the northern prelates were entrusted with the function of coronation they might bestow the crown upon some Scot or Dane. Both are Metropolitans and are addressed as "Your Grace" and "The Most Reverend." In respect of tenures nites, most "Peersages" state that they do not differ from those of Bishops, but the "Encyclopædia Britannica" asserts that they rise out of ducal coronets, though adding that the decoration is "without authority" see at close of "Bishops."

BISHOPS—There are at present thirty-five diocesan Bishops in the English Church in addition to the two Archbishops, who act as Bishops in their own dioceses. There are also numerous Suffragan and Assistant Bishops, but these, as such, do not form a part of the Peerage. The twenty-seven sees or dioceses in the Province of Canterbury are

Bangor, Bath and Wells, Birmingham, Bristol, Canterbury, Chichester, Ely, Exeter, Gloucester, Hereford, Lichfield, Lincoln, Llandaff, London, Norwich, Oxford, Peterborough, Rochester, St Albans, St Asaph, St David's, Salisbury, Southwark, Southwell, Turo, Winchester, Worcester

The ten of York Province are

Carlisle, Chester, Durham, Liverpool, Manchester, Newcastle, Ripon, Sodor and Man, Wakefield, York.

Of these, Birmingham, St Albans, Southwark, Southwell, and Truro in the former list, and Ripon, Liverpool, Manchester, Newcastle, and Wakefield in the latter, are or recent institution, the original total having been twenty-four, in addition to the see of Sodor and Man, the occupant of which has still an honorary seat in the House of Lords, without a vote or liberty to join in the debates, having his own legislative position in the Manx House of Keys. When an increase upon the original twenty-four was commenced, it was enacted that new appointees should not sit in the House of Lords until vacancies arose among their seniors, the new prelate chosen to fill the vacancy being placed in turn at the foot of the junior list, so that the former number of seats in the House should never be exceeded. * Thus the newly-created sees rank on full equality with the old, and a rotation is maintained among their occupants which, except as to the statement in the next sentence, follows the strict law of seniority alone. But a special feature consists in the continuous seniority of the three Bishops of London, Durham, and Winchester, who are thus independent of the rotation prevailing among the others. In fact, we come to have four classes or series among the thirty-five Bishops:

- 1 London, Durham, and Winchester—invariably Peers of Parliament
- 2 The twenty-one seniors of the remainder—Peers through seniority
- 3 Ten juniors—awaiting seniority for peerage
- 4 The Bishop of Sodor and Man—incapable of a full peerage

The list of Bishops in the House of Lords which is given in WHITTAKER'S ALMANACK has appended to it a second list exhibiting the order of creation of the prelates "Without Present Seats," thus specifying that in which they stand for succession.

Bishops rank in the Peerage between Viscounts and Barons, but the three in the first of our series take precedence of all the rest, in the order—London, Durham, Winchester. The position of the order, next after that of Viscounts, was assigned them in the reign of Henry the Eighth, so that the institution at the coronation of Charles the Second that they should "precede all the lay Lords" may be viewed as a mere temporary solace for their entire exclusion from Parliament under the Commonwealth.

This section of our work obtained, for its issue in the year 1900, the privilege of high ecclesiastical supervision, having been submitted to the eyes of two Bishops of the English Church and of a Theological Professor of King's College, London, since elevated to the bishopric of Gibraltar. One of the three confined himself to remarking on the "diversity between important persons," the second pronounced that "Bishops are Peers of the Realm," and that "all Bishops are Lords Bishops," whilst the third favoured us with the following valuable paper:

"Before the Norman Conquest the Bishops were always summoned to give counsel to the King in the Witan, together with the Ealdormen and other chief persons of the Kingdom. After the Conquest they occupied the same place in the Great Council of the Realm, like the judges and councillors. And although, as the Great Council passed by almost insensible gradations into the House of Lords, these latter gradually ceased to sit, the Bishops continued to do so, so that, as it has been said with strict accuracy, they have formed the most permanent element of the House of Lords. Their position, however, underwent a gradual modification. William the Conqueror had converted their lands into baronies, and thus required from them attendance at court and military service. Consequently, as by degrees all the greater landowners were summoned to Parliament by virtue of their baronial tenure, the Bishops came to be summoned in like manner as barones, still, however, retaining much of their earlier character as sapientes or 'Spiritual Lords of Parliament.' Both characters have been kept in view. As regards the former, we read that so late as 1722 the then Bishop of Durham, Dr Talbot, was disposed to keep up some trace of the past—in respect both of his barony and of his personal status as Earl Palatine of the County of Durham and Prince Bishop—by making his appearance at a review 'in a lay habit of purple, with jack boots and his hat cocked, and a black wig tied behind him like a military officer.' On the other hand, although the Bishops have now ceased to hold their ancient baronies (the lands which formerly belonged to their sees being now vested in the Ecclesiastical Commissioners), they, or rather some of them, still sit in the House of Peers, and hold their rank as Spiritual Lords of Parliament.

"Upon the union of Great Britain and Ireland in 1800 it was provided that the Irish Bishops, who had previously sat in the Irish House of Lords, should be represented in

* But a Bishop who has once attained the seniority will not forfeit his seat in the Lords though he accepts translation to another see that may be vacant. This was exemplified in 1898 on the Bishop of Newcastle becoming Bishop of Winchester and again in 1903 upon another Bishop of Newcastle changing to St Albans, yet again in 1905 on the Bishop of Worcester going to Birmingham and the Bishop of Rochester to Southwark. The see vacated goes in these cases to the foot of the list.

'the House of Lords of the Parliament of the United Kingdom' by four of their number chosen 'by rotation of seasons'. Of the four Archbishops one sat in each session, and of the eighteen Bishops three, in each case according to a defined order. The subsequent union of Bishops and abolition of [two] Archbishops brought about further changes, and on the disestablishment of the Irish Church in 1869, the Irish Bishops were excluded from the House of Lords altogether. In other respects their precedence is now shared by the Roman Catholic hierarchy in Ireland.

"The question whether the Bishops who have seats in Parliament are Peers of the Realm has received diverse answers. There is no doubt whatever that when the term 'Peer' began to be used, the Bishops were recognised as Peers of the Realm in the fullest sense. But in practice they did not exercise certain of the functions of the Peerage. The provisions of the Canon Law did not suffer them to be present when judgments of life and limb were being given, and they usually claimed to be themselves exempt from secular jurisdiction on the same grounds. These were ecclesiastical provisions, and in no sense constitutional disabilities, but in effect, the non-use of the privileges of peerage gradually led to the idea that the Bishops were not Peers of the Realm at all. Signs of this are to be found as early as the reign of Henry the Eighth, and in 1692 the representatives of the Lords in conference with the Commons are said to have declared that 'they looked upon the Bishops to be Lords in Parliament, but not Peers of Parliament'. Nevertheless the rights of peerage which the Bishops once possessed have never been withdrawn from them, for an obiter dictum of this kind has clearly no legal or constitutional force.

"A further question remains as to whether every Bishop is entitled to be addressed as 'Lord Bishop,' or only such as hold diocesan sees. Now, of course, it may well be that, in an age which is accustomed to consider every title as the direct outcome of a grant from the civil power, many Bishops do not care to claim such a title for themselves. But there can be no question that, historically, every Bishop was addressed as 'Lord Bishop,' and this not by virtue of any special grant—still less on account of his place in Parliament—but simply by virtue of his episcopal character, and from the universal respect for his office, which only gradually took shape in a formal title. Of this, as a matter of historical fact, there can be no doubt. Whether, however, it is desirable that, as a matter of etiquette, it should be given to all Bishops at the present day, is another question."

During the year which followed the first publication of the above we made numerous enquiries in reference to this "other question". The answers confirmed to us the fact that there does indeed exist "diversity," but the balance of opinion and practice came out clear beyond mistake. Whilst with some classes of the episcopal order the claim to the term "Lord" is clear, with the others we find a gradual shading down, until the sense of doubt took refuge in a decision by courtesy. As far as the matter of right is concerned, the title "Lord Bishop" belongs not only to English diocesan prelates, but to those also in our own Colonies, since such of these latter as possess patents (a form now disused) have had it therein expressly conveyed, and even as to the English Bishops Suffragan, when a small number of these were created in the 15th century they were addressed precisely as Bishops in general. This, however, is an item rather of custom than of right, but it is from the basis of custom that, except as to the above first two orders, our rule will have after all to be deduced. There was English Bishops before the time of the Conquest, and the term "Dominus Episcopus" was applied to them before they came to be constituted Barons, we must therefore resolutely discard the idea that their secular status was the origin of this style of their address. But now, when the numbers of the Episcopate are so greatly multiplied, we find that this form has passed down, until, in the probably universal usage of High Churchmen and the very extensive usage of others also, all Bishops of the Anglican Church still in office have come to be styled "Lords Bishops." The Suffragans are so styled as above, the Irish Bishops, though they stand precisely on a level with their Roman Catholic brethren, the Scottish Bishops, though actually dissenters from the Established Church of that country, and even the Missionary Bishops, though one of this order has expressly answered our enquiry with, "No, this style is happily not customary." But, weighty and honourable as is this disclaimer, it would be unsafe to regard it as a unanimous utterance, so that it would be wiser to insert the word "Lord" where objection has not been expressed than to run the risk of offending by its omission. One clerical correspondent even informs us that he used repeatedly to address "The Lord Bishop of Haiti" (an American Missionary or "Foreign" Bishop) without being reproved. Again, as to the American Bishops proper, the old form of

"Right Reverend Sir" is beginning to be dropped for the English style. A retired Bishop constitutes a partial exception, the word "Lord" attaching to the see and not to the person, he must be Lord Bishop of somewhere, or he sinks to the style of "The Right Reverend Bishop X," though still personally addressed as "My Lord." The position of an Assistant Bishop is similar, since he must not be described as "Assistant Bishop of A," but "Bishop Assistant to the Bishop of A," still his personal address is "My Lord." The style of a Coadjutor is "The Lord Bishop Coadjutor of A." A Bishop's Commissary is simply the agent of a Colonial or other prelate.

But on the question of the higher Bishops being Peers of the Realm, our former opinion is not shaken but strengthened. Whatever may have been their position in early history, they are clearly now without a single one of the regular accessories of such peerage, their titles not being hereditary and their wives and children having neither title nor precedence. In the recent trial of Earl Russell the incompleteness of their peerage was prominently brought out, and how so high an authority as the late Bishop Stubbs (for he it was) could have laid it down to us that they were Peers of the Realm is something incomprehensible. They sit in the House of Lords by virtue of their office alone, and that by a mechanical rotation peculiar to themselves, usually not gaining their seats till after some years of episcopal service, whilst if infirmity compels them to resign their posts they become (except as to the above courtesy-style of "My Lord") as purely commoners as any of ourselves. If in some past instances we find them called "Peers of the Realm" we must regard the expression as used in the loose sense in which it might be applied to all Peers whatsoever. This statement must cover even the remark attributed to the late Bp. Creighton that he was the holder of a "barony," the Standing Orders of the House of Lords most expressly lay it down that "Bishops are not Peers."

Bishop Suffragan are deputy Bishops, each directing some subdivision of a diocese or yielding an unlocalised assistance therein, they are invariably distinguished by some topographical title, which, however, may itself vary with different individuals, thus "Nottingham," "Penrith," &c., have disappeared, whilst new titles crop up from year to year. The original Act (of Henry the Eighth) designated twenty-six towns from which the titles of appointed Suffragans might be selected, hence such anomalies as "Bedford" and "Marlborough" recently in the diocese of London, but a new Act has widened the scope.* A retired Suffragan whose successor has chosen a new designation has been allowed to retain the titular honours of the old, thus actually remaining a "Lord Bishop." A further amending Act was passed in 1893 obviating the technical difficulty which required a Suffragan to be consecrated "upon appointment," thus rendering it impossible to appoint one who had been consecrated already (see "Dover"). The Suffragan Bishops in the various dioceses as at present constituted are as follows:

Canterbury—Dover, Croydon
 Carlisle—Barrow-in-Furness
 Chichester—Lewes
 Durham—Jarrow
 Exeter—Crediton
 Lincoln—Grantham
 London—Stepney, Islington, Kensington
 Manchester—Burnley, Whalley
 Norwich—Thetford

Oxford—Reading
 Peterborough—Leicester
 Ripon—Richmond, Knaresborough
 St. Albans—Barking, Colchester
 St. David's—Swansea
 Southwark—Woolwich, Kingston-on-Thames
 Southwell—Derby
 Winchester—Southampton, Guildford
 York—Beverley, Hull, Sheffield

There is thus no Suffragan in Bangor, Birmingham, Chester, Ely, Gloucester, Liverpool, Llandaff, Lichfield, Newcastle, Rochester, St. Asaph, Salisbury, Sodor and Man, Truro, Wakefield, or Worcester, whilst in lieu of a Suffragan there is a Bishop Assistant in Bath and Wells, Hereford, and Truro, there are also Assistants in addition to Suffragans in London, Manchester, and Peterborough.

Coadjutor Bishops are officially appointed, often with an expressed right of succession. Missionary Bishops (whose dioceses must be given to make them "Lords Bishops") are Bishops appointed from England but located in countries which are not British Colonies. Assistant Bishops, like Bishops' Commissaries, hold their offices by personal arrangement with their superiors. We have made it a special object to supply particulars as to the Colonial, Missionary, and Retired prelates, such not being readily ascertainable elsewhere.

* There were but two or three Suffragan sees actually constituted out of this set and upon their holders dying out no successors were appointed, so that from 1877 to 1890 the title had no distinctive existence in the Established Protestant Church of England. Still, in this Church as in that of Rome, all Bishops not Metropolitan are sometimes called Suffragans and from this circumstance a former correspondent of "Breakfast" was led to pronounce an essential difference between Suffragan Bishops and Bishop Suffragan. We have followed his harmless caution, but successive Gazette announcements have convinced us that it is of no practical moment.

A Bishop's miter is a high cleft cap, generally of linen stiffened with embroidery and jewels (that of the Bishop of London is of ivory), encircled at the base with a jewelled golden fillet, and having two fringed pendants hanging below from within. That of the Bishop of Durham (as a vestige of the above ancient Count Palatine) takes a ducal coronet in place of the fillet, and has its two divisions edged with beads and finished with two "orbs." If the Archbishops adopt this style of one of their own subordinates, it will surely be generally desired that usage should ere this have supplied them with the "authority" said to be lacking. The crozier, the symbol of a shepherd and terminating in a crook, is still borne upon occasions by diocesan Bishops, a cross (quite distinct from a crozier) is sometimes also carried before an Archbishop.

CLASSIFICATION OF THE PEERAGE—Even neglecting the above degrees of Dukes, Marquesses, Earls, &c., we find our subject so complicated that we have to arrange it under the following ramifications (for particulars see the two following divisions)

I The House of Lords

1 Peers created

- (1) Hereditary Peers
- (2) Life Peers (Law Lords)
- (3) Official Peers (Lords Spiritual)

2 Peers elected

- (1) Ten Life (Irish Representative Peers)
- (2) For one Parliament (Scottish ditto)

II The Peerage outside of the House

1 Peers of Full Rank

- (1) Scottish Peers
  - (2) Irish Peers
- } Many of these sit in the House of Lords either under Imperial titles or as Representatives

2 Peers de jure in Dyn Right

- (1) Imperial Peeresses (male heirs going to House of Lords on succession)
- (2) Scottish Peeresses (Irish are barely possible)

3 Peers' Issue with Courtesy Titles

- (1) Eldest sons of Dukes, Marquesses, and Earls (with Scottish "Masters")
- (2) Eldest sons of Dukes and Marquesses' eldest sons
- (3) Younger sons of Dukes and Marquesses
- (4) Younger sons of Earls with all sons of Viscounts and Barons
- (5) Daughters of Dukes, Marquesses, and Earls
- (6) Daughters of Viscounts and Barons
- (7) Daughters and younger sons of eldest sons of Dukes, Marquesses, and Earls

(4 Scottish Lords of Session)

THE HOUSE OF LORDS

CLASSIFICATION OF DEGREES—The following table, specifying the present composition of the House itself, may conveniently stand thus closely after the one of a wider application above. It is, however, only a minuter form of classification of the nobles included under No I of that table. No manor can take his seat, these are accordingly specified separately. Up to the date of our going to Press, the list stands as under

FORMS OF ADMITTANCE—The House of Lords, the original Great Council and sole Parliament of England, has its early history sketched in the preceding division under the heading of "Barons," where also the more ancient credentials of Tenure and Summons are explained. At the present time, with certain special exceptions, it may be said that all peerages are conferred by letters-patent under the Great Seal of England. It may almost be added that no new peerages are now conferred which do not carry with them a right to sit in the House of Lords, for even if conferred upon a female the dignity is made to pass by preference to the heirs male descended from her, but the power of the Sovereign to create one new Peer of Ireland for every three peerages that have lapsed was shown in 1898 to have been not absolutely abandoned, as had been long and generally supposed. The exceptions to the adoption of letters-patent still occasionally exercised are the following two. The first is described above under "Barons" near the end of the paragraph upon Baronies by Writ, whilst the second consists in the summoning to the Lords, during his father's lifetime, of the heir to one of the higher peerages, who is thus called to proceed immediately to the functions of a legislator under the temporary title of a barony of his father. In this case it must be noted that no new hereditary peerage is thus created, for on the death of the father the son steps into the higher title, and his own separate peerage, as such, passes out of sight. Should the son, however, die first and leave an heir of his own, that heir if of age will take the son's title and hold it on till the death of the elder Peer. It must also not be forgotten that though in general the process of Writ of Summons has gone out of use, there are numbers of the existing baronies which are held through the issue of such writs centuries ago, and that it is in their case and theirs only that we are so frequently confronted with the phenomenon of "abeyance." Again, there is a lower form of the Writ of Summons issued at the commencement of every new Parliament, by which every Peer who is already recognised (excepting the elected Representative Peers of Scotland, whose return is notified to the House by the Lord Clerk Register) receives as it were a circular informing him of the re-assembly of the House.

The ceremonies of the admission of a new Peer may be thus described, and they apply to the creation (not succession) or mere elevation of a member of the House. Garter King of Arms (or "Garter" as he is briefly termed), or it may be some Herald in his place, makes his entry bare-headed and attired in his tabard, holding the patent and writ of summons, the new Peer himself follows, between two nobles of his own degree, all three being robed, the new accession makes his obeisance to the Lord Chancellor, who enjoins that his credentials shall be read, the oaths are next administered, the writ handed over for keeping by the Clerk of the House, and the new Peer conducted to his seat, from which he forthwith rises again and returns less formally to the Lord Chancellor to receive his congratulations. A new Bishop is similarly introduced by two Spiritual Peers, but without the secularising company of a Herald. At every new Parliament the oaths must be taken afresh by each Peer before he can resume his seat.

It was noticed above that no minor can take his seat, neither can any Peer who is bankrupt or insane. But the House has long grieved over its incapacity to exclude a Peer notorious for a disgraceful life.

ARRANGEMENT AND PROCEDURE—Two thrones are provided for the Sovereign and the Queen Consort, with seats to the right and left for the Prince and Princess of Wales. In front of the thrones is the woolsack, the seat of the Lord Chancellor when neither the Sovereign is present nor the House in Committee. These Peers constitute a quorum, and can proceed with the work of legislation so long as they are unanimous, but no division is now of force unless thirty are present. The House gives its votes, when these are formally required, by each member answering "Content" or "Not Content," but the Commons' system of dividing in lobbies is also in vogue. In case of a division, an equality of votes is a negative of the proposition, as there is no casting-vote, but the Lord Chancellor himself participates in the vote of the House. Thus official, it need hardly be added, is by no means the regulator of the proceedings of the House as the Speaker is in the Commons, instead of being elected by the vote of the House he is a member of the Ministry of the day, and he sits in the Sovereign's absence as an ornamental figure-head, whose presence or that of a deputy, is essential to the conduct of proceedings. He can take part both in the debates and the voting.* The Peers, by a Standing Order in 1858, have dropped the right of voting by proxy, but members may enter upon the journals of the House (if within 48 hours) their individual protest against any measure which has received the sanction of the majority. The House is the ultimate Court of Appeal, those Peers who have been Judges being the acting members, though any other Peer could participate if he were so ill-advised as to insist. Thus technically every Peer is a Judge, nevertheless it was decided in 1905 that a Peer might continue a K O and even plead at the bar of the House, though not before a Committee or in a criminal case.

HEREDITARY PEERS—Our two tables have brought out the fact that there are Peers of Parliament who are not hereditary, just as there are hereditary Peers (Scottish and

* The "Lord High Chancellor of England" finds his more exalted functions in his position as the first judicial officer of the Crown and the first lay person in the realm after the Royal Family. For particulars see "Lord High Chancellor," under the "Official Glossary" further on.

Irish) who are not Peers of Parliament. The second table, however, shows that the former class of exceptions are comparatively few. These are noticed in our next two paragraphs, whilst the third exhibits the yet further anomaly of a class of hereditary Peers within the House, but not succeeding by heredity thereto.

LIFE PEERS—This class, once not infrequent, is now restricted to a very small number of Law Lords, at present five. The first recent creation occurred in 1856 in the case of Lord Wensleydale, when the Peers came to the decision that a Life Temporal Peer was not entitled to a seat in their House. An Act was accordingly passed giving power to the Sovereign to elevate two Judges of Appeal into Life Barons of Parliament, and in 1876 the number was enlarged so that it now admits all the Lords of Appeal in Ordinary, whether active or retired (the late Lord Chief Justice was also a Life Peer). There have up to the present been seventeen such appointments (in addition to the preceding, who was afterwards made an hereditary Baron, as was the late Lord Morris), namely, Lords Blackburn, Bowen, Davey, FitzGerald, Gordon, Hannan, Morris, Robertson, Russell of Killowen, and Watson, who are deceased, and Lords Atkinson, Collins (retired), Cullen, Macnaghten, Lindley (retired), Shaw and Robson, who are still living. The wives of these Peers take the title of "Lady" with all the precedence of Baronesses, and the children of Life Peers now rank next after those of hereditary Barons and take the courtesy-title "Honourable."

OFFICIAL PEERS—These are the Lords Spiritual, already described under the preceding division. In point of fact they usually prove to be Life Peers, but only on condition of their retaining their posts till death. Should they resign they not only relinquish their seats, but suffer a change in their designations as stated under "Bishops." A further mark of the distinction between this class and the preceding is seen in the fact of their wives and children being wholly without titles, even the wife of an Archbishop being simply "Mrs."

PEERS ELECTED—We may thus notice conjointly the Scottish* and Irish Representative Peers, both of which are full Peers, of their respective nations, and are elected by the entire adult Peerages of these as specially convened by the Sovereign (but see omissions under Irish Roll). Those of Ireland number 28, and are chosen for life, those of Scotland 16, who are elected or re-elected at every fresh Parliament. Elected Peers do not receive the Writ of Summons on the assembling of a new Parliament.

THE PEERAGE OUTSIDE OF THE HOUSE

SCOTTISH AND IRISH PEERS—The Peerages of Scotland and Ireland, though containing the same degrees from Dukes to Barons, differ broadly from that of England in their not conferring membership of the House of Lords. Nevertheless, considerably the larger half of them do possess seats in that House, for, in addition to the elected representatives of the paragraph above, there are very many who, as fully enumerated upon page 40, possess Imperial hereditary titles in addition to their more ancient and native ones—in fact, this is the case with nearly three-fifths of the Scottish Peers and nearly half of the Irish. The Duke of Hamilton is the Premier Peer of Scotland, and the Duke of Leinster of Ireland (for Premier Earls, Barons, &c., see under those degrees, as per Index).

The Scottish Peerage in its early beginnings comes to us under a shroud of mistiness. The first title with which we meet bears the Gaelic form of Mormaor (usually printed Mormaer), that is Great Steward, and a succession of nobles known by this distinction were the predecessors of the Earls of Mar. As mentioned under that title, the first of these to adopt the style of "Earl" is presented to us in 1114 as one of "the Seven Earls" connected with the foundation charter of the Abbey of Scone. The dignity at this date was distinctly a feudal one, its holders being equivalent to the Barons in England, and in the Scottish Parliament, known as the Communitas, these must have held their seats under the latter designation, as the assembly consisted of only the three ranks of Prelates, Barons, and Burgesses. The title of Earl would thus appear to have been merged under this one wider term, just as we had it above (page 15).

* It may here be remarked upon this form once for all that there is an objection in Scotland to the word "Scotch," the people are "Scots," and their adjective is "Scottish" or "Scottish." Their Education Department has, however, been formally charged by the Southern innovation, and other exceptions may turn up from time to time, such as "Scotch whisky," "Scotch snuff," "Scotch haggis," "Scotch thistle," "Scotch kale," "Scotch mug," and "Scotch terror." Again, the Scotsman Boswell uses the form "Scotch," repeatedly in his "Life of Johnson" so that certainly no one can say that "the decree has been made absolute."

in the case of "Simon de Montfort with other Barons," for the Scottish nobility was now nominally made up of the two ranks, perhaps not precisely so distinguished, of Major and Minor Barons. The latter subsided into what are now termed Lords, whilst the former were eventually summoned to the Legislature. The term "Earl," however, from 1578, more regularly appeared in the charters assigning the lands, already designated earldoms (these lands being subject to division in the case of co heirs, but the title going to the eldest inheritor only). But James the First had, about the year 1430, introduced the English title of "Lord of Parliament," and thus in time the word "Baron," and still later that of "Earl," acquired significations distinct from those of feudalism, and the Earls in this sense soon grew to be the more numerous body (now 45 against 25). So long as the earlier system had remained in force the great Scottish nobles judged of their precedence by virtue of their personal status alone, so that the introduction of English usage, with its rule of precedence by priority of creation, led to serious disputes, and compelled the appointment in 1605 of a Commission known as the Decree of Ranking. We have thus traced the origin of the orders of Barons and Earls. James the Third made his son the first Scottish Marquess, but the title (Ormond) very soon lapsed. Those of Hamilton and Huntly followed, the remainder dating from between the union of the Crowns and that of the Kingdoms. The only Scottish Viscounties hail from the same interval. King Robert the Third in 1398 made his son Duke of Rothesay, and his brother Duke of Albany. In Scotland, as observed on page 6, when female succession is permitted it follows the rules of primogeniture, and there is thus no abeyance.

In the Irish Peerage, as all the creations were made by English monarchs, there are no special features to comment upon having any similarity to the preceding. We note, however, the almost entire absence of female succession, and this in spite of the fact that there are Irish baronies by writ. The term barony is still extensively used for what in England is of the nature of a manor, but this circumstance has not interfered with the employment of the word "Baron" for a title of nobility. Irish Peers (see page 6) have the distinctive privilege of admission by election to the House of Commons.

PEERAGES IN OWN RIGHT—Peerages are occasionally granted immediately to ladies of distinction or the widows of distinguished men, but frequently the instances falling under this heading are the result of regular inheritance in lines which, as we have noted under "Barons," are open to females in default of males. Thus it results that some of the Peeresses now upon the list have male heirs who will succeed them in the ensuing generation and take their seats by strict right in the House of Lords, while, on the other hand, several peerages now occupied by males will fall to the other sex, and thus for a time take leave of that House.

SCOTTISH LORDS OF SESSION—We have now stepped outside the Peerage altogether, for the word "Lord" prefixed to the names of these Judges, or sometimes even to titles different from their names, is strictly an official honour, and may be compared to the term "Lord Justice" in England, for which until lately "Baron" and "Lord Chief Baron" were used. An Order in Council of February 1905 authorised the retention of the title for life, irrespective of retirement, and the style "Lady" is to be enjoyed by the wife, and to continue in widowhood though not after re-marriage, but no distinction is conferred upon the children. "Lord" in this case takes the prefix "Hon" in place of the "Right Hon" of actual Lords. These Lords, thirteen in number, are included in our DIRECTORY, and a list of them will be found in WHITAKER'S ALMANACK. For the style of the two Presidents see the note under "Kingsburgh."

REMARKS ON FOREIGN TITLES HELD IN THE BRITISH DOMINIONS—We are continually meeting in the papers with some title which belongs, or affects to belong, to some foreign nobility, and which in many cases is thoroughly respectable, though we fear that in many others it is decidedly the reverse—in fact, either bought with cash or an imposture altogether. Some of the parties apparently come to this country for a brief flash in English society, or it may be a crash among English tradesmen, while others are settled residents with us, and not to be named in the same breath with these their would-be kindred. Of course we are not attempting to discriminate between individuals. We have given nearly all the names to be found in either 'Burke' or 'Debrett,' together with two or three others whose credentials appeared to be satisfactory. There may be many sound ones besides, but such of these as adopt fixed abodes in this country are fairly sure to take steps for making their presence known.

A good number of those whom we have felt warranted in including are residents in various parts of our own island, but there is one French Peer in Canada (De Longueuil), and about thirty holding Maltese, Spanish, Genoese, or other foreign titles are to be found in our little Colony of Malta. Of these we now supply, we believe, a complete list, including even those who hold uncouth Arabic titles. One of these last, the Baroness Diar il-Bniet, is the premier noble of Malta, and as such was deputed to represent the Peerage of the island at King Edward's coronation. As a rule, a foreign peerage acquires no rank or precedence in the British dominions, but some thirty of those held in Malta are practically "taken over" by our Government, and they take precedence at the British Court next after the Barons of Ireland, in Malta itself, after members of the Council of Government. Thus they do regardless of designation, for in Malta the terms Marquess, Count, and Baron are treated as titles only and marking no distinction in rank, the date of creation alone governing their precedence, and the form of address being "Most Noble" irrespectively to all. The adoption of these titles by our Government was in most cases (not quite all) in compliance with treaty obligations on our acquisition of the island, just as the above title of De Longueuil followed the cession of Canada by France, there are a few, however, which have been provisionally accepted though not authorised by treaty. Besides Spain and Genoa, we find among the sources of these honours Austria, Naples, Sicily, Parma, Savoy, and the Grand Masters of Malta itself, these last supplying the only strictly Maltese peerages. Papal titles, being in the nature of ecclesiastical dignities, have never been recognised by the British Government in Malta. Turning from that island we find perhaps the largest portion of our foreign titles bearing the designation of "the Holy Roman Empire," which the student of history knows to be the style assumed by the Emperors of Germany in days when the leading power of that country was Austria. Several of our own aristocracy can append to their other titles that of Prince or Count of this Holy Roman Empire, and it is an honour that may be depended upon as not having been obtained by dishonourable means. Similarly a writer in the Standard in October 1900 states that a "Spanish countship is as hard to come by as an English earldom," and he adds that "at least 120 British subjects hold foreign titles." We may briefly instance the French dukedoms of Aubigne, Melfort (late), and Châtelleraulx, the Duke of Wellington's Spanish, Portuguese, and Belgian titles, Nelson's Neapolitan dukedom of Bronte, Lord Reay's Dutch title, and the Earl of Clancarty's marquessate of Heusden, again, there are the Austrian baronies of Rothschild, De Worms, and Fremantle, the Earl of Clarendon's Prussian barony of Villiers, the Earl of Dunsdon's Brazilian marquessate of Maranhem, the Portuguese viscounties of Monserrato and De Stern (late) and earldom of Cape St Vincent, the Italian dukedom of Gandolfi, and the Russian barony of Dunsdale. There are several honours hailing from Saxo Coburg, whilst Hanover, Hungary, and Sweden are cited as having contributed one each.

NOMENCLATURE OF PEERS' RELATIVES

USE OF THE TERMS "LORD," "LADY," "HON.," &c.—The title "Lord" is in the first place the regular conventional designation of a Baron, and frequently in the older titles it is even found substituted in the patent or writ, as is especially noticeable in the Scottish Peerage. Secondly, it is used in common parlance as a general term for any nobleman from a Baron to a Marquess. Thirdly, in courtesy-titles it is correctly used in the case of the eldest sons of such of the higher Peers as hold subordinate titles as Barons, and conventionally again when the subordinate title is higher than that of Baron. Fourthly, it is prefixed to a Christian name to designate a younger son of a Duke or Marquess. Fifthly, it is used, by right or by courtesy, to Bishops. Sixthly, it is applied, as a judicial title, to a Scottish Lord of Session. The title "Lady" is borne by wives or sisters in all these cases except the fifth (the sixth is now included), by the daughters of Earls, and by the wives of Barons, and, in practice, by those of Knights also. When the word "Lord," or any other title of honour, is added to a Christian name, as "Alfred, Lord Tennyson," the title "Lord T" implies an actual Peer, and the "Alfred" shows which one of the line is intended (the form "Lord Alfred" could only be the courtesy-title of some younger son as above), and so we have "Edward, Earl of Derby," "Martha, Duchess," &c. In the Roll of the Peers as officially printed each nobleman is designated by the prefixing to his title of the entire series of his Christian names. The leading name suffices for less formal use.

We have found it necessary to expand this last sentence, though previously we had felt almost ashamed to say even this much. But the extent of ignorance with which we have met, even amongst writers whom we should have assumed to be well-informed on such a matter, is such that we are compelled to apologise for greater fulness to those with whom the laws of address have long been as their A B C. In the case of actual Peers, then, the forms "Alfred, Lord Tennyson" and "Edward, Earl of Derby" are precisely equivalent in definition respectively to "1st Baron T" and "4th Earl of D." But though with foreign personages we may hear of "Duke Henry" or "Baron Otto," we can never have this inversion of the Christian name in either of the 14 baronies of our own islands. In fact, even in the use of courtesy-titles it can never occur with any style higher than that of "Lord," so that such forms as "Viscount James Chamberlain" are simply outrageous monstrosities. The only exception comes in when this very curiously applied term "Lord" is the courtesy-title of a younger son of some Duke or Marquess, then the addition of the Christian name is as imperative as in the other cases it is banned. Even here care must be taken not to confuse with these the courtesy title of an eldest son, which, if "Lord," will usually be that of a barony included in his father's titles, whilst those of younger sons invariably terminate in the family surname thus we have Lords Stanley, Balfour, and Medway, who are heirs apparent to the earldoms of Derby, Crawford, and Cranbrook, and many similar titles will be found on glancing down the column of Eldest Sons of Earls in WHITAKER'S ALMANACK. In brief, when "Lord" is followed by a Christian name it exactly corresponds to "Honourable" in the case of other sons. With the word "Lady" the blunder is even more frequent, but as the rules are fully given under the headings that follow, it should be sufficient in this place to point out that the forms "Lady Anne," "Lady Jane," &c., must never be used except for the daughters of Dukes, Marquesses, or Earls (who as stated further on, usually retain these forms after marriage), but wives of Barons and Knights bringing with them no title of their own must be simply "Lady Brown" or "Lady White," though if requiring distinction from other Ladies of the surname they may prefix to "Lady" their own Christian name, or if two of the name chanced to be, the same address the form "Lady (E.) Smith" can be adopted. These, however, are conventional resorts only, "for," says the late Lord Chamberlain (who kindly examined and approved this and two following sections), "if ten Lady Smiths were presented at Court they would each be 'Lady Smith' simply," whilst the bold but frequent device of inventing a compound surname from a Christian name, such as "Lady Douglas Smith," amounts at once to making a "Lord Douglas Smith" (instead of "Sir Douglas") of the husband.

The prefix "Hon" is given personally to most Peers' issues (see "Earls" &c.), and officially to all present or past Males of Honour, all Justices of the High Court during office (not Lords Justices, who are all made Privy Counsellors, nor Lords of Appeal, who hold Life Peerages), to Lords of Session, but not their wives ("Hon Lord" but "Lady" only), the Lord Provost of Glasgow &c. (during office), and to members of Executive or Legislative Councils in the Colonies. The Parliamentary phrase "Hon Member" implies no personal or official title, and it is a mistake to prefix "Hon" to Gentlemen Ushers. "Never with men," says our authority. "Right Hon" is the title of a Privy Counsellor and of any Peer lower than a Marquess, Peersesses take the style of their husbands and in courtesy either "Rt Hon" or the commonly substituted "The" must be prefixed to the title or name of all Peers' issues who are higher than "Hon," a courtesy-Marquess being "Most Hon," and "Rt Hon" being preferable to "The" in the case of other eldest sons bearing titles of their fathers. "Rt Hon" is also given during term of office to all Lord Mayors, the Lord Advocate, and the Lord Provost of Edinburgh (not other cities). "Hon Lady" may denote either a lady pre-

* This use of the title, having its rules to some extent complex, has occasionally been applied too freely. It pertains for life to members of the Canadian Privy Council, or of the Executive Councils of Victoria, Tasmania, or the Cape; all of these memberships bring life appointments, also, during office to Senators of Canada (with the Speakers of both Houses and those of the Provinces) and to members of any Executive or Legislative Council in a Colony possessing responsible government (by the King's permission the title may be retained by ex-members). Locally the "Hon." is assumed by members of these same Councils in Crown Colonies also and by the Speaker of a Legislative Assembly where such second Chamber exists (the Crown Colonies, some 43 in number, comprise all the British dominions beyond and were not included in India, Canada, Australasia, or the Cape). The designation of a Judge in a Colonial Supreme Court is less absolutely defined in some Colonies it is "The Honourable Mr Justice A." in others merely "His Honour Judge B."

† This statement having been challenged, we in 1901, re-applied to the Lord Chamberlain, and were assured in answer that "younger sons and daughters styled Lord or Lady, and eldest sons bearing special courtesy-titles, are entitled to the term Rt Hon. or the substituted article, though this is simply 'a matter of usage as in the courtesy title itself'."

vously "Hon" who has married a "Sir," or else any lady who has married an "Hon Sir," provided that his "Hon" is the mark of a Peer's son and not of a mere office.

The article "The" when prefixed to "Lord" or "Lady" is a conventional substitute for "Rt Hon," and the combination "The Lady" must, therefore, not be applied to the wife of a Baronet or Knight. Nevertheless "The Hon.," "The Hon Lady," and "The Dowager Lady" (though only a Baroness) are correct forms in addressing

PEERS' ISSUE WITH COURTESY-TITLES—We first note that some of these are heirs to peerages, while others are never likely to be such. In the case of eldest sons, those of Dukes, Marquesses, and Earls take as a general rule the second titles of their respective fathers, for nearly all the higher Peers possess at least two, and some of them quite a multiplicity. But no law exists in the matter, though each family has usually its established custom. With some of them two titles are adopted alternately, and in some instances again we find that when an eldest son has been removed by death, then his son if he leaves one—or in default of such his next brother—may either step into his title or take some other if there are three or more (thus, the present Duke of Westminster, during his father's lifetime, continued to be called "Viscount Belgrave," his title during the life of his father, Earl Grosvenor). But we find deviations more or less from any of the titles of the fathers, as when the word "Lord" or "Viscount" is prefixed to the family name (as is almost regularly done when the Peer bears no third title, and is, say, both Earl and Viscount by an identical designation, whilst in the cases of the Devon, Lindsey, and Temple earldoms it is the only possible course, as those peerages have no second title attached), or in such cases as "Viscount Morpeth" instead of "Viscount Howard of Morpeth" for the son of the Earl of Carlisle, or "Lord Inverurie" instead of "Lord Keith of Inverurie" for the late son of the Earl of Kintore again, "Lord Dromore" (instead of "Lord Gillford") for the present Earl of Clanwilliam whilst an heir. Courtesy-titles can be bestowed also upon a grandson who is the eldest son of the heir, but never upon any collateral relative, even a brother (son of a previous Peer), who may be a presumptive heir. Again, in the Scottish Peerage the eldest sons of Viscounts and Barons are usually known by the term "Master of" prefixed to the titles of their fathers—this term having formerly been something more than a term of courtesy, for its holders were entitled to sit and vote in the Scottish Parliament in the absence of their fathers, and on some occasions even in their presence at one time, too, we read that this title was assigned to the next brother of a Lord. The younger sons of Dukes and Marquesses only are distinguished by the word "Lord" before their Christian names, whilst the younger sons of Earls, and all sons of Viscounts and Barons (except as just noticed for the Scottish custom, and see under "Capell, Baron") are known as "The Honourable." Returning to grandsons, we observe that the eldest son of the eldest son of a Duke (Somerset excepted, though here either the Crown or the freedom allowed by conventionality would probably soon meet the difficulty) is sure to hold some title of the grandfather, and so with the grandson of a Marquess if the son's courtesy-title is "Earl," but not if it is "Viscount" (just as with the sons of an actual Viscount), though in the Scottish Peerage the eldest son of even a Baron by Courtesy (an Earl's grandson usually) may be called "Master;" and again the younger sons of an eldest son of a Duke are also designated in accordance with the style of their father if he is called a Marquess they will prefix "Lord" to their names,* but if an Earl they can only be "Honourable." Similarly the younger sons of the eldest son of a Marquess (who will be styled either "Earl," "Viscount," or "Lord") can in any case be only "Honourables," as are all the sons of the eldest sons of Earls (for such eldest sons cannot possibly be styled higher than Viscounts, and the sons of a Viscount are all called Honourables), whilst the offspring of the younger sons of all Peers and of all sons of Viscounts and Barons are Esquires only. One more illustration though the eldest son of a Duke may be "Marquess," his eldest son "Earl," "Viscount," or "Lord," and his next son "Lord John," the younger sons of the Duke can never be higher than "Lord John," and the sons of any "Lord John" only Esquires. What may require to be particularly noticed is the difference between "Lord" of an eldest son and "Lord John" of a younger, the issue of the former being "Honourable," but not those of the latter. The daughters of Dukes, Marquesses, and Earls take the prefix "The Lady" before their Christian names, whilst those of Viscounts and Barons take "Honourable" like the sons. It will be observed, as already commented upon, that in the case of Earls the daughters thus receive technically a higher distinction than the sons, being treated exactly as the daughters of Dukes and Marquesses, whilst the sons obtain only the title assigned to those of Viscounts and Barons, but this partiality is only a part of that general anomaly noticed above, in virtue of which the daughter of every Peer ranks one degree higher than the younger sons—an Earl's daughter is "born in the degree of a Viscountess," whereas these sons are in that of Barons only. The distinction has the effect of rendering the term "Lord" (before a Christian name) very much less frequent than that of "Lady," and in consequence of greater apparent honour, whilst the term "Lady," as we have already remarked, is of extremely wide application—being borne, though without the prefix "The," by even the wife of a Knight Bachelor—and when the daughter of a Baron marries a Baronet or Knight and thus becomes "The Honourable Lady," we see that the word "Honourable," which marks her lineage, is really of the higher value of the two (similarly, if the widow of a Baronet or Knight remarries to even the younger son of a Baron, she gains in precedence by becoming "Hon." instead of "Lady"). Granddaughters, the offspring of the eldest son of a Duke or Marquess, are styled "The Lady" if their father's title is either "Marquess" or "Earl," but if it is only "Viscount," then they, with all offspring of the eldest son of an Earl, are "Honourable" only. No grandchildren of Viscounts or Barons bear any title as such. It must again be noted that a courtesy-title, either of male or female, does not always determine its holder's precedence, for a Duke's son, for instance, will rank as equal with a Marquess though termed only "Lord," and the Duke's eldest son's eldest son will be level with an Earl even if termed only "Honourable." What is said of the wife's rank at the end of the notes upon the next page is in favour to certain married ladies. As to the occasional instances in which the term "Lord" or even a higher title is found applied to an heir of a Viscount or Baron, there are various ready explanations first, and most frequently, the title belongs to some higher rank held by the father under another Peerage (say Scottish or Irish), secondly, the mother of the heir may be a Peeress in her own right, and the heir's title may be obtained upon her side instead of the father's, thirdly, a Scottish Lord of Session may be the heir. The Courtesy-Titles in present use, together with all other subsidiary titles of Peers which we believe to be extant, will be found in their respective alphabetical positions in the following DIRECTORY. Most of the higher Peers hold three or four of these titles, and some of those of Scotland, besides the Marquess of Lansdowne, have as many as ten and upwards, the Duke of Atholl even exceeding twenty.

* It is worth noting that at the present time there is only a single instance in the entire Peerage of a Duke's younger grandson bearing the title of "Lord," that of Lord David Hamilton, son of the Marquess of Hamilton, who was born in 1897: in all other cases possible either the son is an Earl by courtesy in which event his younger sons are only "Honourable", or he is a Marquess with no second son.

ON THE MARRIAGE OF PEERESSES &c—The most essential rules may be thus briefly specified

The wife of a Peer takes the regular feminine of his own title, wholly irrespective of what she was before (but see below as to some rare exceptions made by etiquette), a Baroness being styled "The Right Hon. Lady."

The wife of a Peer's eldest son bearing one of his father's titles will take the feminine form also unless her previous rank was higher than his, but if, though eldest and heir, he is simply "Hon.," she, if herself not higher, becomes "the Hon. Mrs." with no Christian name.

The wife of a Baronet or Knight is styled "Lady" unless she is the daughter of a Peer, when she may be "The Lady Anne," "The Hon. Lady," &c (see next page).

We have now to amplify these rules. A Peeress in her own right retains her title after marriage, and if her husband's rank is the superior she is designated by the two titles jointly, the inferior one last. Her hereditary claim still holds good in spite of any marriage whether higher or lower. No rank held by a woman can confer any title or even precedence upon her husband, but the rank of a Peeress in her own right is inherited by her eldest son (or perhaps daughter), to whomsoever she may have been married. With a Peer's widow who re-marries the case is in appearance the same as to retention of a former superior title, but it is so by etiquette only, for even if she is a Duchess married to a Baron it will be as a Baroness only that she will be summoned to any royal function,* although conventionally she will be known by whichever title is the higher, and if both are the same in degree, that of her husband will naturally be used. But in strictness, whether her second marriage is to a Peer, to a Lord by Courtesy, or to a commoner, she forfeits whatever title she had acquired by her former marriage, and comes to her second husband in precisely the same rank in which she came to her first (which, if she is also a Peer's daughter, may be higher than that derived from her late Peer-husband), though custom usually gratifies her by continuing the recent honour it desired. If the widow of a Lord by Courtesy, the same remarks will apply to her re-marriage to any person but an actual Peer. Similarly any daughter of a Peer, upon marrying an actual Peer, takes the rank of her husband, whether it exalts or lowers her; if she marries a Lord holding the special courtesy-title of an eldest son, she may either take the femine of that title and thus take its rank (governed by that inherited from the father and not by the accident of its own style as Earl, Viscount, &c.), or she may retain her own rank if the higher by prefixing her Christian name to her husband's courtesy title (on the diverse practice see "Ingestre," under "Shrewsbury"), * lastly, if she marries any person other than a Peer or an eldest son holding a distinctive courtesy-title, she then at the least retains her own rank, as denoted by "The Lady Alice" or "The Hon Mrs John," and will rise with him if previously beneath him, so that if lately "Hon" only she may become "The Lady" (a "Lady" marrying a Knight or Baronet continues "The Lady Alice" with only change of surname, whilst an "Hon" becomes "Hon Lady" without Christian name, the "Hon" marking her descent and the "Lady" her married status which in the other case has to be absorbed). But a married lady will never retain such a style as "the Hon Alice," and though, as stated under our "rules," the "John" will be omitted if he is the eldest living son of a living Peer, it must not be omitted, nor "Alice" substituted, on the ground of his being a commoner himself. We give thus on the direct authority of the late Lord Chamberlain. The variations here, however, require scrupulous care, complicated by the anomalous fact that any Peer's daughter ranks one degree higher than either of the same Peer's younger sons (though his heir is her equal), the daughter of a Duke ranks higher than the younger son of a Duke, and thus retains her own Christian name in preference to his, but the daughter of a Marquess ranks only as equal to a Duke's younger son, and consequently may take either his or her own Christian name after "The Lady" (his as a rule). We may put the ordinary practice upon marriage with younger sons more concisely thus:

A Peer's daughter entitled "Lady" will on marriage become "The Lady John" if her husband's father was of higher rank than her own father, but will remain "The Lady Alice" if it was either the same or inferior: there is, however, an option of either style (but regularly the husband's) if higher by only one degree †.

If entitled "Honourable" she will become "The Lady John" on marrying a Peer's son designated "Lord John," but on marrying either another "Honourable" or a commoner she will be "The Hon Mrs John."

It may be added to the above remarks that the widow of either a Lord by Courtesy or a younger son forfeits upon a second marriage any right to a title which had accrued to her by a first (as distinct from one which was her own by birth), though here again custom humours her by continuing the courtesy-title or the prefix "The Lady," but not that of "Honourable" which, however, many ladies still strive desperately to retain. The daughter of a Peer who previously herself bore the title "Honourable" will on marrying a "Sir" become "The Hon Lady B," whilst if her previous title was "Lady" (with a Christian name) she will be entitled "The Lady Alice B,"

* Note that this will not happen in the case of marriage of any Peer's daughter to the eldest son of a Duke, for the wife's rank cannot possibly be higher than his and she will therefore take (with the rank of a Marchioness) the regular femine of his own style whether Marquess, Earl, or even Lord. This rule of precedence by actual rank, regardless of style, may seem at first inconsistent with the latter half of the note that follows, but the difference there denoted is confined to those cases in which a lady can retain her former style for the express purpose of keeping herself superior to her uncertain husband.

† Only a knowledge of individual instances can sometimes decide as to the exercise of this option. Two of the late Lord Salisbury's sons, as well as his brother, are married to Earl's daughters but one of these is known as Lady Florence and the other as Lady Robert and Lady Justice. But the reason for the exception soon becomes evident. Lady Florence's husband is known as the Earl Lord William Cecil, and there is another Lord Wm. Cecil, son of the 6th Marquess of Exeter, the "Per" distinguishing the husband's but two "Lady Williams" would be confusing, so the widow of Lord David Kennedy is known by preference as Lady Mary Kennedy. Sometimes the option is extended to other cases, and a wife gracefully sinks her own rank in order to stand exactly on the level of her husband: thus Lady Maid Dundas, though a Marquess's daughter, took the courtesy title of Viscountess Milton until she became Countess Fitzwilliam. It has been amusingly remarked that if a Lady Frances, the daughter of a Duke, were to marry Lord Francis, the younger son of a Marquess, she would sink two degrees in rank if she called herself Lady Frances instead of Francis.

disregarding the "Sir." A commoner marrying any person of title whatever follows her husband's style exactly, from "Duchess" downward to "The Lady John B." or "The Hon. Mrs. Charles B." (thus the wife of an Earl's younger son is "Hon." only). As to the husband's Christian names, they may not always be needed after "Mrs." if no uncertainty is caused by their omission, and in point of fact they are very frequently omitted even when uncertainty is caused; the wife of an eldest son, however, is correctly treated as the "Hon. Mrs." of the surname, and accordingly the wife of a Scottish "Master" (himself always "Honourable") will be styled "The Hon. Mrs. N.," unless, of course, she was previously "The Lady;" and here we may remark that such forms as "The Mistress of Napier," "of Gray," or "of Sinclair," found occasionally in 'Burke,' are applied not to the wife of a "Master," but to the Peer's eldest daughter in the absence of a son. The late Lord Chamberlain further informed us in 1905, and his successor distinctly confirmed it in 1907, that the rule as to omitting the Christian name from the wife of an eldest son does not apply to husbands lower than the Peerage, so that even the wife of the heir to a baronetcy is strictly "Mrs. John B." (however conventionality may incline). The above rules show that whilst a lady may often rise by marriage, there is only one case in which she can sink by it—that, namely, in which a Peer's daughter marries an actual Peer of a rank two steps lower than her father's. A Duke's daughter is "born in the degree of a Marchioness," and it has been remarked that if a Duke had four daughters the three eldest of whom married an Earl, a Viscount, and a Baron, while the youngest married her father's footman, this last would retain her original rank, whilst the others, though wedded to Peers of the Realm, would all have sunk respectively one, two, and three degrees beneath her.

A morganatic marriage, a German institution not specifically recognised in this country, is one expressly entered into as such on account of the lower rank of the wife; it is lawful wedlock and renders the offspring legitimate, but excludes both them and their mother from any claim to the father's rank or inheritable property, and compels himself on marriage to renounce any claim he might possess to succession.

PEERS' WIDOWS.—The use of the word "Dowager" or a substitute therefor may cause perplexity; moreover, there is undoubtedly an antipathy to this term on the part of those ladies who have a horror of being considered old, so that it is desirable to use it with care, though, as being a form in use in the Court Circular, it ought not to give offence when correctly applied. So long, then, as the new Peer or Baronet is unmarried, the widow of his predecessor is styled precisely as when her husband was living, even if there co-exists a widow of a still earlier Peer; but as soon as (and for so long as) a new possessor of her title appears she must be distinguished in some way. If she is either mother or grandmother of the new Peer or Baronet she then rightly takes the above designation of Dowager; but if she is only collaterally related, or stepmother, or if she is the Peer's or Baronet's mother whilst his grandmother is also living, then she takes the style "Mary, Lady A.," "Catherine, Countess of B.," &c.; the elder lady in the latter case continuing to be "Dowager."

DIVORCÉES.—Our remarks under "Modes of Addressing" (page 104) have been more than once challenged, though our rule is identical with that given by 'Debrett.' But conventionality is apt to override rules, especially in a case of gratifying the favoured sex. Thus, strange as it seems, a lady who has divorced her husband continues very commonly to cling to his name, and if a title was attached it is a thing too precious to part with: indeed, one of the Judges in the Cowley appeal observed that he had never known a lady relinquish a title which she had once acquired (for the credit of the sex there are five or six such instances occurring in this book, but they are in the connection of re-marriage and not of divorce). Any title thus retained is of course, in 'Debrett's' words, "assumptive and worthless, and ought not to be recognised." He adds, "Divorced peeresses, no matter whether they have been divorced by, or have themselves obtained a divorce from, their husbands, do not receive a summons to a Coronation." None the less the empty honour is claimed, so that, as it has been put to us, "any person addressing such a lady without giving her the title must expect his letter to go unanswered;" very likely, but not, to our mind, very creditable to the lady who so acts: divorce with retained style is the annulling of a bargain, but the keeping back of part of the price. In the case of a surname only the matter is not quite the same, for a person can adopt any name which is clear from the least lurking of fraud, so that if Mary Jones marries John Smith and then divorces him, there appears to be nothing absolutely to prevent her calling herself Mrs. Mary Smith (but no longer Mrs. John Smith).

PREFACE.

A GENERAL revision of Court appointments due to the demise of the Crown, together with the political changes of the last twelve months, and the numerous new creations in the Peerage, are responsible for an unusual number of alterations in the present issue.

The very full account of the last Coronation, which is included in the Introduction will doubtless prove of especial use and interest in view of the ceremony which has been fixed to take place on the 22nd June next.

The new Editor cannot send the fifteenth annual issue to press without a tribute to the work of his predecessor, Mr Alfred Watts, who at the time of his death had already made some progress in its revision. Mr Watts was responsible for all the previous editions of this work, and was unwearied in maintaining a high level of accuracy and in perfecting and introducing improvements which occurred or were suggested to him. His successor trusts that he may look forward to the welcome aid of correspondents who, by pointing out alterations and minor errors which might otherwise have escaped observation, have in the past materially contributed to the success of the book.

* * This number is in excess of the total number of Lords Spiritual and Temporal, the discrepancy being caused by the following Lords being twice named in the Roll

Baron Lonsburn as Lord High Chancellor and as Baron Lonsburn
Earl of Clive as Lord Privy Seal and as Earl of Clive
Viscount Morley as Lord President and as Viscount Morley
Earl of Chesterfield as Lord Steward and as Earl of Chesterfield
Earl Spencer as Lord Chamberlain and as Earl Spencer

(Nos 5 and 592)
(Nos 8 and 586)
(Nos 7 and 536)
(Nos 54 and 57)
(Nos 55 and 597)

[This deduction brings the actual number on the Roll to 635 which has, however, to be further reduced by 21 for the Morley's 2 for the vacant Gardner Barony, after which the net number of Peers free to take part in the business of the House will be 614, which accords with that given under "House of Lords," page 22]

SCOTTISH AND IRISH PEERS WITH IMPERIAL TITLES

THE numerous Scottish and Irish Peers noticed above as possessing also Imperial titles are here arranged in a pair of alphabetical lists, the first under their "native" titles, the second under the Imperial. The latter are the ones invariably given in division lists of the House of Lords, but in a majority of instances, though far from always, they are inferior in rank to the former (precisely—75 are inferior, 30 superior, 12 identical in rank, and 14 more in both rank and designation). The higher title, which is naturally the one in conventional use, is printed in italics in each table.

This dignified and to least nominally important body is a council of state appointed and periodically held by the Sovereign to concert matters for the public welfare. Its proceedings, however, are not published, and, except in the rare instances of a general gathering, only the few members specially summoned give their attendance at its meetings, so that, to all but perhaps half a dozen, the membership is for the most part an honourable anecdoté. A Privy Counsellor is chosen at the Sovereign's will, and no patent is necessary: the required oath once taken he becomes a Counsellor for life or for the life of the Sovereign, though subject to removal or resignation. The number, which at the first was only about 12, is now indefinite: at present there are about 200 in the Council of Great Britain and 70 in that of Ireland (but some 20 of these are members of both). On the accession of a new Sovereign it must be reconstituted, or newly sworn in, within six months, and any member who does not present himself for re-swearing within that time forfeits his membership, though not the style of "Rt Hon." The Lord President of the Council is chairman of the British Council, and the Lord Lieutenant of the Irish. The duties of these, or rather of the former, are defined as "to attend the Sovereign's person, to manage the debates in Council, to propose matters from the Sovereign," and report the issue. The Sovereign with its advice can dissolve or prorogue Parliament, and in some urgent cases he can issue proclama-

THE BARONETAGE

GENERAL REMARKS—This degree, as was noticed above, grew out of a lower division of the rank of Barons. We meet with the phrase "Baronet at Baronetti" so early as 1321, whilst in 1340 an hereditary Baronet was made of William de la Pole "Other Baronetries," says Mr Pley in his very informing work, "History of the Baronetage," "were similarly created, but, with the exception of a few cases in Ireland, the dignity had not been regularly hereditary, and long before the reign of James the First it had become practically unknown." The term was often confused with that of "Banneret," so that in the case of Sir Ralph Fane, who was awarded the "dignitas Baronetti" by Edward the Sixth, it is doubtful which of the two honours was really designed, and evident that at most it was not a Baronetcy of the present form. As re-started under James the First in 1611 the degree became, as it is now, a rank intermediate between the Peerage proper and the Knighthood. It is linked with the nobility by virtue of its being hereditary and being conferred by patent alone, the early patents having closely resembled those of Barons, but in other respects it has much the appearance of a specialised order of Knighthood—by its designation "Sir," its non-membership of the House of Lords and non participation in the election of Representatives Peers in Scotland and Ireland, and its ranking in the scale of precedence below the Privy Council, Knights of the Garter, and even the old Knights Bannerets Royal. It has no political privileges attached, and consequently there have been until lately scarcely any means, as there are with Peers, for ascertaining the correct succession, the consequence being that spurious, not to say fraudulent, assumptions of baronetcies have cropped up and persisted year after year. (See the paragraph on "Claimant Baronets," removed to page 103.) In 1905, however, a Commission was appointed to consider what steps should be taken to safeguard the status of holders of Baronetcies, and in consequence of its recommendations the Home Office issued on February 11th, 1910, a warrant from the King dealing with the rules relating to the hereditary Degree of Baronets. In this it is ordained that an official roll of Baronets shall be prepared and kept in the Home Department. That no person whose name is not mentioned on the official roll of Baronets shall be received as a Baronet, or shall be addressed or mentioned by that title in any civil or military Commission, Letters Patent, or other official document. The roll is to be prepared in consultation with one or other of the Kings of Arms, revised and corrected from time to time, and submitted to the Sovereign once each year. Any person whose name does not appear, but who considers that he is entitled, shall be at liberty to petition the Sovereign through the Home Secretary. Provision is made that where the Home Secretary finds difficulty in advising as to the validity of any claims, the matter shall be referred to the Attorney General for England, the Lord Advocate for Scotland, or the Attorney-General for Ireland. It is also appointed that the Home Secretary shall appoint an officer of that Department to be Registrar of the Baronetage, and that every person who succeeds to the title of or is created a Baronet shall pay to the Home Secretary a fee of 5*l*, to be paid into the Exchequer. In addition, every Baronet created since 1783 is required to register his pedigree and to receive a certificate from one of the Colleges of Arms. In the year 1612 five new privileges were granted, of which one was the right for every Baronet thereafter to claim knighthood, and for his eldest son (following feudal custom) to do the same. This last clause was distinctly specified in the terms of all patents issued up to 1827, and King James at the outset made a rule of knighting all heirs apparent, in later days we have had fitful revivals of the custom in 1835, 1865, and in the case of a son of Sir James L. Cotter in 1874, but other applications have proved unsuccessful, it is said, from defects in the patents of baronetcy. The dignity, in all the three Kingdoms, was instituted at first as a means of raising money, though other objects were held out. The recipients, who were to be limited in number, were to be gentlemen (ar nigeri) "of good birth and fortune," possessed of not less than a thousand pound-per annum clear, and in case of war they were to occupy posts of honour near to the royal standard. The rank has been greatly enlarged both as to actual numbers and lowering of the qualifications, whilst the money payment has wholly ceased, though, to preserve the ancient form of warrant, a tally is struck at the Exchequer and handed to the new Baronet by way of receipt. An instance is recorded of the grant of a baronetcy to a female—Dame Mary Bolles, of Osberton, Notts (1635, in the Scottish Baronetage), and it is stated that this is not quite the only one, whilst under "Descent of Peers" we have observed that in some patents the succession is allowed to follow through a female parent, or, we may add, an earlier ancestor. Nearly one sixth of the present number of Baronets enjoy Peerages, viz being Dukes. A Baronet has no coronet or robes, and in the English and Irish divisions no badge whatever beyond the device of "the bloody hand of Ulster" to be charged upon his coat of arms. See upon this point, as also upon the succession of Baronets, two passages on pages 11, 12. Early in the late reign an effort was made by the whole body of Baronets (see Brown's 'Baronetage') to obtain some further distinctive marks, it was ineffectual—it is stated, because "too much was asked," but the recently founded "Standing Council of the Baronetage" (to whom we are under considerable obligations in the revision of this section) includes this among its aims, which seek to vindicate the claims of the Baronetage generally, to "clear it of all resemblance to Knighthood," and to protect the rank against spurious assumptions.* When there are two or more Baronets of the same surname it is customary to distinguish them by appending the name of their seat (or of that of the founder of their line, as they may prefer), and when, as not unfrequently happens, this name is identical with their own (e.g. Campbell, Baronet of Campbell) our northern friends often substitute "Campbell of that ilk." The wives of Baronets are Baronetesses but the word is scarcely ever used, they are styled "Lady" without any Christian name, or "Dame" with the Christian name (an old form still used in formal documents and personally favoured by some), and these titles they retain by etiquette (we now learn that it is not by law) after a second marriage though to a commoner (if daughters of Peers their correct style is given on pages 29-31, where reference is also made to the use of "Dowager.") Designation of a Baronet, Sir A. B., Baronet or Bt.

An effort is being made by a small section of the Baronetage to gain for themselves a more dignified position by requiring a change to the form of address here given.

BARONETS OF ENGLAND, GREAT BRITAIN, AND THE UNITED KINGDOM—We have here precisely the same three historical distinctions as under the Peers. Baronets created from 1611 up to June 20, 1707, rank as "Baronets of England," from that date to 1800 as "Baronets of Great Britain," and after 1800 as "Baronets of the United Kingdom"—the Scottish creations continuing by the side of the first only, and the Irish by the side of first and second. These distinctions, however, do not in themselves (as with the Peers) affect the precedence of a Baronet, which is in any case decided by the date of creation alone. The English degree was instituted by James the First in 1611, ostensibly for the purpose of providing means to effect the settlement of Ulster, then in a state of anarchy. A sufficient sum of money was required from each of the 200 gentlemen to whom the honour was awarded to provide for the maintenance of thirty foot-soldiers at eightpence per day for three years, the total of this was about £1095, and the first year's instalment was to be paid down in advance. King James's successors, moreover, paid no heed to the limitation of numbers, so that by the reign of Charles the Second the 200 had increased to 888. There are now about a hundred short of this latter figure, but about 950 including Scottish and Irish Baronets. The first to receive the title (but on the same day with 4 number now Peers) was Sir Nicholas Bacon, elder brother of Sir Francis (Kt.), afterwards Lord Chancellor Bacon, and a descendant of Sir Nicholas is still the Premier Baronet of England (see a remark under the name in the DIRECTORY). The name of Sir Robert J. Dashwood is cited as Premier Baronet of "Great Britain," and that of Sir Henry M. Vassall as of "the United Kingdom," but of course the junior Baronet in an earlier series takes precedence of the premier in a later one.

* The occasion of the starting of the Council was this. The issue of Life Barons had been given a rank between the issue of other Barons and the Baronets themselves, which proceeding was held by the latter to be a breach of faith. But the only alternative form "Younger Sons of Barons and et alii sons of Life Barons, whilst it would have debased the Baronets from this technical objection without making the least difference to them (from the course adopted) as individuals upon the scale of precedence, would have rendered the issue of Life Barons frequently superior to those of hereditary peers of recent creation. Some difference was intended, but not so great as would be implied by placing the Baronets between them.

BARONETS OF SCOTLAND AND NOVA SCOTIA—As partly remarked already, these Baronets date exclusively from the eighty-two years between the institution of the degree in 1625 and the Union with England in 1707, all later Baronets of Scottish nationality being Baronets either "of Great Britain" or "of the United Kingdom." It must be understood that there is no essential distinction between Baronets of Nova Scotia and those of Scotland, and though the connection with the American Colony ceased even nominally in 1638 (it had in fact become a French possession before that date, and was only receded in 1713, six years after the Union), we find the Nova Scotia arms upon the shields of several Baronets of much later creation, then use having actually been revived by agreement at a meeting of Scottish Baronets in 1775. This degree was planned by James the First in 1621, its avowed object being to assist the settlement of Nova Scotia. This monarch granted a charter of the baronetcy of "New Scotland" to Sir William Alexander, afterwards Earl of Stirling, but owing to the King's death the design was left to be carried out by Charles the First in 1625. Sir Robert Gordon, son of the Earl of Sutherland, was Premier Baronet (disregarding four Scots Peers who hold baronetcies), but his line became extinct in 1909, and the premier distinction rested with Sir Norman Leslie, of Wurdie, until the release of the senior Macdonald baronetcy from the Barony in 1910 (17 v. note under Macdonald, Baron). The number of the degree was not to exceed 150, and to each of these, on payment of a sum of about £2000, was to be assigned a tract of 6000 acres "of good land." No service was required from them, nor was any trouble taken to see that they carried out the scheme of colonisation: the raising of money to the Crown was the one great concern. Sir William Alexander, who first allotted the baronetcies, transferred his rights and possessions to a French Huguenot, Claude St. Estienne, Seigneur de la Tour, who figures in a spirited ballad of the poet Whittier's. The Baronets of Scotland, alone of the three, possess a distinctive Badge, consisting in an enamelled decoration worn from the neck by an orange-tawny ribbon, and containing the arms of Scotland displayed upon a small shield (inescutcheon) borne upon a larger one charged with a St. Andrew's Cross, and surmounted by a crown, the whole within an oval bearing the motto "Fax mentis honestæ gloria" (Glory, the beacon-light of the noble mind). This badge was substituted for the originally intended arms of Nova Scotia, with it King Charles conferred the crest, which is a branch of laurel and a thistle issuing from two conjoined hands, the one armed and the other naked, with the motto, "Munit hæc, altera vincit" (One defends, the other conquers).

BARONETS OF IRELAND—These all necessarily date from prior to the Union in 1800, all later Irish Baronets being of "the United Kingdom." The degree was instituted by James the First in 1619 for a similar purpose with the English Baronetage. The account given under that heading will therefore sufficiently apply. Sir Aigenon Charles Coote is the Premier Baronet of Ireland, his ancestor Sir Charles Coote, Vice-President of the province of Connaught, having received his patent in 1621, the baronetcy merged in the Valentia viscounty, however, dates from the previous year and is apparently the very first that was granted. In Ireland as in England there had very early existed an hereditary rank bearing the style of Baronets, amongst whom was Wellesley, Baronet of Nairnagh, who was ancestor of the Duke of Wellington. These were descendants of certain "lesser Barons" whom Edward the Third had summoned to Parliament for a special object, but who, not continuing to be summoned, had their baronial rank sunk to that of Baronets.

HISTORIC BARONETAGE

* * As under the Peers, † denotes a Baronetcy of Scotland or Nova Scotia, and ‡ an Irish Baronetcy, all others are of England & Britain or of the United Kingdom. Peers who are Baronets are given in parentheses. A surname not that of the original Baronet is followed by the latter in square brackets.

BANNERETS (or KNIGHTS BANNERETS)

THOUGH this grade has long gone out of existence it demands notice from its earlier importance, as in its more honourable form it was superior to that of Baronets. It was ordinarily the reward of merit in the field, and was conferred, under the royal standard, by the King himself or the Prince of Wales when present, or by the General in their absence, in which last case it ranked inferior to the dignity of a Baronet the former class were Knights Bannerets Royal, the latter Knights Bannerets of the Secondary Creation. The Knight elect was introduced into the presence of the King (or General), having a long pennon on which his arms were painted, when His Majesty, "after good words and wishes," commanded the tip of the said pennon to be cut off so that it might be converted into a four-square banner. This explains the name, and an assurance of the importance of the distinction is conveyed by the fact that no other person below the dignity of a Baron was allowed to bear his arms upon a banner. Col John Smith, who recovered the royal standard at Edgeshill, was awarded this honour by Charles the First, but a more recent instance of its bestowal occurred when George the Third, at a naval review at Portsmouth in 1773, made of Admirals Pye and Spry and Captains Knight, Bickerton, and Vernon, the very last recipients of the English dignity of Knight Banneret. It was never hereditary in this country, though it was so in France.

THE KNIGHTAGE, COMPANIONAGE, AND DECORATIONS

GENERAL REMARKS.—In 'The Book of the Court' we find this note "It is a curious circumstance that the English name of this degree is almost the only one which does not imply its equestrian nature, for in the French a Knight is styled 'Chevalier' from cheval, as in German 'Ritter' or rider," "Caballero" is also cited as a Spanish form, and it is added, "From the spurs of gold with which Knights were generally invested they were likewise frequently designated Equites Aurati." The familiar form of the knight in chess will occur to every one in this connection. Knighthood in its earlier days pertained only to men of arms, and it has been noted that Sir William Walworth, who appears to have been the first civilian to receive the honour, actually obtained it for performing the military function of slaying Wat Tyler. Henry the Eighth knighted sergeants-at-law, and James the First knighted anybody who would pay. The ceremonies of investiture were anciently in part courtly and in part devotional. A feast was held, and robes, arms, and spurs were put on, whilst both before and after the conferring of the dignity the Knight had to take part in services in the church, comprising a solemn confession, a vigil, and the sacrament. A sword used then to be girded on, but for this there came to be substituted the modern ceremony of the accolade or tap with that weapon by the Sovereign upon the neck and shoulders of the Knight (King James, famed for his awkwardness, was only prevented by the Duke of Buckingham from thrusting the sword during this process into Sir Kenelm Digby's eye). But at one time nobles and ecclesiastics also was wont to confer the title, and Kings themselves have received it from such, as did Louis the Eleventh from Philip of Burgundy, and Francis the First from Bavard the Knight "sans peur et sans reproche," and so, in our own country, Brand, Abbot of Ebury St Edmunds, knighted Hereward and another, whilst Lurhian, Archbishop of Canterbury, conferred the rank upon William Rufus even during the reign of his brawny father. Generals in the army had indisputably the power at one period, and laws were even enacted under such penalties were sometimes enforced both upon givers and recipients when the latter, as below the status of a gentleman.

The lowest were "Knights" in the broad sense of the term—of Knights Bachelors nor Knights of the Order, nor even Knights Bachelor, until in 1773, or thereabouts, they became merged in that rank as stated further on. The rank of a Knight is exceedingly ancient. Alfred the Great is known to have knighted his nephew Athelstan, and Siger recounts that a Knight was created in this country so early as the year 506 (the reputed era of King Arthur's Knights of the Round Table).

There are with us eight leading Orders of Knighthood—the Garter, the Thistle, St Patrick the Bath, the Star of India, St Michael and St George, the Indian Empire, and the Royal Victorian Order. To these we may add Knights Bachelor though not a constituted Order, also, but with Commissions only, the Order of Merit, the Distinguished Service Order, the Imperial Service Order, and (for Ladies) the Victoria and Albert and the Crown of India, yet again there are the Order of Mercy and the Emeralds of the Hospital of St John of Jerusalem in England, which embrace both sexes, and which, like the Military Knights of Windsor, confer no precedence and are denoted by no initials. Not one of these is hereditary, though Knights of the Garter, even were they only commoners, would take precedence of Baronets. Both this and the Orders of the Thistle and St Patrick have come to be restricted to nobles, though not quite exclusively, notable exceptions being the bestowal of the Garter upon Sir Edward Montagu (afterwards Earl of Sandwich), Sir Robert Walpole, and William Herbert (who became Earl of Pembroke), and of the Thistle (likewise prematurely) upon the present Dukes of Argyll and Buccleuch, as also upon the late Sir William Stirling Maxwell, whilst we are told that the Garter was offered upon his retirement to Mr Gladstone. The title "Sir" is formally prefixed to the names, when given in full, of all Peers who are also entitled Knights or Baronets. Whoever in the Knighthood the husband is styled "Sir" the wife, in conventional usage, has the title "Lady" or "Dame" as in the case of a Baroness. But in both cases the honour is one of courtesy and not of right, as we are shown by an amusing story in 'The Book of the Court.' The Lady of a certain City Knight was once presented to the old Princess Annsa, who was very deaf. The Princess, not aware that she was merely a Knight's lady, was about to salute her as if the daughter of a Peer to the great honor of the Gentleman Usher in Waiting, who, shocked at such a violation of etiquette, exclaimed, loud enough to be heard by all present, "Don't kiss her, Your Royal Highness; she is not a real Lady!"

All of the above Orders have been customarily conferred by the accolade (see above), but the higher ones have been more and more often made exceptions, and it is now a frequent course for even a Knight Bachelorship to be granted by letters-patent when distance or any other cause interferes with a personal conferment. Some of the most recent recipients of the Garter and Thistle have, however, undergone the ceremony of knighting, and two Knights of St Patrick submitted to it from the Viceroy during the year 1900, though the latter's creative power extends only to Knights Bachelor.

A Central Chancery for all the Orders of Knighthood was established in 1904, and it was ordained that the issue of insignia and the registration of warrants should be carried out by the Lord Chamberlain's Department at St James's Palace.

The cuts representing the stars of the various Orders, small as they are, may assist in rendering their descriptions intelligible. But for the Garter, Thistle, St Patrick, and Bath (G O B Mil) much clearer ones will be found on our title-page.

THE MOST NOBLE ORDER OF THE GARTER—The commonly accepted date of the institution of this Order is August 1348, or thereabouts, its founder being Edward the Third, it was re-constituted in 1805 and again in 1831. The story of its origin, in one form or other, is familiar to all, and the one that seems most to be preferred is that it was Edward's own Queen who dropped her garter, and uttered the famous words, "Honi soit qui mal y pense!" upon his picking it up, in response to his rally as to what would be thought of her for thus losing her garter in public. The further incident is appended that Edward then placed the garter round his own knee by way of rebuke to those who "saw him" in it, and that the occurrence thus grew famous, and the garter came to be adopted as the battle signal at Crecy. Another story is that Richard Cœur de Lion during the Crusades once adopted a white leathern strap below the left knee to distinguish his own soldiers from infidels during a night assault—a theory which would place the origin of the Order a century and a half earlier, and which fails to account for the blue colour of the Garter and still more for the origin of the motto. Sir Harris Nicolas gives us a translation of this motto, "May he be dishonoured who thinks ill of it," adding "i.e., the expedition to France." This hints at some third original for the Order, apparently following Camden in taking the Crecy battle signal as the starting point, but here again we want explanation as to why any one, in those days at least, should "think ill" of a grand warlike expedition. But though mistaking this application, we must still admit without hesitation that Sir Harris's translation itself is more nearly literal than the one commonly received, which forgets the "y" for the sake of making out a proverb applicable to anything or nothing, and then repeats the word "evil" without any warrant from the original. For the word "honi," which in modern French would be "honne," is not even a noun at all, but a participle from "honner," a verb used only in the passive and in the sense of "vilipender," but with a force of indignation which makes it amount to a curse. "Accused be he who sees harm in the Garter" is evidently the real intent of the words, Sir Harris's "dishonoured" is far too feeble.

The Order itself may be said to rank indisputably as the first in the world, and the number of foreign Sovereigns who have accepted it is almost countless. It is still limited to twenty-five Knight Companions, with the Sovereign, the Prince of Wales, and other members of the Royal Family (Queen Alexandra and Queen Mary are both Ladies of the Garter), and such extra Knights and foreign rulers and dignitaries as may be admitted by special statute, the only alteration has been the extension of the limits to descendants of the first instead of the second George. A Knight of the Garter is at his investiture allotted a stall in St. George's Chapel at Windsor, over which are set up, to be retained throughout his life, his sword, helmet, crest, banner, and a plate containing his arms and titles: this practice is still in vogue.

The officers of the Order are—Prelate, the Bishop of Winchester, Chancellor, the Bishop of Oxford (formerly Salisbury), Registrar, the Dean of Windsor—all three ex officio, besides these are Garter King of Arms, usually called "Garter," the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod, and the Secretary—these three being personal appointments. The Prelate and Chancellor are authorised to wear upon their left side a scutcheon of the arms of St. George, the latter wears also a gold medal enamelled on the one side with a rose and on the other with a St. George, both encircled with the garter. The Registrar has a mantle of crimson satin with an escutcheon of St. George's arms embroidered on the left shoulder, and on his breast he wears a red book of the Order with a device of two pens within the garter. The mantle of "Garter" himself is similar, and he wears a gold rical enamelled with the Sovereign's arms impaled with the Cross of St. George, surrounded with the garter, and surmounted by a crown. Like other Kings of Arms (for whose names and titles see page 80) he has a crown of silver gilt, figured in sixteen oak leaves. Black Rod, who is the principal officer of the House of Lords, again has a similar mantle. His Rod is surmounted by the Lion of England, and he wears before his breast a gold badge composed on both sides of a knot encompassed with the garter and motto. He is granted for life a house on the south side within Windsor Castle, whilst the Prelate and Chancellor have apartments respectively in the Winchester and Chancellor's Towers of the same.

The decorations of the Knights of the Order constitute a most elaborate and imposing array, comprising the Garter, Mantle, Surcoat, Star, Hood, Hat, Collar, George, Lesser George, and Ribbon. First, the Garter itself (worn below the left knee), of dark blue velvet edged with gold, the motto in golden letters, and the buckle and pendant of chased gold (those awarded to foreign Sovereigns have been most richly gemmed, that sent to Gustavus Adolphus having the motto composed of some four hundred diamonds). Secondly comes the Mantle, which is of dark blue velvet lined with white taffeta (this is the mantle worn by Sovereigns upon state occasions, the regal distinction lying in the extra length of the train). Thirdly we have the Surcoat, of crimson velvet, lined like the Mantle and adorned like it upon the left breast with an eight-pointed silver-embroidered Star, within which is the Red Cross of St. George, the whole encircled by a miniature blue garter. After these come the Hood, resembling the Surcoat in colour and material, and the Hat, which is of black velvet and surmounted by a plume attached by diamonds and composed of white ostrich feathers with a central tuft of black ones from the heron. Then there is the Collar, which is constructed of twenty-six circular medallions of gold fastened together by chains exactly in the manner of the circles in our title page, each medal has for its border a garter with its motto, and for its interior a rose, alternately white and red, between each medal and the next is a true lovers' knot, formed of gold and enamelled white. The twenty-six "garters" as they are termed (we here call them medals for clearness, as the idea of twenty-six garters round the neck might be too suggestive of strangulation) correspond to the number of the Order—the Sovereign and Knight Companions, the entire Collar weighs exactly thirty-two ounces.* Suspended to this Collar over the breast is the Badge or George, an image of that saint encountering the Dragon, the Lesser George, which is similar, is attached to the broad dark blue Ribbon of the Order, passing over the left shoulder and crossing to beneath the right arm (never otherwise, however sometimes pictured, we have had this ratified by a note from Garter King of Arms in 1907). On the death of a Knight the insignia must be returned to St James's Palace. Designation of the Order, the appended letters K G

 THE MOST ANCIENT AND MOST NOBLE ORDER OF THE THISTLE—The Scottish Order of the Thistle is reputed to be of very remote origin—some have assigned it to A.D. 787, and it is said to have originated in the vision of a bright cross in the heavens seen by Achaus, King of Scots, and Hungus, King of the Picts, as they were engaged in prayer in the night before their battle with Athelstan, King of England. What element of truth there may be in this no one can now confidently state. What is historical is that in the year 1540 James the Fifth either established or revived the Order, and that it had again to be restored in 1687 by James the Seventh of Scotland and Second of England, who created eight Knights and assigned to them the royal chapel at Holyrood. Once more the Order collapsed through the Revolution of the following year, but on December 31, 1703, it was again and more permanently established by Queen Anne. In 1827 it was decreed that its membership should comprise the Sovereign and sixteen Knights, but other personages of the Royal Family have since been added. Its officials are the Dean, the Secretary, Lyon King of Arms, and the Gentleman Usher of the Green Rod. The decorations consist of the Badge or Jewel, the Star, Collar, Mantle, and Ribbon. The Badge is in the form of a somewhat elongated eight-pointed star, and is charged with a gold enamelled figure of St Andrew holding before him his own cross—it is worn either pendent to the Collar or attached to the dark green Ribbon of the Order, which passes over the left shoulder and across the breast. The Star, properly so called, is itself formed in part of a St Andrew's Cross of silver embroidery, between the four limbs of which are four starry rays, the centre being occupied by a thistle (blue flower with green foliage), which is surrounded by a circle with the motto, "Nemo me impune lacessit" (No one provokes me with impunity) this is worn on the left side of the coat or cloak. The Collar is composed of a series of golden thistles alternating with sprigs of rue. The Mantle (a recent addition) is of green velvet lined with taffeta. After death the insignia must be returned as under the preceding Order. The Chapel of the Order is in St Giles's Cathedral, Edinburgh. Designation, the letters K T

 THE MOST ILLUSTRIOUS ORDER OF ST PATRICK—This, the leading Order of Ireland as the Thistle is of Scotland, was instituted by George the Third in 1783. The number of Knight Companions was originally fifteen, but was increased in 1833 to twenty-two, in addition to the Sovereign, the Lord Lieutenant (as Grand Master), and some members of the Royal Family. All Lords Lieutenant on retirement retain the insignia, but not the ex-officio knighthood. There was formerly a religious ceremony at investiture, but this was abolished on the disestablishment of the Irish Church, and simultaneously the offices of Prelate and Registrar have lapsed, whilst the Chancellor, instead of being an Archbishop, is now the Secretary for Ireland of the Ministry of the day. The other officers are the Ulster King of Arms, the Secretary, the Usher of the Black Rod (Ireland), and the Genealogist. The decorations consist of the Badge, Star, Collar, Mantle, and Ribbon. The Badge and Star have each of them in the centre a St Patrick's Cross in red surmounted by a green leaf of shamrock, each lobe of which is charged with an Imperial Crown, around this is a circle with a motto in gold letters, "Quis separabit?" (Who shall separate us?), surrounding this again there is in the Badge, which is of gold, a wreath of shamrocks confining the whole within an oval outline, whilst in the Star there are eight spreading rays of silver—these two ornaments are worn as under the previous Orders. The Collar is wholly of gold and made up of a series of five roses, two harps, and an Imperial Crown, alternating with eight golden knots, the roses being enwreathed alternately white petals within red and red within white, whilst the crown, which occupies the front centre, has attached to it a third and much larger harp forming the connecting link between the Collar and Badge, the roses three behind and two in front, the crown taking in this last position the place of the centre one. The Mantle is of sky-blue tawinet lined with white silk. The Ribbon is sky-blue, and is worn over the right shoulder. Return of insignia as in preceding Orders. Designation, the letters K P

THE MOST HONOURABLE ORDER OF THE BATH—The name of this, by far the largest of our Orders of Knighthood and the highest in honour of those to which commoners can hope to attain, was evidently taken from an initiatory ceremony of bathing. If it is too much to assert that the Order itself was founded in 1399, it appears historically true that Henry the Fourth did, on his coronation in that year, confer a distinguished knightly honour upon forty-six gentlemen who underwent a series of forms upon the occasion, of which ablution was a principal item, indeed, we are told that in 1127 Henry the First made Geoffrey of Anjou and five others "Knights of the Bath" at the marriage of his daughter the Princess Matilda, whilst Burke tells us that the 2nd Lord Willoughby de Eresby "received knighthood by bathing" from Edward the Second. But it was not till 1725 that the Order was placed upon a solid foundation, since then it was enlarged in 1815, and no less than twelve times from 1847 to 1906. We are told by Froussart of Henry the Fourth's Knights being presented by the King with "long green coats, the sleeves whereof were cut straight and furled with miniver, and with great hoods or chaperons furled in the same manner, and after the fashion used by prelates, and every one of these Knights on his left shoulder had a double cordon, or string of white silk, to which white tassels were pendant." On the evening previous to their investiture they were all assembled together, and each of them had his separate chamber and bath, the rites of the latter having to be duly performed that night. This ceremony, however, appears to have been observed at the creation of Knights much earlier still, but we find the Order in existence later on, and habitually bestowed on state occasions upon such of the flower of the nobility as had received no other knighthood. Thus we can supplement Froussart's account by a more definite one as described on the investiture of a number of Knights in 1600, when Prince Henry, son of James the First, was created Prince of Wales. Those to be invested were bidden to repair to Durham House in the Strand, and were conducted in the evening to the bathing chamber, "where for each of them was provided a several bathing-tub, which was lined both within and without with white linen and covered with red say. Early the next morning they were awakened with music, and at their uprising invested in their hermit's habit." So attired and without shoes they were brought into the chapel, where a solemn oath was administered to them to "honour God and maintain true religion, love their Sovereign, serve their country, help maidens, widows, and orphans, and to the utmost of their power cause equity and justice to be observed." After this they were invested in crimson robes, with white gloves, white boots, white crosses, and white hats with white feathers, and they then mounted on horseback, each Knight between two esquires, with footmen attending, and a page in front carrying the sword and spurs. In this array they rode to the Court gate, and there individually (the highest in rank first) entered the hall and knelt before the King, to whom the sword of each was handed, when he passed the belt over the neck of the Knight and placed the sword under the left arm, two principal nobles then put on the spurs. All being concluded, they returned to Durham House, where a dinner was set before them which they were not to touch, but to leave to their esquires and pages. In the afternoon they returned fasting to Court and passed a long service in the King's chapel. On making their exit they were met by the King's cook, "who stood there with his white apron and sleeves, and a chopping knife in his hand, and challenged their spurs, which were redeemed with a noble in money, threatening them nevertheless that if they should not be true and loyal to the King, it must be his office to hew them from their heels." The above is culled from a paper preserved by Mr Anstie. The last of this Order of Knights of the Bath are stated by Mr Walford to have been the sixty-eight created by Charles the Second at his coronation. We pass to 1725, when George the First renewed the Order, fixing it at thirty-seven Knights and the Sovereign. It was in 1815, however, that it was enlarged and modelled into an arrangement with three Classes, though only the highest of these comprised as yet a Civil Division, and this limited to one-sixth of the total of the Class (hitherto the letters K B forming the unvarying designation of any Knight of the Bath). In 1847 it was again enlarged, the Civil Division being extended to the other two Classes and inserted in numbers in the list. Eventually the numbers were fixed as stated below, but these are exclusive of the Royal Family and of such distinguished foreigners who may be admitted Honorary Members of either Division or Class, even then much liberty obtains by the temporary use of the word "Additional" (and so with the Orders generally). It must also be particularly noted that great numbers of military men are found under the Civil Division, on account of their special services having been of a scientific or other non-military character, or of their belonging to the Auxiliary Forces, whereas actual military service (see next paragraph) is required for the other Division, a few have obtained both Divisions.

The officers are the Dean (the Dean of Westminster), the Bath King of Arms, the Registrar and Secretary, and the Gentleman Usher of the Scarlet Rod. The Duke of Connaught was in 1901 appointed Great Master, an honour previously held by King Edward and Prince of Wales. As a rule, though not without frequent exceptions, recipients of this Order must begin with the lowest Class, or Commissions, and proceed to Knights Commanders before they can become Grand Crosses. The Military Division of even the lowest rank is only conferred upon such distinction in action against the enemy as shall procure a special mention in despatches, or else upon meritorious service in the Medical, Engineer, Pay, or Indian departments, it is never granted to any officer of lower grade than that of Major in the Army or Commander in the Navy—indeed very rarely even so low, the Distinguished Service Order being substituted.

The decorations of the Order consist of the Badge, Star, Collar, and Ribbon. The Badge for the Military Division is a (genuine) Maltese Cross of gold with eight silver enamelled balls upon the points, and within each of the four principal angles a Lion, in the central circle are a rose, thistle, and shamrock issuing from a sceptre, with three Albert Crowns interspersed (crowns with four arches), in the border is the motto, "Tria juncta in uno" (Three joined in one), with a laurel-wreath completely surrounding it, whilst in a scroll beneath are the words "Ich dien" (I serve) by the Grand Crosses this is worn pendent from the Collar, by the Knights Commanders from the Ribbon, and by Companions from the button hole. The Badge of the Civil Division is also of gold, and in the centre is similar to the above but larger (decreasing however with the three Classes), and it is oval and without the surrounding cross and lions. The Star is of silver, and for the Grand Crosses of the Military Division resembles the Badge as to the cross, laurel-wreath, and mottoes, but has simply three Imperial Crowns in the central space being externally surrounded with a glory of silver flames, for the Civil Grand Crosses there is the same centre, but an eight rayed star in lieu of flames, cross, and wreath, for the Knights Commanders there is a silver cross-pattée round the same centre, the Military Division alone taking the laurel-wreath and the scroll, Companions have no Star, but only the Badge, like that of each Division of other Classes. The Collar of the Grand Crosses, both Civil and Military, is of gold and weighs thirty ounces troy, it is composed of nine Albert Crowns alternating with eight combinations of roses, thistles, and shamrocks, the whole series being linked together by seventeen golden knots enamelled white. The Ribbon is red, and worn over the right shoulder by Grand Crosses, but round the neck by Knights Commanders, who utilise it in place of the Collar for suspension of the Badge, Companions have neither Collar nor Star, and suspend the Badge from the button-hole. Every GCB is entitled to "supporters" in his coat of arms. On high state occasions the Knights wear a crimson surcoat and red mantle, vest and breeches of white satin, white stockings and shoes, golden spurs, and a high crowned hat with a plume of white feathers. On the death of a GCB the insignia must be returned to St James's Palace, with the exception of the Badge and Star, which may be retained by relatives, as are all the decorations of the KCB and CB. The Chapel of the Order is Henry the Seventh's Chapel, Westminster Abbey. The designations with the nominal limiting numbers are as under, these numbers being at the present date all greatly exceeded, a special order in 1901, when the Military Division was increased enormously, having pronounced those in excess to be "additional," in virtue of a provision that the second and third Classes might be enlarged on the occurrence of a war. The nominal total was raised in 1906 to 1344, and the oddness of the figures throughout is amusingly perplexing when we come to discover that about 1900 is the present actual membership, without including Honorary Members.

THE MOST EXALTED ORDER OF THE STAR OF INDIA—The Order exists in precedence after the Bath as of a very modern date, having been constituted by his late Majesty in 1861, and successively enlarged in 1865, 1875, 1876, 1877, and 1903, special additions (called 'Additional Members') were made on Jan 1, 1909, to the 2nd and 3rd Classes in commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary (Nov 1, 1908) of the transfer of the Government of India from the East India Company to the Crown. Its purpose is to reward services in and for India, and to recognise the loyalty of friendly native rulers and chiefs. It consists of the Sovereign, the Viceroy of India as Grand Master, some 290 Knights and Companions disposed in three Classes below, and such extra and Honorary Members as the Sovereign may from time to time appoint. Originally it had no division into Classes, and the designation K S I then represented the only title which it conferred. The officers are the Registrar and the Secretary (who is the Foreign Secretary to the Indian Government for the time being), and the decorations the Badge, Star, Collar, Ribbon, and Mantle. The Badge has hitherto been in every career of Queen Victoria's bust set in an oval and surrounded with the motto "Heaven's Light on Guide," it is surmounted by a five-pointed star wholly in diamonds, which forms the connecting-link with the Collar. The Star proper (first two Classes) has in its centre a smaller star like the preceding, with the same encircling motto, also in diamonds, and around the whole a glory of golden flames. The Collar is of gold, and adorned, enamelled in their proper colours, with an Heraldic Crown, five red and-white roses, six lotuses, and ten pairs of palm branches. The Ribbon is sky blue with a narrow white stripe towards each edge, and is worn by Grand Commanders over the right shoulder, crossing to the left, and by Knights Commanders around the neck. Companions attach the Badge by it to the left breast. The Mantle is of light blue satin lined with white and adorned with blue and silver tassels and a representation of the Star. On the death of a member of either Class the insignia must be returned to St James's Palace. Designations and limits

THE MOST DISTINGUISHED ORDER OF St MICHAEL AND St GEORGE—Though clearly older than the preceding and now of much wider application, this Order has been placed later in dignity, because, having been originally established (in 1818) to commemorate the placing of the Ionian Islands under the protection of Great Britain, it was limited at first to natives of these islands and of Malta, and to "such other subjects of His Majesty as may hold high and confidential situations in the Mediterranean." Indeed, it was not made applicable to the Colonies generally until some years after the foundation of the "Star of India." In 1832 its three Classes were fixed at the numbers of fifteen, twenty, and twenty-five respectively but it was enlarged successively in 1863, 1877, 1879, and 1887, till it has come to be assignable to any person who has rendered valuable services in either Colonial or Foreign Affairs. It now comprises the Sovereign, the Grand Master or Principal Knight Grand Cross, a number of Royal Princes, with foreign persons of distinction (Honorary Members), and the Knights and Companions as below. Its offices are the Prelate, Chancellor, Secretary, King of Arms, and Registrar the Colonial Office is its Chancery, and it has a Chapel in St Paul's Cathedral.

The decorations are the Badge, Star, Collar, Ribbon, Mantle, and Chapeau. The Badge is white enamelled and resembling a Maltese Cross but with seven arms instead of four on one side it represents the Archangel Michael encountering Satan, and on the other St George and the Dragon, around each of these designs is the motto "Auspiciis melioribus." (The token of a better age), above the whole Badge is a crown attaching it to the Collar. The Star of a Knight Grand Cross consists of seven rays of silver spreading like the Badge, and with narrow ones of gold between, whilst in the centre is the figure of St George with the motto, and the extremities of the four arms of a cross protruding from beneath, to halfway across the rays (unfortunately not clear in our illustration). That of Knights Commanders is smaller and of only four rays. The Collar is made up of crowned lions (the two in the front having wings), Maltese Crosses, and ciphers of the letters SM and SG, with a crown in the front centre slightly within the circle all gold except the crosses, which are of white enamel. The Ribbon is of Saxon blue with a scarlet stripe, and is worn by the three Classes with the same variations as under the Bath. The Mantle and Chapeau are of blue satin lined with scarlet silk, the latter surmounted with white and black ostrich feathers Knights Grand Cross are entitled to bear "supporters" Under this Order, on the death of a member the insignia may be retained by relatives The following are the designations (which accord with those of the Bath and the Royal Victorian Order in the use of the term "Grand Cross," whilst the two Indian Orders alone substitute "Grand Commanders"), also the statutory limits of each Class as extended in 1902, and not exceeded by more than a hundred in even the 3rd Class

1st Class, Knights Grand Cross	Sir A B, G C M G	100 members

3rd " Companions	The letters C M G	600 "

The Foreign Office may designate 30 of the 1st Class, 90 of the 2nd, and 180 of the 3rd

THE MOST EMINENT ORDER OF THE INDIAN EMPIRE—The Order so entitled was instituted by her late Majesty on January 1, 1878, as commemorating her proclamation in the previous year as Empress of India It was enlarged in 1886, and again at the Jubilees of 1887 and 1897, and specially, like the higher Indian Order, in 1909 It now consists of the Sovereign, the Governor General (as Grand Master), some members of the Royal Family, and the usual three Classes, besides extras, whilst there exists the special proviso that all Councillors of the Indian Empire are

The C I E appointments each year are limited to 20 (40 in 1903) + vacancies through promotion (not death)

THE ROYAL VICTORIAN ORDER—This last of our Orders of Knighthood, which dates only from 1896, was designed as a recognition of personal services to Queen Victoria, but since her decease it has been enormously increased in numbers, and additions, in fact, are now made to it every few days It comprises no fewer than five Classes, of which the 1st is to take precedence after G C I E, the 2nd after K C I E, the 3rd after Knights Bachelor, the 4th after C I E, and the 5th after ISO It will thus be observed that a C V O, styled

"Commander," is superior to a CB (at first he was superior even to a Knight Bachelor) Higher than all these classes there is the Victorian Chain, which is regularly restricted to the Royal Family and its connections abroad, but is also held by the Dukes of Argyll and Fife, the Marquess of Lansdowne, and Lord Curzon of Kedleston The numerous foreign members are Honorary only It had its appointed Anniversary on June 20, the day of her late Majesty's accession Its officers are the Chancellor and the Secretary, who are respectively the Lord Chamberlain of the Household and the Keeper of the Privy Purse for the time being The decorations are the Badge, Star, and Ribbon The Badge, for the 1st Class, is a white enamelled Maltese Cross, with a crimson oval in the centre containing the royal and imperial cipher and the name "Victoria," all in gold letters, the name being surrounded by a blue circle surmounted by a crown, for the 2nd and 3rd Classes it is similar but smaller, and for the 4th smaller still, for the 5th it is the size of the 4th, but with the cross in frosted silver instead of white enamel The Star for the 1st Class is silver chipped, with eight points, and having a smaller reproduction of the Badge in its centre, for the 2nd Class it is in the form of a Maltese Cross in silver but with smaller rays, and having the reproduced Badge in frosted silver instead of enamel it is not worn by the three lower Classes. The Ribbon is of dark blue with a narrow edging of three stripes—red, white, and red again, for the 1st Class it is  $3\frac{1}{2}$  ins broad and worn from over the right shoulder to below the left arm, having the Badge suspended to it, for the 2nd and 3rd Classes it is  $2\frac{1}{2}$  ins broad and worn round the neck, for the 4th and 5th it is  $1\frac{1}{2}$  ins broad and attached to the left breast. The insignia of a holder of this Order may be retained by relatives after his death, but those of a lower Class must be returned to the Privy Purse Office upon his promotion to a higher. The numbers of all the Classes are unlimited, and the following are the designations

THE ROYAL HANOVERIAN GUELPHIC ORDER—This Order, which ceased to be conferred in this country upon the death of William the Fourth, was instituted in 1815 by the then Prince Regent to commemorate the establishment of Hanover as a Kingdom, and was formerly far more British than Hanoverian. It had its complete array of decorations, with the motto "Nec aspera terrent" (Nor do difficulties dismay us). The following are its designations with its only surviving British representatives

G C H (Knight Grand Cross of Hanover)—H R H the Duke of Cumberland
 K C H (Knight Commander of Hanover)—1st, Sir Woodbine Parish, who died 1882
 A H (Knight of Hanover—corresponding to Companions and not entitled "Sir")
 Baron von Pöhl-Pommern is the last of the K H's in this country

KNIGHTS BACHELOR—In strict terms these do not constitute an "Order," though the phrase "the Order of Knighthood" is used as including all Knights whatsoever. We have mentioned under "General Remarks" that the more ancient class of Knight were known simply as "Knights," or Equites Aurati, it must be added that "Bachelors" (Mileses Bachelarii) were at first not Knights at all, but seem to have stood much in the position of our modern "Companions." But by degrees, apparently through the greater lustre of the Knights of the Bath, these other two ranks came to be merged in their present compound title. It is usually held that the word "Bachelor" in this usage is a corruption of "bas chevalier," as implying a lower rank of Knights than those who received the honour under the royal banner, but perhaps, in accordance with the statement above, it should rather be interpreted as "lower than the Knight proper." Mention has been made of the systematic sale of this and other honours by James the First, who during the second year of his reign created 300 Knights. In the case of this degree he even outdid his achievements in the sale of Baronetries, till we are told that a satirical placard was affixed to the door of St Paul's Cathedral offering to teach a new art of memory to enable people to bear in mind the names of the newly-created title-bearers, indeed, the King himself became so humiliated by his own doings that upon one occasion when the new Knight showed embarrassment at his own lack of prestige, James exclaimed, "Hold up your head, man, and spare your blushes, I have more cause to be ashamed than you have." A rather back-handed piece of consolation surely!

A few centuries earlier the Knight, like the Baron, was a part of the feudal system, and the possession of a Knight's fee (a stated piece of land worth about £20 in the 13th century) gave not only a claim to but an enforcement of the title. Still, though it might be a burden it was an honour usually sought with avidity. But when under the Stuarts the honour was degraded as above, whilst the ancient requirement to provide troops for the King was maintained, the Knights-designate were often glad to second their tenants in the effort to obtain excuse from the promotion, submitting in its stead, the one to pay large sums of indemnity and the others to submit to special levies of taxation. In the treaty at Newport between Charles the First and his Parliament it was agreed that the King should receive in place of the knightly service a tax of £100,000 a year upon the relieved lands, and by the 12th of Charles the Second an excuse on bear and other drinks was substituted and the service wholly abolished—the populace gladly accepting this burden in place of some sixty days per year for which they had hitherto been obliged to go with the troops. In 1704 the fees on the letters patent (£50) and on the warrant for the same (£10) were wholly abolished.

The designation of a Knight Bachelor is the simple prefix Sir, it is permissible to add "Knight" or "Kt," but this is not usual except in formal style, and in any case R B should not be used, those letters (see page 70) being the old style for "Knight of the Bath." There is no devolution attached, and no limit to the numbers, also no officers, it not forming an Order. An effort has however been started (1908) towards elevating the position of this Knighthood, a voluntary association having been formed under the title of the Society of Knights Bachelor, the primary object of which is to obtain the uniform registration of every created Knight. Sir William Bull has acted as registrar, and other officers are meant to be appointed in due time. The Lord Lieutenant of Ireland can create Knights Bachelor.

ORDER OF MERIT—King Edward in June 1902 instituted this Order, which at present occupies a very anomalous position, conferring no precedence, and yet authorising the holders to place its designating initials next after those denoting membership of the Order of the Bath (from GCB to CB). It is designed as a special distinction for meritorious in any department, whether—war, science, literature, or art—without in itself conferring a Knighthood, though it happens that of the twelve originally appointed, all but one were either a Peer, Knight, or Privy Councillor. The Order is limited in number to 24, with the addition of foreign Honorary Members, and its only Officer is the Secretary and Registrar, who is the Comptroller of the Lord Chamberlain's Department for the time being. The Badge is a species of cross of red and blue enamel, and its inner portion bears the words 'Foi Merit' in gold letters within a laurel wreath, the reverse containing the royal and imperial cipher. In the cases of naval and military men two silver swords with gilt hilts are added, as shown in the cut. The whole is attached to an enamelled Heraldic Crown suspended by a broad ribbon of Garter-blue and crimson, and worn from the neck. The Secretary's badge has the substitution of two silver pens in the place of the swords. After death of a member the insignia may be retained by relatives. The Order has an anniversary day fixed for June 26 (that intended for the Coronation). Its designation is the letters O M.

THE DISTINGUISHED SERVICE ORDER—In this also and some following Orders we may be said to have a Knighthood without Knights, the members being Companions only. The present Order ranks immediately after the 4th Class of the Royal Victorian, the sequence of Companions &c thus becoming—CVO, CB, CSI, CMG, CIE, MVO 4th Class, DSO, ISO, MVO 5th Class. The Order under notice was instituted by her late Majesty in 1886, its purpose being the recognition of special services of commissioned officers in the Army and Navy. The Sovereign is at its head and its numbers are unlimited (now about 1650). Its Badge is a gold cross enamelled white, one side bearing an Heraldic Crown surrounded by a wreath of laurels (enamelled green upon a red enamelled ground), on the reverse side there is now the cipher ER VII within a similar wreath. This is worn attached to the left breast by a red ribbon edged blue. Designation, the letters DSO.

IMPERIAL SERVICE ORDER—King Edward, at his Coronation in August 1902, instituted this Order. It is restricted to members of the administrative or clerical (clerk) branches of the Civil Service, and consists of the Sovereign, the Prince of Wales, and Companions (not exclusively male) to a number not exceeding 475, of whom 250 may belong to the Home Services and 225 to the Colonial. Those of the former class must, as a rule, have rendered 25 years of meritorious service, and those of the latter 16, but these rules are to be somewhat elastic, and even subject to alteration. Its officer, appointed by the Sovereign, is styled Secretary and Registrar. The Badge is a medallion to be worn on the left breast, bearing on one side the royal cipher, and on the other the words, "Foi Faithful Service," the lettering being in dark blue enamel upon a shield of gold girt with a laurel wreath and surmounted by a crown, the ribbon is 1½ ins broad with a stripe of blue between two of crimson (by females fashioned into a bow and worn on left shoulder). (The minor honour of the IMPERIAL SERVICE MEDAL, like the above, but of silver, is announced as designed for award to those who have served the full terms without displaying any particular merit.) Designation, the letters ISO. By a Warrant issued December 11, 1906, this Order confers precedence next after the preceding, but all those that follow are honours only and give no rank.

THE ROYAL ORDER OF VICTORIA AND ALBERT (for Ladies) — Instituted in 1852, and enlarged in 1864, 1865, and 1880, but no fresh conferments are now made. It comprises Then Majesties Queen Alexandra and Mary and four Classes, of which the First consists of Princesses of the Royal Family with some foreign Queens, the Second of Royal ladies less near to our Royal Family, and the Third and Fourth of ladies of the British nobility. Badge, in the first three Classes a medallion of Queen Victoria and the Prince Consort, differing in the width and jewelling of the border as the Classes descend, whilst the fourth substitutes a jewelled cipher. All four are surmounted by some form of crown, which is attached to a bow of white mousseline ribbon. Designation, the letters V A.

THE IMPERIAL ORDER OF THE CROWN OF INDIA (for Ladies) — Instituted Jan. 1, 1878, and for a like purpose with the simultaneously created Order of the Indian Empire. It consists of the Queen and Queen Mother with some Royal Princesses, and the female relatives of Indian Princes or of persons who have held conspicuous offices in connection with India. Badge, the royal cipher in jewels within an oval, surmounted by an Heraldic Crown and attached to a bow of light blue watered ribbon, edged white. Designation, the letters C I. No conferment has been made since 1900.

THE ORDER OF ST JOHN OF JERUSALEM — The Order had its origin in Jerusalem and Acre, as an international lay confraternity for the relief of crusaders, and was later sovereign in Rhodes and in Malta, where its Knights kept galleys and galleons, to attack the Barbary Corsairs and to prevent the spread of Turkish rule in the Mediterranean, from 1530 till 1798. Like other ancient Orders of Chivalry, the Order of St John had also Priories and Commanderies in the different countries of Europe, those in England and Scotland being dissolved at the same time as the monasteries. The Order was expelled from Malta by Napoleon in 1798, when the majority of its Knights, being of French origin, returned to France, while the Italian Knights settled in Rome, where there is now a Grand Master, with various Commanderies in Italy and Priories in Silesia and Bohemia, as well as Associations of Knights elsewhere.

After the loss of Malta, the Ordinary Council of the Order, representing the majority of the then existing Knights, by Deed executed at Paris in 1827, assisted in the reconstitution of what is now the Grand Priory of the Order of the Hospital of St John of Jerusalem in England, whose Chancery is at the Gatehouse in Clerkenwell, that still remains of the ancient Priory of St John. A Royal Charter was granted to this reconstituted British Order in 1888 by Queen Victoria, with a constitution somewhat like that of the existing Bulwark of Brandenburg (Johanniter-Orden) in Germany, and the first Grand Priors thereafter were Kings Edward VII and George V, while Princes of Wales. The work of the British Order is the control of the St John's Ambulance Association and Brigade, and of the British Ophthalmic Hospital at Jerusalem. Its Badge is a Maltese cross of white enamel, with a lion and a unicorn in alternate angles, of gold or silver according to grade, with a white watered ribbon, medals are conferred for acts of gallantry on land involving risk of life. King George V is the Sovereign Head and Patron of the British Order, H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught is its Grand Prior, and Colonel Sir Herbert Perrott, Bart., C.B., its Secretary-General, with a Chapter of some 50 Knights.

MILITARY KNIGHTS OF WINDSOR — A small number of military officers, who have performed meritorious services but are not in a position suitably to maintain themselves, are granted a pension ranging from £50 to £150 a year, together with apartments at Windsor Castle, from which they obtain the above designation, which, however, confers no more of a title than does a suite at Hampton Court upon a lady. Up till 1892 there was included the Order of Naval Knights of Windsor (began 1797 under the will of S. Travers, Esq.), but these are now separated as the TRAVERS PRISON, which amounts to £75 a year. The Order of Knights of Windsor has existed from 1349, having at first been composed of 26 veterans of Edward the Third. They thus constituted "The Poor Knights of the Order of the Garter" as it then was, and they continue to this day to be connected with it by various links. They are appointed by the Sovereign in his capacity as head of that Order. Till 1905 they formed part of an ecclesiastical college under its Registrar, the Dean of Windsor, but the control is now transferred to the Governor and Deputy-Governor of the Castle, whilst the Governor of the Order is now a superior officer, not one of the Knights. Their pay comes from the revenues of that college, and they wear its badge, whilst every K.G. has upon appointment to contribute a sum of money for apportionment among them. Their uniform is that of the earlier part of last century, and was assigned them by William the Fourth, who prefixed the word "Military" to their title. Under Charles the First the numbers were fixed at thirteen for the Royal Foundation and five for the Lower. Queen Elizabeth drew up the present code, under which members must reside at their quarters for nine months of the year, and must attend St. George's Chapel on Saints' Days, besides acting occasionally as guards of honour. Queen Victoria in 1870 confirmed the previous statutes respecting them.

The VICTORIA CROSS (VC) was instituted in 1855, on the close of the Crimean War, as a recognition of conspicuous acts of bravery in presence of the enemy displayed by either soldiers or sailors. It was designed primarily for the rank and file and non-commissioned officers, but it is held also by all grades up to Field-Marshal and Admirals of the Fleet, and was extended to civilians who had borne arms against the Indian mutineers, the Militia also are now included if they have been serving under regular officers. Conjoined with the decoration is the conferment, upon non-commissioned officers and men, of a pension of £10 per annum and an additional £5 for each Bar, as immediately to be explained, and what is still more, this £10 may be increased to £50 (at the option of the Secretary for War or First Lord of the Admiralty) in any cases where the recipients are unable to maintain themselves. The Badge consists in a cross-pattée of bronze, having in the centre an Imperial Crown, with a lion above it, and a scroll below bearing the words "For Valour." Any additional act of bravery is noted by a Bar being affixed to the ribbon from which the cross hangs, it being suspended to the left breast, whilst the ribbon is red for the Army and blue for the Navy. The cross is usually styled "Maltese," but this cannot be strictly correct, for its four arms are not cleft at the ends as they are in the decorations of the Bath, St. Michael and St. George, and the Royal Victorian, crosses-pattées on the contrary, though very varied in form, are never cleft at the ends. Though instituted in 1855, some of the original recipients are registered as from 1854, the date being always that of the act by which the honour was earned.

The CONSPICUOUS SERVICE CROSS (CSC), instituted by King Edward in 1901, is also a decoration in reward of "distinguished service before the enemy," but is specially designed for bestowal on Warrant Officers and subordinate officers in the Fleet who do not hold commissions in the Navy. It consists of a silver cross with the reverse side plain, but on the obverse the cipher ERI surmounted by an Imperial Crown.

The ALBERT MEDAL dates from 1865, with extensions in 1867 and 1877, and is a recognition of acts of gallantry performed by any person whatever. Its recipients are ranged in two Divisions, the one receiving a Badge inscribed "For Gallantry in Saving Life at Sea," the other with the closing words varied to "on Land." Each Division has now two Classes, the Badge of the one having a golden centre with a bronze garter around it, that of the other being wholly in bronze, both are oval, and contain an Albert Crown and the cipher VA, to which in the Sea Division an anchor is added. The suspending ribbon in this Division is of dark blue, with four white stripes in the First Class and two in the Second, in the Land Division it is crimson with similar white stripes. An added Bar records an additional act of gallantry. — Another "Albert Medal," not to be confused with this, is given by the Society of Arts.

The EDWARD MEDAL, also established in 1907, is a recognition of heroic acts performed by miners and quarrymen, or of others who have endangered their lives in rescuing those so employed. It has the King's effigy on one side, and on the other a design representing the rescue of a miner, with the inscription "For Courage." For the First Class it is of silver, for the Second of bronze, the ribbon of dark blue with a yellow strip on each side. It may be awarded to a woman. Next in precedence is the BOARD OF TRADE MEDAL for saving life.

The VOLUNTEER OFFICERS' DECORATION (VD) was an honour for rewarding the meritorious services of officers of the force in question, who must have been in commission and have served twenty years, though a provision was made allowing half the time spent in other military service to be counted in making up this term. Dishonourable conduct is to entail the erasure of the name and a publication of the fact in the Gazette. The Badge is an oak wreath in silver with the cipher ER and an Heraldic Crown in the centre, it is suspended to the left breast by a green ribbon attached to a silver oak bar-brooch. There is also the VOLUNTEER LONG SERVICE MEDAL, which was granted to Volunteers who had served in any rank for sixteen years up to March 31, 1908.

The TERRITORIAL DECORATION, established in 1908, consists of a silver oak-wreath tied with gold and having the Royal Cipher and Crown in the centre, the whole suspended on the left breast from a silver oak bar-brooch by a green ribbon with a yellow stripe. It is restricted to commissioned officers of twenty years' good service in the Territorial Force, and not holders of the Volunteer Decoration. Similarly, a TERRITORIAL LONG SERVICE MEDAL (oval in shape) has been substituted for that formerly awarded to Volunteers.

The KAISAR-I-HIND MEDAL (for either sex) was founded 1900, and is a reward for any person whatever who shall have rendered useful service in or for India. The First Class under sign manual from the Sovereign on recommendation by the Secretary of State for India, the Second as the grant of the Governor-General. The medal is an oval shaped badge—in gold for the First Class and Silver for the Second—with the Royal cipher on one side, and on the reverse side the words "Kaisar-i Hind—for Public Service in India." It is worn on the left breast, hung by a dark blue ribbon. Attached to it may be added for additional services.

The INDIAN DISTINGUISHED SERVICE MEDAL was established in 1907 as a reward for commissioned or non commissioned officers of any forces employed in India. It is a silver medal with the King's effigy on one side and on the obverse a laurel wreath with the words "For Distinguished Service." It is to be worn on the left breast by a red ribbon edged with blue. It may be conferred also by the Viceroy of India.

The ORDER OF MERCI (both sexes) was established in 1899 (now with the King as its Sovereign), in connection with the LEAGUE OF MERCI, an institution also founded in 1899 by Royal Charter to promote the welfare of Hospitals by obtaining small subscriptions for King Edward's Hospital Fund for London, &c. The Order, which has been awarded to a number of officers and members of the League, is conferred by the King as a reward for personal services only, which must have been gratuitously rendered in connection with the relief of sickness, suffering, poverty, or distress. It consists of a red cross surmounted by the Prince of Wales's feathers, and having in the centre a group of figures representing "Charity," by Sir Joshua Reynolds. Their Majesties are the Grand President and Lady Grand President of both League and Order, the Hon. Secretaries are Lord Wolverton, Sir William J. Collins, M.D., M.P., and Mr. J. Harrison, M.V.O., and the Treasurer is Sir Henry Burdett, K.C.B., Mr. E. W. Wallington, C.M.G., is Hon. Registrar of the Order, and the Secretary is Mr. Harold E. Beaumont.

The DISTINGUISHED CONDUCT MEDAL, which was very extensively awarded after the South African War, is a decoration, designed for warrant and non commissioned officers and men. Just above it in the Navy is the CONSPICUOUS GALLANTRY MEDAL.

The ROYAL RED CROSS (R.R.C.—for Ladies), founded 1883, is a distinction conferred upon ladies of any rank, even foreigners, who may be brought to the Sovereign's notice for acts of mercy in attending to the sick or wounded in time of war. It has the Queen and several Royal Princesses at its head. Badge, a cross-patee enamelled crimson which has hitherto borne Queen Victoria's effigy in the centre on one side, on the reverse the cipher V.R.I. and on the four arms respectively the words "Faith," "Hope," "Charity," "1883." The ribbon is dark blue edged red, tied in a bow and worn on the left shoulder.

In 1909 a Medal was instituted to reward good service by men of the police force and fire brigades, and in 1910 the King approved the grant of a decoration and medal for officers and men of the Royal Naval Reserve and the Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve as a reward for good and long service.

NATIVE INDIAN AND NORTH AFRICAN NAMES AND TITLES

1. INDIAN

THE large number of native Indian Knights which our work comprises renders it desirable that some explanation of their titles as well as of their names should be supplied to English readers. For that which we have present, as also for a considerable amount of rearrangement in the DIRECTORY, we are indebted in the first place to Messrs James and Horace Wilson, of Sheffield, but formerly of Calcutta. Their generous help was supplemented and much extended by the late Maj.-Gen. Sir Owen T. Burns, G.C.I.E., and for the very numerous additions introduced in 1910 we are indebted to Sir Roper Lethbridge's admirable compilation 'The Golden Book of India,' as also to a valued communication from Mr. J. L. Fendall, of Pinhoe, Exeter.

Taking up the names first, the chief perplexity lies in their variety of systems, or rather sometimes their want of system. To a very large extent we find what correspond exactly to our own repertory of Christian names, but these are far more widely chosen than with ourselves, so that not unfrequently the first of his names, be it "Christian" or not, is the one under which a man must be entered, and in view of the perplexity thus introduced we have now determined to make that our regular rule. "In Bengal," says Mr. Wilson, "a Hindu generally has three names, just as the old Roman had his prænomen, nomen, and cognomen. The first would be the personal name ('Christian' name), the second a descriptive or caste name, the third a family name." Thus the order would differ from the Roman, in which, for instance, "Marcus Tullius Cicero" has the family name in the second place. Others have but two names, and many of the Marwaris only one, as Dadraj or Mulchand. The Mohammedans are very irregular, "some seeming to have no family name at all, as Khudr Bulch = 'the gift of God' (Khudr being God), with a highly curious contrast the lengthy 'Abdul Fayl Muhammad Abdur Rahman." We have just heard in confirmation from the Nawab of Rampur, "In fact we have no proper surnames." It may be added that both Sir Roger Lethbridge and (as a rule) 'Delbrett' follow the plan to which we ourselves now resort—that of entering an Indian Knight or Companion under his first name except when he is known by a hereditary title of honour.

Turning to the titles, we are speedily staggered by their multiplicity. Here again we find a difference of nomenclature between the titles of Hindus and those of Mohammedans, the highest in rank with the former being Maharaja and with the latter Nawab, with the exception of the one still higher potentate termed the Nizam. Maharaja, Raja, and Nawab correspond with English Peers, and the lower titles with our Knights, but of these latter the relative rank sometimes varies in different parts (Raja Bahadur and Khan Bahadur may, however, be taken as equivalent to Knights Bachelor). Hindu titles are of Sanscrit origin, and Mohammedan usually of Persian, but there are also Burmese, Afghan, Baluch, Thibetan, Arakanese, and Somali titles, indeed some fifty languages or dialects. Some titles are hereditary and represent ruling chiefs or those nominally such (and of these there are no less than some 520, whilst of the titles themselves some 200 are known), others are personal honours conferred on individuals by our Indian Government, and even then sometimes made hereditary. Yet again, there are numerous complimentary titles, or specifications of office, expressed in Hindu phrases, of which we have occasionally supplied the interpretations. It must be added that though caste is often figuring in the names it has nothing whatever to do with the titles. Amin, Khan, Mir, Sultan, Sir, &c., are confusingly used as both titles and names.

The order of rank is thus given by Sir R. Lethbridge

Hindu—Maharaja Bahadur, Maharaja, Raja Bahadur, Raja, Rai Bahadur, Rai Sahib, Rai

Mohammedan—Nizam, Nawab Bahadur, Nawab, Khan Bahadur, Khur Sahib, Khan

Afsar—a corruption of the English "officer"

Ahluwalia—name of a princely family resident at the village of Ahlu, near Lahore

Alim-ul-Lada—son of a head officer. Aiyah (Sindhi)—of exalted rank. Ali Raja—Sect King (Lacodive)

Amur (corruptly Amir)—a Mohammedan Chief, often also a personal name. Amir—a Minister

Baba—lit "father," a respectful "Mr.," or "Your Honour"

Babu—strictly a 5th or still younger son of a Raja, but often used of any son younger than the heir, whilst it has also grown into a term of address = Esquire. There are, however, one or two Rajas whose sons are known respectively as—1st, Kunwar, 2nd, Diwan, 3rd, Thakur, 4th, Lal, 5th, Dabu

Badar—lit "brave" or "warrior," a title used by both Hindus and Mohammedans, often bestowed by Government, added to other titles it increases their honour, but none it designates an inferior ruler

Begum or Begam—the feminine of "Nawab," combined in Bhopal as "Nawab Begum"

Begum—apparently a large land-owner. Bhairs—a name of a Mahatt's dynasty

Bhup—title of the ruler of Cooh Behar. Bugti—a name of a Baluch tribe

Chhatrapati—one of sufficient dignity to have an umbrella carried over him

Dad—lit "grandfather" (paternal), any venerable person

Darda and Daulat—State, also one in office

Deb—a Brahminical priestly title, taken from the name of a divinity

Dhruv—"Lord of the Lands," added to "Raja," &c. it means "paramount"

Diwan—a Vizier or other First Minister to a native Prince, either Hindu or Mohammedan, and equal in rank with "Sardar," under which see other equivalents. The term is also used of a Council of State

Elaya Raja—title given to the heir of the Maharaja of Travancore

Fasani (with defining words added)—"favourite" or "beloved"

Fateh—"victory" Fath Jang—"Victorious in Battle" (a title of the Nizam)

Gaekwar (sometimes Gucowar)—title with "Maharaja" added, of the ruler of Baroda. It was once a caste name and means "cowherd," i.e., the protector of the sacred animal, but later on, in common with "Holkar" and "Sindhia," it came to be a dynastic appellation and consequently regarded as a title. Thus, a Prince becomes "Gaekwar" on succeeding to the estate of Baroda, "Holkar," to that of Indore, and "Sindhia," to that of Gwalior

OFFICERS OF ARMS

THE English College of Arms, or the Herald's College, is a corporate body originally established by Richard the Third. Its officers are appointed on the nomination of the Earl Marshal, whose office is hereditary in the line of the Duke of Norfolk, their only remuneration, beyond a nominal one, consists in the fees which they receive from private practice, though one Herald and one Pursuivant are regularly in attendance at the office. The Officers of Arms of Scotland and Ireland, on the contrary, are now immediately under Government instead of forming corporations, they are in no degree connected with either the Earl Marshal or Garter. The duty of the various Offices is to attend to all matters of pedigrees, honours, and precedence, and to arrange all state ceremonies in their respective countries. The rank of the three English Kings remains invariably in the order given below, but that of the Herald and Pursuivants changes with personal seniority.

The three grades of Kings, Herald, and Pursuivants are all attired officially in the tabard or sleeveless coat—that of the Kings being of embroidered silk velvet, that of the Herald's satin, and of the Pursuivants figured silk damask. The Kings of Arms are further distinguished by crowns of silver gilt figured with sixteen oak-leaves, and they wear gold collars of SS, which perhaps means "Spiritus Sanctus," but this, one of the Kings tells us, is "hotly controverted" (the term occurs in Shakespeare's 'Henry VIII,' Act iv, Scene 1), they are assigned official arms to impale with their own (for Garter see further under that Order). The Herald has similar collars, but of silver, their designation is solely in connection with "heraldry," the trumpeters attending them upon state ceremonies whenever the more ordinary function of a "herald" has to be performed.

PRECEDENCE

THE relative positions of the various grades have formed the subject of legal enactments from a very early period, the first apparently having been decreed in the reign of Edward the Third in the year 1339. After this we meet with a statute passed under Henry the Seventh, and a more important one in the 31st year of Henry the Eighth, which has since been looked upon as the primary authority on the subject, though it was little more than a conferring of legal force upon the practices then current. Several acts of less account have followed, mostly in reference to questions of special controversy or doubt. Many striking omissions occur in the table, among them being Colonial Governors, military and naval commanders, the sons of Peers' eldest sons, and (till end of 1905) the office of Prime Minister, the Chancellor of the Exchequer is still unrecognised, as are Secretaries of State who hold higher rank than that of Barons. Hereditary precedence as a rule comes only through a father, but a Peeress in her own right can confer it upon her offspring. Men possessing two claims to precedence, a personal and an official one, will be ranked according to whichever of these is the higher, yet this preference of the higher is not the invariable system, for if the son of a Duke, for instance, is summoned to the House of Lords in a Barony of his father's his rank forthwith sinks to that of a Baron, and similarly if an Irish Peer becomes a Member of Parliament it will be only in the latter capacity that he will be summoned to a Coronation. The children of a living Peer or Baronet rank before those of his predecessor, as they themselves will have the prior claim to succeed. A dignity which is exclusively official—as that of the Spiritual Peers and the Scottish Lords of Session—confers no precedence whatever upon the children, but those of a Life Peer now rank as only one degree lower than the younger sons of other Barons. No foreign title confers any precedence in England, but veritable Ambassadors rank before all except the Royal Family, whilst Envoys and Foreign Ministers have a latterly been placed, 'Burke' tells us, between Dukes and Marquesses. Foreign Sovereigns visiting England would rank after our own King in order of seniority of accession alone, whether Emperors, Kings, or Presidents.

In various classes, such as the Clergy, the Bar, and the Military, there are rules of precedence observed amongst themselves, but which confer no general rank whatever. In University Precedence we have Doctors (in the order—D.D., D.C.L. or LL.D., M.D., Mus.D., D.Litt., D.Sc.), Bachelors of the same faculties, then Masters of Arts, and lastly Bachelors of Arts. For Relative Ranks of Army and Navy, see the ARMY AND NAVY. The order of Legal Precedence (apart from those highest officials given under the general list above) is as follows after "Judges of the High Court."

Judge Advocate General.
Attorney General.
Lord Advocate of Scotland.
Solicitor General.
King's Counsel.
Serjeants.
Recorder of London.
Common Serjeant of London.
Attorney General of Duchy of Lancaster.

Justices in Chancery.
Masters in Lunacy.
Doctors of Civil Law.
Barristers with patents of precedence.
Other Barristers.
King's Counsel near.
Proctors.
Solicitors.
Notaries.

Similarly for Clerical Precedence we must add after "Bishops"

Irish Bishops Protestant or Roman Catholic.
Bishop of Sodor and Man.
Scottish Bishops.
Colonial Bishops.
Bishops Suffragan, Richard, Assistant, and Missionary Bishops.

Deans.
Archdeacons.
Canon.
Doctors of degree D.D.
Other Rectors.
Vicars of degree D.D.
Other Vicars.

Precedence among Ladies

As a first general rule the rank of ladies is that of their husbands if married and of their eldest brothers if single, but there are many special instances. Our section upon the Marriage of Peers and Others, now placed under the heading "Nomenclature of Peers' Relatives," comprehends much that is applicable to our subject here. In particular, we may here repeat that whilst the eldest son of a Peer takes rank, say, as a Duke's son quite irrespective of his courtesy-title as Marquess, Earl, or Lord, the married daughter of a Peer may either retain a higher rank of her own by adhering to her former style, or take that of her husband by conforming to his. It must be added that the wife of an eldest son takes precedence over all daughters, but these in their turn have priority over the wives of younger sons. A dowager lady again (not necessarily so styled, see page 31) ranks higher than the wife of the living Peer or Baronet, because, whilst neither can possibly succeed to the title, the elder comes the nearer to the original holder—a rule thus resulting which is the opposite to that observed in the cases of children, wherein those of the living Peer or Baronet take precedence on account of nearness to the future succession. The mere official rank of the husband as a rule confers no dignity whatever upon his wife, but even here there are exceptions in cases where the wives have a species of public duties to perform, as those of a Lady Mayoress and the wife of a Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. The following is the order observed

The Queen.
The Queen Mother.
The Princess of Wales.
Sovereign's daughters.
Wives of Sovereign's younger sons.
Daughters of Sovereign's sons.
Wives of Sovereign's grandsons.
Sovereign's sisters.
Wives of Sovereign's brothers.
Sovereign's aunts.
Wives of Sovereign's uncles.

Wives of younger sons of Peers' younger sons.
Wives of younger sons of Baronets.
Wives of younger sons of Knights.
Wives of Esquires.
Wives of Gentlemen.

Local Precedence

There is little of a general character that need here be noted. The person highest in rank in a county is the Lord Lieutenant, after whom comes the High Sheriff. In the City of London the order is—Lord Mayor (on City state occasions he ranks next to the Sovereign, in the County of London the Duke of Fife, as Lord Lieutenant, would have pre-eminence), Past Lord Mayors, Recorder, Aldermen, not passed the Chair, Sheriffs, Chamberlain, Town Clerk, Common Sergeant, Comptroller, Remembrancer (no position is yet assigned to the office of Lieutenant, of which there are not far short of four hundred holders). In other corporate towns we have the Mayor first unless there is a High Steward, then the Recorder, Sheriff, and Aldermen. At Oxford and Cambridge the Sheriff takes precedence of the Vice Chancellor.

Precedence in Scotland

The Sovereign
The Lord High Commissioner to the (then) Assembly

OFFICIAL GLOSSARY.

UNDER this heading we are presenting a series of brief explanatory notes upon such Public Establishments, Services, Offices, Observances, &c., as are not supplied in other portions of the Introduction. Necessarily this crowding of so wide a field into so narrow a compass must render the information extremely meagre, often also extremely commonplace. The subjects afford obvious scope for a huge volume by themselves, and that very fact must form an excuse for our treating them thus scantily or not at all. The notices given are intended for the amateur, and in particular the statements in respect of Naval and Military topics must seek pardon as provided for the "mere civilian."

ADJUTANT — An assistant to the Commander of a Regiment. The Adjutant General has the oversight of discipline and training for the entire Army, and has his local or divisional subordinates, termed respectively Deputy Adjutant General, Assistant Adjutant-General, and Deputy Assistant Adjutant-General.

ADMIRALTY — By this body all Naval affairs are controlled, except of course the duties of active service. Formerly they were the concern of the Lord High Admiral, but that office has been practically extinct from 1708, its functions being now entrusted to a group of high officials termed Lords Commissioners, or more commonly Lords of the Admiralty. At their head is the First Lord, who is invariably a member of the Cabinet, whilst the five that follow are also part of the Ministry of the day. These five are known as the First, Second, Third, and Fourth Sea Lords, and the Civil Lord — the Third of these being also styled the Controller, whilst the Fourth must without exception be a Naval Officer. The Parliamentary and Financial Secretary is likewise in the Ministry, and there are also a Permanent Secretary, an Assistant Secretary, the Hydrographer, the Admiral Superintendent of Contract built Ships, the Director-General of the Medical Department, the Engineer-in-Chief (with Deputy and Assistants), the Superintending Electrical Engineers, and the Directors of Naval Intelligence, of Naval Construction (with Assistants and Superintendents of Accounts and of Experiments), of Dockyards (with Superintendents), of Stores, of Naval Ordnance (with Superintendents &c.), of Victualling, of Transports, of Works (with Assistants and Chief Surveyor), of Navy Contracts (with Assistant), of Naval Education, and of Greenwich Hospital, then the Paymaster-in-Chief, the Accountant General (with Deputy), the Chaplain of the Fleet, the Astronomer Royal and the Astronomer at the Cape, the Superintendent of the Nautical Almanac, and those important functionaries, the Naval Attaches at Foreign Courts. In addition to all these leading officials there are a vast number of Superintendents, Inspectors, Constructors, and other Assistants. For the Active Service see "Navy."

ADMIRALTY COURT — This is linked with the Probate and Divorces Division of the High Court of Justice. There is also an Admiralty Court for Ireland, each having its own Judge and other officials, including a King's Proctor and in Ireland a King's Advocate.

AGRICULTURE AND FISHERIES, BOARD OF — This Government Department was established only in 1889 (the extension to Fisheries not being made till 1903), when those duties of the Privy Council which had a bearing upon lands or animals or upon rivers or the sea were transferred to it, as also the control of the Ordnance Survey. Its principal officers are the President Secretary, Legal Adviser, Chief Veterinary Officer, and the Director-General of the Ordnance Survey and Director of the Royal Botanic Gardens at Kew.

AIDES-DE CAMP TO THE KING — These are both Naval and Military, the former holding the rank of Captain (R.N.) and the latter that of Colonel (offices usually equal in rank) they retire on attaining a higher promotion (called in the Navy "Flag Rank"). Prince Louis of Battenberg is a Personal Naval, and the Duke of Connaught, Prince Arthur of Connaught, and Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein are Personal Military A.D.C.'s. There are also a First and Principal Naval A.D.C. and Marine A.D.C.'s. His Majesty has lately appointed also Aides-de Camp General, who are General Officers in the Army. General Officers have also their special A.D.C.'s, who are Captains or Subalterns. Admirals have Flag Lieutenants to perform similar duties.

ALMONER—See "Grand Almoner"

ALNAGFR—See "Great Alnager"

AMBASSADORS—The representatives from England to the leading Foreign Powers, as well as from those Powers to England. They now include France, Germany, Russia, Italy, Austria-Hungary, Turkey, United States, Spain, and Japan. Their official residences are known as Embassies. The representatives to or from second-rate Powers are variously termed Envoys Extraordinary and Ministers Plenipotentiary, and their residences are Legations. In the case of States of a still lower rank, or those not independent, we have the terms Ministers Resident, Consuls-General (sometimes with "and Agents" added), Consuls, Vice-Consuls and Charges d'Affaires, their offices being Legations, Agencies, Consulates General, Consulates, and Vice Consulates.

ARCHES, COURT OF—The highest of the Ecclesiastical Courts, under attachment to the two Archbishops. It is presided over by the Dean of the Arches.

ARMS, COLLEGE OF—See page 80

ARMY—The British Army (for the complete Regiments, numbers, and pay of which see "Whitaker's Almanack") is made up of the following Troops:

Regulars—(I) Cavalry 1st and 2nd Life Guards and the Royal Horse Guards (together termed the Household Cavalry), then 7 Regiments of Dragoon Guards and 21 of Dragoons, Lancers, and Hussars intermixed but consecutively numbered. Cavalry Regiments are commanded by Lieut. Colonels and divided into 3 Squadrons each, these latter being under the command of a Major. A Cavalry Brigade consists of 3 Regiments with some Horse Artillery and Mounted Engineers—(II) Artillery. The Royal Regiment of Artillery is divided into Horse, Field, and Mountain Batteries, with Garrison Companies and Ammunition Columns. Batteries and Companies are commanded by Majors and grouped in Brigades, each under a Lieut. Colonel—(III) Royal Engineers. These are composed of various technical units—Field Troops, Field Companies, Field Parks, Field Depots, Fortress Companies, Railway Companies, Bridging Battalions, Pontoon Troops, Balloon Sections and Depots, Survey, Service, and Training Battalions, Submarine Miners, and Telegraph Battalions. Special training is required for entry into this service—(IV) Infantry. The Grenadier, Coldstream, Scots, and Irish Guards, comprising in all 9 Battalions and called the Household Brigade, also 55 Regiments of the Line—lately known as "Territorial" till that term came to be otherwise appropriated, and formerly designated by numbers—having amongst them various Rifles and Fusiliers, and the Argyll and Sutherland, Cameron, Gordon, Royal, and Seaforth Highlanders. Regiments are divided into Battalions, each commanded by a Lieut. Colonel, and subdivided into 8 companies, each under the command of a Major or Captain. Battalions are organised for war into Brigades of 4 each, whilst 3 Infantry Brigades with a proportion of other Troops form a Division—(V) Army Service Corps. Consists of Transport, Supply, and Service Companies—(VI) Army Medical Service. The Royal Army Medical Corps, with Field Hospitals and Ambulances—(VII) Army Ordnance Corps—(VIII) Army Pay Department—(IX) Army Veterinary Corps—(X) Army Chaplains Department.

Auxiliaries—Hitherto we have designated those severally as the Militia, Imperial Yeomanry, Volunteers, and Reserves, but under the reorganisations of 1903 these terms are largely, though not quite wholly, disappearing, and in their places we are now given the following:—(I) Special Reserves. Formed from the old Militia Corps, and consisting of Field and Garrison Artillery, Engineers, and Infantry, which would be mobilised in time of war to supplement the Regular Army and to make good the incidence of wastage. Each Infantry Regiment of the Line has 1 or sometimes more Special Reserve Battalions, which are numbered consecutively after its 2 or more Regular Battalions—(II) Territorial Force. Formed from the old Imperial Yeomanry and Volunteers, and comprising Cavalry (Yeomanry), Artillery, Engineers, Infantry, Army Service Corps, and Medical Corps, with the Unattached List. The Infantry Battalions are parts of the Line Regiments, and are numbered after the Regular and Reserve Battalions. This force is organised into higher units like the Regular Army, and is administered by County Associations. In case of war, actual or expected, it can be mobilised for service at home. In a large majority of instances the 1st and 2nd Battalions are Regulars, the 3rd Special Reserves, and the 4th and all after it Territorial, but the Rifle Brigade and Kings Royal Rifle Corps and 3 Regiments of the line continue to have 4 Regular Battalions, whilst several County Regiments have each 2 Battalions of Reserves, the City of London Regiment has 4 Regulars, 3 Reserves, and 1 Cadet, the Dublin Fusiliers 3 Reserves. The Hon Artillery Company of London is now absorbed into the Territorial Artillery, but drops the words "of London" from its title.

The Home Army is locally distributed in the following seven Commands, each of which, except the first, is subdivided into two Districts, and has its own General Officer Commanding-in-Chief, with Troops of the various Regiments and Services attached, and in most cases one or more Detachments detailed for Coast Defences.

Aldershot Command—parts of Hants, Berks, and Surrey. Headquarters, Aldershot.

Scottish Command—Districts 1 & 2 (1, Northern Cos to as far S as Bute, Renfrew, Dumfriesshire, and Fife, 2, Southern Cos extending N to Lanark and the three Lothians). Headquarters, Edinburgh.

Western Command—Districts 3 & 4 (3, Cumberland, Westmorland, Lancs, and 1 of Man, 4, Chesh, Salop, Herefd, Monmouth, and Wales). Headquarters, Chester.

Northern Command—Districts 5 & 6 (5, Northumbd, Durham, and Yorks, 6, Lancs, Notts, Rutland, Leic, Derby, and Stafford). Headquarters, York.

Southern Command—Districts 7 & 8 (7, Warwick, Worc, Glos, Oxon, Berks, and Bucks, 8, Hants and S W Cos to Cornwall). Headquarters, Salisbury.

Eastern Command—Districts 9 & 10 (9, Northants, Hunts, Cambs, Beds, Herts, Norfolk, Suffolk, and Essex, 10, Middx, London S of Thames, Surrey, Kent, and Sussex). Headquarters, London (Horse Guards).

Irish Command—Districts 11 & 12 (11, Northn & Eastern Cos, 12, Southern and Western, the dividing line running S of Cos Fermanagh, Cavan, Louth, Dublin, Kildare, and Wicklow). Headquarters, Dublin.

Also the London District (distinct from any Command)—Co London N of Thames. Headquarters, Horse Guards.

The Troops in India consist of portions of the British Regular Army stationed there, and of Native Regular Regiments &c., in addition there are Volunteers (British or Eurasian), and some Imperial Service Troops, raised and maintained by the Independent Native States but turned by British Officers and placed at the disposal of the Imperial Government. The whole are organised in two great field force Commands, known respectively as the Northern and Southern Armies.

In the Colonies and Dependencies, including the Channel Islands, there are (besides in some instances Regular British Troops) Colonial Forces, of two kinds—(1) those raised and maintained at the Imperial expense, (2) those wholly supplied by the Colonies themselves.

The Commissioned Officers in our Army range down as—Field Marshals, Generals, Lieutenant-Generals, Major Generals, Brigadier Generals (usually a temporary appointment), Colonels, Lieutenant-Colonels, Majors, Captains, Lieutenants, and Second Lieutenants (the ranks of Ensign and Cornet are abolished, except that the former is retained in the Royal Company of Archers), and in the Medical Service—Surgeons General, followed by the regular titles from Colonels to Lieutenants. For Warrant Officers we have—Sergeant Majors, Corporal-Majors, Master Gunners, Bandmasters, Conductors and Sub-Conductors in the Ordnance Department, Schoolmasters, and Superintending Clerks. The Non-commissioned Officers comprise such of these as have not obtained the higher qualifications, and with them Colour Sergeants, Sergeants, and Corporals. A Brigade Major is either a Major or Captain on the Staff of a Brigade, a Staff Captain is a Captain performing certain duties on the Staff, a Lance Corporal (called in the Artillery a Bombardier) is a Private promoted on probation, for Adjutant, Commissary, and Quartermaster, as also Aide-de-Camp, Colonel Commandant and Honorary Colonel (Captain, or other Officer, see those separate articles). The Military term "Brevet" denotes promotion to a higher rank in the Army, though not to such in the Officer's own Regiment or Corps. Brevet rank is given as a reward for special services, usually in the field. An Officer is said to be "seconded" (pronounced secun'ded) from his Regiment when holding a Staff or other extra-regimental appointment which necessitates the promotion of another Officer to perform the duties he has vacated.

ARMY COUNCIL—Created in 1904 and holding transfer of the powers and functions previously possessed by the Secretary for War and the Commander-in-Chief. The Secretary is still at its head, and with him are the Chief of the Imperial General Staff (Fus., Military Member), the Adjutant-General (Second ditto), the Quartermaster-General (Third ditto), the Master General of the Ordnance (Fourth ditto), the Parliamentary Under Secretary of State (Civil Member), and the Financial Secretary (Finance Member). The Permanent Under Secretary of State acts as its Secretary.

ASTRONOMERS ROYAL—The first in estimation of these is at the head of Greenwich Observatory. After him come the Astronomer Royal for Scotland, at Edinburgh, the Royal Astronomer for Ireland, at Dublin, and the Government Astronomer at the Cape. The first and last of the four are officials of the Admiralty.

ATTACHÉS—These are both Naval and Military, their attachment being to the Embassies or Legations at foreign capitals, whilst their duties consist in ascertaining by honourable means, and reporting to the Home Government, any movements or changes in their respective lines of service. Of the Naval Attachés there is one each at St Petersburg, Berlin, Paris (with an Assistant), Rome, and Tokio, of the Military there are twelve, nearly all of whom have to give attention to more than one centre. There are also Commercial and general Attachés.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL—The first legal adviser of the Government, of which he is invariably a member and is knighted. He also conducts State prosecutions and suits for matters concerning the Sovereign, but is free to act in private cases when not interfering, of course, with his official duties. The Attorney-General for Ireland is also a member of the Government, but he does not receive knighthood as such, nor is it even held essential that he should be a Member of Parliament. The corresponding Scottish official is the Lord Advocate.

BANKRUPTCY COURT OR —The fourth Division of the High Court of Justice. See under "Lord Chief Justice."

BLOCHAMBER, LADIES AND WOMEN OF—The former of these are invariably Peeresses, the latter are also of high rank but inferior to the former. The only duties of either at the present day are those of attendance at Courts and ceremonies. In the time of George the Second they were personally present at the toilet of the Queen. Both "Ladies" and "Women" are like styled Ladies-in-Waiting.

BEEF-EATERS—A conventional name for Yeomen of the Guard and Warders of the Tower. See under the former, where two suggestions for its origin are given.

BLACK ROD—This official, who is mentioned under Order of the Garter, is the senior of the Gentlemen Ushers Daily Waiters, and holds his appointment by patent. The staff or wand which he carries gives him his designation, his principal duty being attendance at the House of Lords, where he acts in the maintenance of order, summons the Commons when required, and appoints subordinate officials.

BOARD—See under the various Departments.

BODY GUARDS—See "Gentlemen-at-Arms," "Royal Co. of Archers," and "Yeomen of the Guard."

CABINET, THE—A committee of the leading members of the Government, whose number has ranged of late years from fourteen to twenty, all of whom are Privy Counsellors, and, generally speaking, the only acting members of that body. The following Ministers are regularly included: the First Lord of the Treasury, the Lord Chancellor, the Lord President of the Council, the Lord Privy Seal, the five Secretaries of State, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and the First Lord of the Admiralty. It rests with the Premier to decide how many and whom he shall add to these eleven, and they have variously been taken from the Lord Lieutenant and Lord Chancellor of Ireland, the Presidents of the Boards of Trade, Agriculture, Education, and the Local Government Board, the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, the Postmaster-General, the Commissioner of Works and Buildings, the Chief Secretary for Ireland, and the Secretary for Scotland. The deliberations of this body, which is assembled at any time on the summons of the Premier, are regarded as strictly confidential, its proceedings not being recorded nor itself even recognised officially as a body.

CAP OF MAINTENANCE—The particular cap known by this title is one which is borne by the Marquess of Winchester upon certain State occasions, and is quite different from the one figured in coats of arms and imitated on our title page under the less frequent name of "Cap of Dignity" The one now under notice is something like a cap taken out of a crown it has the ermine border, but is stiffened and widened towards the top, where it is again narrowed to a point and hangs loosely down on one side with a tassel It is borne in processions on a short staff

CENSUS OFFICE—See under "Registrar General"

CHAMBERLAIN—See "Lord Chamberlain" and "Lord Gt Chamberlain"

CHAMPION OF ENGLAND—See "King's Champion" as per Index to Introd

CHANCELLOR, LORD—See "Lord High Chancellor"

CHANCELLOR OF THE DUCHY OF LANCASTER—The once Palatine Duchy of Lancaster has been merged in the Crown ever since the accession of Henry the Fourth Its revenues are thus vested in the Sovereign, who receives from them about £50,000, the total nett income being some £100,000

CHANCELLOR OF THE EXCHEQUER—The first Finance Minister of the Crown, responsible for the annual balance of revenue and expenditure The office of First Lord of the Treasury has no special connection with this, though of course when held by the Premier it is paramount over this as all other Departments The Chancellor is still unrecognised in the Scale of Precedence

CHANCERY, COURT OF—See under "Lord High Chancellor"

CHAPELS ROYAL—Of these there are two in St James's Palace (one of them styled the Marlborough House Chapel) and one at Hampton Court Palace—all three being governed by the Dean of the Chapels Royal, who is usually the Bishop of London, but chosen by the Sovereign There is also the Chapel Royal of the Savoy, which is in the Sovereign's private list as a "Royal Peculiar" and not under the Dean's jurisdiction

CHAPLAINS TO THE KING—Attached to the Household there are the Domestic Chaplains, Chaplains in Ordinary, Honorary Chaplains, Priests in Ordinary, Honorary Priests, and Deputy Priests, and in both the Navy and Army there are his Honorary Chaplains, and in Scotland his Chaplains in Ordinary

CHARITY COMMISSIONERS—This is a body of four gentlemen known respectively as Chief, Second, Third, and Fourth Commissioners, appointed originally in 1853 for the better administration of charitable trusts Their duty was afterwards extended to a supervision of endowed schools, but in 1902 this was again modified so as to transfer to the Board of Education such endowments as were educational exclusively

CHIEF BUTLER—An office now nominal only It descends by heredity to the Earl of Arundel (Duke of Norfolk), but the names of other claimants were recorded at the last Coronation The offices of Chief Cup Bearer and Chief Larderer (see others under "Grand Falconer") stand in a like position, for all three were concerned with the after proceedings in Westminster Hall which are now discontinued at Coronations

CHURCH ESTATES COMMISSIONERS—See under "Ecclesiastical Commissioners"

CINQUE PORTS—These, as the name signifies were originally five—Dover, Hastings, Hythe, Romney, and Sandwich—but Rye and Winchelsea were added, and at the last Coronation the "Barons of the Cinque Ports" were allowed to send one of their number from each of these seven towns as well as from Dev, Faversham, Folkestone, Lydd, Margate, Ramsgate, and Tenterden indeed we hear of a still larger number, for a claim was made from the Ports for sixteen of their Barons to hold a canopy over the King and sixteen more over the Queen Eighteen in all were invited, and the fourteen enumerated were understood to be participants The office of Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports, once held by the great Duke of Wellington, is no longer invested with more than a slight power of jurisdiction, at one time the Warden was a judge of appeal from the local courts, but could still be appealed from to the King's Bench, though we read that the "King's ordinary writ did not run" in the Ports

CIVIL SERVICE—This term comprises the officials in the generality of those Departments which are not Naval or Military, though not all of those which are broadly given under that heading are strictly so regarded, and exceptions may be noted in the College of Arms, Trinity House, the Thames Conservancy, the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, the Meteorological Council, the Duchies of Cornwall and Lancaster, the County Palatine of Durham, the Salford Court of Record, and Queen Anne's Bounty The Civil Service Commission, which has no administration as to any of these, was established in 1855, and had its functions extended to the care of competitive examinations in 1870. Its leading officers are the First and Second Commissioners.

CLERK OF THE CHEQUE—There is one of these officials to each of the two English Body Guards of His Majesty.

COASTGUARD—The duties of this service are by no means restricted to the prevention of smuggling, but comprehend the reporting of the passage of vessels, and the watching of those in distress. It can also be utilised as a reserve for the Fleet. Every man serving in it must have been for a term in the Navy as a Gunner or Torpedo-man, must be able to swim, not over 37 at appointment, and must have a good-conduct badge. The whole is under the Admiral Superintendent of Naval Reserves, and the coasts are divided into the nine districts of Newhaven, Weymouth, Harwich, Hull, Leith, Clyde, Holyhead, Kingstown, and Limerick.

COCKADES—The Cockade, in present English usage, is a distinction of office rather than of title, it being a badge on the head dress which can legally be worn only by servants of Royalty and of Naval and Military Officers, diplomats, and the Lords Lieutenant, Deputy Lieutenants, and High Sheriffs of Counties. With these its colour is black—circular with a projecting fan for Military and semi-military men, and oval without fan for Naval Officers. There is also the Royal Cockade, much like the Military, but rather larger. Its introduction into England in these forms was due to the House of Hanover, those who adopted it signifying thereby their allegiance to that House, but cockades of various colours had been here known long previous to their time. Under Charles the First there was a scarlet cockade, but under his son the colour was changed to white, and "the white cockade" became the badge of the Pretenders or Jacobites, as the orange was that of King William (in accord with his title "Prince of Orange," a small principality now belonging to France). At that date "to mount the cockade" implied simply "to become a soldier," the white or orange denoting the party. The latter is still the colour in Holland, whilst other European nations adopt a large variety of hues, as is shown occasionally in the streets of London by the foreign liveries of carriage attendants—black and white for Prussia, black, white, and red for Germany, black and yellow for Austria, blue and white for Bavaria, the tricolour for France, scarlet for Spain, and black, red, and yellow for Belgium. The word was borrowed from the French cocarde, having originally been applied to the plumes of cocks' feathers worn by Croatian soldiers serving in the French army. Some such a plume, or in its place a bunch of ribbons, came to be used in pinning up the flaps of the hat into a cocked position, and thus gradually the word passed for the name of the "cocked" hat itself. (This paragraph is mainly based upon an article by Mr F. Lee Carter in the Genealogical Magazine for June 1899.)

COLLEGES AND SCHOOLS (Naval and Military)—Of the Naval establishments we have the Royal Naval Colleges of Greenwich, Dartmouth, and Osborne, the Royal Naval Engineering College at Devonport, the Royal Naval War College at Portsmouth, the Royal Hospital School at Greenwich, the Dockyard Schools at Chatham, Devonport, Pembroke, Portsmouth, and Sheerness, and the Royal Naval School of Music at Eastney, Portsmouth. For the Army there is a much longer list: the Royal Military Academy at Woolwich, the Royal Military College at Sandhurst, the Staff College at Camberley, the Ordnance College at Woolwich, the Royal Army Medical College at Millbank, the Indian Staff College at Quetta, the School of Gunnery at Shoeburyness, of Musketry at Hythe and Bloemfontein, of Military Engineering at Chatham, the Cavalry School at Netheravon, the Army Service Corps and the Royal Army Medical Corps Schools of Instruction at Aldershot, the Army Veterinary School at the same, the Schools of Electrical Lighting at Portsmouth and Plymouth, the School of Instruction for Mounted Infantry at Longmoor (Hants.), the Balloon School at South Farnborough, and the Royal Military School of Music at Kneller Hall, Hounslow (near rather to Twickenham).

COLONEL COMMANDANT—An honour conferred upon distinguished General Officers of the Royal Regiment of Artillery, of the Corps of Royal Engineers, of the King's Royal Rifle Corps, and of the Rifle Brigade. The term is also applied to Officers actually serving in command of Divisions of the Royal Marine Artillery and Light Infantry.

COLONIES, SECRETARY OF STATE FOR—As a distinct office this dates only from the time of the Crimean War in 1854, having from 1794 up till that date been conjoined with the Secretaryship for War. Its duties comprehend the appointment of Governors and Crown Agents, together with a certain oversight of Colonial legislation, which varies according to the degree of self-governing power which each Colony possesses. There are about 45 Crown Colonies, but in some additional instances there is no regular administration formed, the territories being more or less under the control of Companies. India, of course, is not reckoned a Colony, and is under the charge of its own Secretary of State, with it are included not only Burma, but Aden, Perim, Socotra, and the Laccadive, Nicobar, and Andaman Islands. Under Crown Colonies, however, are classed Ceylon, the Malay States, Straits Settlements, and the East Indies. Ascension is administered by the Admiralty.

COMMANDER IN CHIEF—As head of the British Army this office is abolished, its functions being now exercised by the Army Council. The title is, however, retained in India and some Colonies, and in the Fleets and other divisions of the Navy. There is also a General Officer Commanding in Chief in each of the Commands under which the Home Army is now distributed.

COMMISSARY—In the Army this was formerly the designation of an Officer in charge of victualling, forage, &c. (Commissariat), and in the Indian Army the office is still retained, along with the Deputy and Assistant Commissary. Formerly there was also a Commissary-General.—In the Church the same term denotes a Bishop's deputy or agent, who may be either spiritual or lay according to the duties required of him.

COMMISSIONERS—See the various Departments.

COMMITTEE FOR PRIVILEGES OF THE HOUSE OF LORDS—The body of Law Lords by which are decided all claims to Peerages or to titles implying any measure of connection therewith.

COMPTROLLER AND AUDITOR GENERAL—The duties of this functionary comprise examination of the daily accounts of moneys paid into the Banks of England and Ireland to credit of the Exchequer, also the quarterly accounts of the Consolidated Fund and the grant of credits authorised by Parliament. He has further to ascertain that moneys are actually expended in accordance with the purposes designed.

COMPTROLLER OF THE HOUSEHOLD—The officer ranking next after the Treasurer in the Lord Steward's Department.

COMPTROLLER OF THE LORD CHAMBERLAIN'S DEPARTMENT—The superintendent of accounts and the acting permanent head of the Department except as stated under "Lord Chamberlain."

CONSISTORY COURTS—These Courts, of which every Archbishop and Bishop has his own, are for the determination of ecclesiastical questions within the Province or Diocese.

CONSTABLE OF THE TOWER—See "Tower."

CONSUL—An accredited representative from England to some important town in a foreign country, or to or from a petty State, his duties being largely of a mercantile character. Sometimes he bears the title of Consul-General, or even with the word Agent prefixed, but this is most frequently the case when there are several Consulates in the same country and the one in question ranks at their head. There are also numerous Vice-Consuls. Many of both ranks are unsalaried. See further under "Ambassador."

CORNWALL, DUCHY OF—The revenues of this Duchy accrue to the Sovereign's eldest son (Duke of Cornwall) from the time of his birth, and if the title has been dormant they accumulate at interest till a successor appears. The annual amount paid to the Prince is now about £70,000, the total income being some £130,000. For the personal conditions attaching to the title see under "Prince of Wales" as per Index.

COURT DRESS—In the official work lately published under the title of 'Dress Worn at Court' there are detailed instructions given for the apparel of Gentlemen Functionaries of every class. For us to include all these would be simply to reprint the book, we must content ourselves with the directions to be followed by civilians who wear no distinctive uniform. For Courts, Levees, and Evening State Parties the choice is given between Velvet Court Dress of either New or Old Style and Cloth Court Dress, for Dinners, Balls, and Receptions the rule is Frock Dress. We here give the first and last of these in full, the others only so far as they differ from the first.

Velvet Court Dress, New Style—Coat of black silk velvet, stand collar, single-breasted, cut narrow, so that the fronts do not meet, plain gauntlet cuffs, imitation pocket flaps hung from the waist seam, and with three points on the lower edge, six out steel buttons (of a specially-embossed pattern figured in the book) on right forepart with corresponding notched holes on left, two buttons on each inner edge of the skirts (tails), one each being on the waist seam and one on the lower extremity, pockets in breast and in tails, lining of white silk for bod, and black for skirts. Waistcoat, white satin or black silk velvet, without collar, but with four small buttons to match coat. Breeches of black silk velvet with three small steel buttons above a steel buckle on outer side of each knee. Hose, black silk. Shoes, black patent leather with steel buckles. Hat, either black beaver or a silk cocked hat with steel loop on a black silk cockade or rosette. White bow Necktie and white Gloves. Sword, steel hilt with black scabbard and steel mountings, attached to a black silk web waist belt worn under the waistcoat, with black velvet frog for the sword. At Levees, Trousers of black silk velvet, with plain military patent leather boots may be worn.

Velvet Court Dress, Old Style—The variations on the preceding are these. Coat with seven buttons instead of six, and the foreparts meeting at the third button, where a hook-and-eye secures them, the gauntlet cuffs have three buttons on the back edges, and three notched holes, flaps (imitation pockets) have a button under each of the three points, on the inner edge of each tail there is a third button, midway between the upper and lower ones. A lace full and ruffles hanging from the collar in front to below the second button, and at the back a "wig bag" or "flash" of black silk is similarly attached and hangs to between the shoulders. Waistcoat with skirted fronts and with pointed flaps to pockets, with three buttons under each flap. Sling sword hung by slings to waist-belt (Trousers not to be substituted).

Cloth Court Dress—Varied from above New Style as follows. Coat of dark coloured cloth, either mulberry, claret, or green, the six button holes blind or dummy, lining wholly black silk, gold embroidery on collar, cuffs, and flaps, the buttons gilt, convex, with mounted imperial (heraldic) crown. Waistcoat, white corded silk or white varoella, buttons to match coat, but smaller. Breeches, same cloth as coat, with cloth buttons and gilt buckles. Shoes also with gilt buckles. Hat, if cocked, with the loop gold and button gilt. Court dress Sword with gilt hilt and gold knob, the scabbard with gilt mountings and the belt with frog of cloth. At Levees, trousers of same cloth as coat, with row of gold lace down side seams.

A black or very dark Inverness Cape or long full dark Overcoat may be worn with either of the above three styles.

Black Dress—Black evening dress Coat lapelled, optionally faced with silk. Black or white evening-dress Vest. Breeches of plain black evening-dress material or stockinet, with three small black cloth or silk buttons and small jet or black buckles at the knees. Hose of black silk. Shoes, plain Court with bows, no buckles. Hat, a corded silk folding cocked hat with black loop and rosette. Necktie, a white evening-dress bow. Gloves white. (No sword.)

For Ladies—But one page of the 135 in the above volume is devoted to these. They must appear in full dress with trains and plumes, the feathers to be clearly seen on approaching the Presence, and they must not be coloured, though in half mourning either black and white, white, mauve, or grey, should be worn, and in deep mourning black are admissible. White Veils or Lappets and white Gloves, but the latter may be black or grey in mourning. The trains are stated (elsewhere) to be borne over the left arm until entering, when the attendants spread them out. For ladies to whom illness or infirmity renders low dresses inadvisable the King has sanctioned the adoption of "High Court Dress," for which, however, previous permission must be obtained through the Lord Chamberlain. They can thus present themselves with Bodices in front, cut square or heart shape, and allowed to be filled in with white only, either transparent or lined, at the back high, or cut down thus quarter height sleeves to elbow, either thick or transparent.

COURT OF APPEAL—The Supreme Court of Judicature next to the House of Lords. It consists of the Lord Chancellor, the Master of the Rolls, and the President of the Probate Court, with five Lords Justices.

COURT OF CLAIMS—A body of members of the Privy Council formed by special commission previous to a Coronation, their office being to determine the validity of claims to appear at that ceremony. A Lord High Steward is appointed to preside.

COURTS AND DRAWING-ROOMS—The latter were the customary assemblies until the accession of King Edward, but they are now abandoned for the former. Ladies who have been previously presented at either must, if desirous of a second attendance, send in their names in writing to the Lord Chamberlain, after which as many as can be accommodated will receive invitations to attend, but this is not, unless exceptionally permitted, more than once in three years. They can then each present her own daughters and daughters-in-law and one debutante, whose first access can only be obtained through such introduction. Gentlemen are exceptionally allowed to accompany the ladies of their family.

CROWN AGENTS FOR THE COLONIES—The Crown Colonies are commercially represented in London by Agents appointed by the Secretary of State (see "Colonies"). Self-governing Colonies have their own Agents-General or High Commissioners.

CUSTOMS, CHAIRMAN AND COMMISSIONER OF—"Customs" is the term applied to the duties on imports and exports (the latter almost confined to coal), whilst "Excise" relates to home manufacture and consumption. The two Departments were in 1909 amalgamated, and the joint Board of Customs and Excise transferred from the office of Inland Revenue to that of Customs and Excise in Lower Thames Street. It consists of a Chairman, Deputy Chairman, and Commissioners.

CUSTOS ROTULORUM—The Lord Lieutenant of a county (in Ireland "Lieutenant"), so styled as having charge of the county sessions rolls.

DEPUTY LIEUTENANTS—Gentlemen so appointed by the Lord Lieutenant of their county. Three of them jointly can act in his absence, unless he has also appointed a Vice Lieutenant.

DRAWING-ROOMS—See "Courts."

DURHAM, COUNTY PALATINE OF—The Bishop of this county was granted Palatine privileges by Prince Guthrum, and they were retained until 1836, when the Crown annexed them. In their original form they practically made the county an independent kingdom in alliance with England.

EARL MARSHAL—Some information as to this high office is given in the Directory under the Duke of Norfolk, its hereditary holder, and its position at the head of the English College of Arms will be seen under that section in the Introduction. The Earl Marshal has the arrangement of state ceremonies and processions as well as the granting of armorial bearings.

ECCLESIASTICAL COMMISSIONERS—This important body, whose proceedings are continually being reported in the Gazette, consists of all the English Archbishops and Bishops, the Deans of Canterbury, St Paul's, and Westminster, the Lord Chancellor, and at present 19 other officials, noblemen, and gentlemen, whose names or offices are given in 'Whitaker's Almanack'. They have power to divide or unite parishes and to portion off new ecclesiastical districts. Three of their number have a special function assigned them under the designation of Church Estates Commissioners. Over 300,000 acres of land are under control of the Commission.

ECCLESIASTICAL COURTS—See "Arches," "Faculties," and "Peculiarities."

EDUCATION, BOARD OF—This Board was established by an Act of 1899 which abolished the Committee of Privy Council to whom the duties had previously been entrusted. It consists of a President, Parliamentary Secretary, Permanent Secretary, and ditto for Wales, and a Consultative Committee. It has also its Legal Assistant, Chief Medical Officer, &c.

EMBASSIES—See under "Ambassadors."

ENVOIS—See the same.

EQUERRIES—These officials accompany the Sovereign's carriage on state occasions. The Chief or Crown Equerry, who was formerly styled Gentleman of the Horse, is the next officer to the Master of the Horse.

ESTATES OF THE REALM—The three classes constituting the Legislature—the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal, and the Commons.

EXCISE DEPARTMENT—For the distinction between this and Customs see the latter. The Chief Inspector and several grades of subordinates constitute the staff, but it is now removed from the Inland Revenue Office at Somerset House to the Custom House at Lower Thames Street, E.C.

EXONS—See "Yeomen of the Guard."

FACULTIES, COURT OF—An Ecclesiastical Court presided over by a Master, who is the Dean of the Arches. It has, besides some other dispensations, the issuing of marriage licences, which must be applied for at the Vicar General's office.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS, SECRETARY OF STATE FOR—The official agent between the Crown and Foreign Governments. He has the negotiation of treaties, the transaction of all Ministerial correspondence abroad, and the appointment of Ambassadors, Consuls, &c. Among the numerous changes in the functions and nomenclature of Secretaries of State we find that from 1761 to 1782 there existed two such Secretaries only, one being styled "for the Northern" and one "for the Southern Department," and to these two officials were committed not only the Foreign Affairs connected with those two divisions of Europe and the World but also the entire business transacted by all five of the present Secretaries of State. A special Foreign Secretary and a Home Secretary were constituted in 1782, a War Secretary in 1794, a Colonial Secretary in 1854, and an Indian Secretary in 1858.

FRIENDLY SOCIETIES REGISTRY—A central office established in 1875 for observing the due carrying out of Acts relating to such institutions as Savings Banks, Provident Societies, Trade Unions, &c.

GENTLEMEN-AT-ARMS, HON. CORPS OF—This Body Guard of the Sovereign, formerly called Gentlemen Pensioners, consists of retired Officers of the Regular Army or Marines. These are entitled to form "the nearest guard and principal military corps of the Household of the Sovereign." They have a Lieutenant, Standard Bearer, and Clerk of the Cheque.

GENTLEMEN USHERS—Of these there are now four classes: 1, Gentlemen Ushers of the Privy Chamber, who come nearest in association to the King, attending him at chapel, and conducting him in the absence of the Lord Chamberlain; 2, Gentlemen Ushers Daily Waiters, who officiate monthly by turns in the Presence Chamber, their senior being Black Rod; 3, Gentlemen Ushers Quarterly Waiters, who attend in the absence of the preceding class; 4, Gentlemen Usher to the Robes, a new appointment substituted for that of Groom of the Stole (below).

GOLD STICKS—This appointment falls in turn to the Colonels of the Regiments of Household Cavalry. The Captain-General of the Royal Company of Archers is Gold Stick for Scotland. The officer holding the appointment of Gold Stick walks behind the Sovereign on state occasions, bearing a gold-headed staff.

GRAND ALMONER OF ENGLAND, THE HEREDITARY—An officer who attends at a Coronation to distribute certain alms collected on the occasion. Under him are the Lord High Almoner and Sub Almoner. The Marquess of Exeter is Grand Almoner.

GRAND FALCONER, THE HEREDITARY—A nominal post held by the Duke of St Albans. There were formerly also the offices of Grand Carver and Grand Pantryman, the duty of the latter being to bear the salt, bread, and knives for the King's dining-table, whilst the Sciver or Dapifer arranged the dishes at a Coronation banquet. Compare under "Chief Butler" above.

GREAT ALNAGER OF IRELAND—An Alnager was formerly an official having the duty of examining woollen cloth, and the title of Great Alnager (which is hereditary in the line of the Lords de Blaquerna) denotes an honorary headship of these.

GREAT SEAL—See under "Lord Privy Seal."

GREEN CLOTH, BOARD OF—A synonym for the Lord Steward's Department, located at Buckingham Palace.

GROOM OF THE STOLE—An office now extinct, formerly the designation of the senior Lord of the Bedchamber. It gave place under a female Sovereign to the post of Mistress of the Robes, now to the Gentleman Usher to the Robes. The Stole is the long robe worn by a King on state occasions.

GROOMS-IN-WAITING—These officials rank next after Lords-in-Waiting and attend the Sovereign in rotation.

HERALDS' COLLEGE—See page 80.

HERITABLE MASTER OF HIS MAJESTY'S HOUSEHOLD IN SCOTLAND—An office held by the Duke of Argyll.

HIGH COMMISSIONERS—The title borne by the Governors of Cyprus and of the British Islands in the Pacific, also by the representatives in London of the Dominions of Canada, New Zealand, Australia and South Africa. See also "Lord High Commissioner."

HIGH SHERIFFS—See "Sheriffs," their more correct title.

HOME DEPARTMENT, SECRETARY OF STATE FOR—This functionary, who ranks first of the five Secretaries of State, has the charge of all internal affairs that are not specially allotted to other officers (as the Chancellor of the Exchequer, the Postmaster-General, and the various Commissioners). He has the oversight of peace and order at home and the exercise of mercy towards capital and other criminals, also the particular Departments of Inspection of Mines, Factories, Prisons, and Explosives, as well as under the Aliens Act, the Insanities Act, the Cruelty to Animals Act, &c. See under "Foreign Secretary."

HONORARY COLONEL—The term has a two fold significance. First, that of the honour conferred, in the case of the Regular Army, upon distinguished General Officers, and in the case of the old Constitution of force and the Territorial Service, upon distinguished officers or country residents, by placing them at the head of a Regiment (usually that in which the recipient of the honour has served). Secondly, that of honorary rank, superior to that held in the regiment, conferred upon regimental officers of the Auxiliary Forces after a specified length of service as Lieutenant Colonels.

HORNING, KEEPER OF THE REGISTERS OF—"Horning" is the Scottish term for a form of personal service for debt. Letters of Horning are issued in the Sovereign's name and pass the Signet, instructing messengers to call upon the debtor to pay, on his failure to do so a "caption" or warrant of apprehension is granted.

HOUSEHOLD, THE ROYAL—See under the various offices.

INDIA, SECRETARY OF STATE FOR—The title expresses the duties of this office. See "Colonies" in the outlying islands, and "Foreign Affairs" for the time of its separate institution, also "Viceroy."

INLAND REVENUE OFFICES—These are located at Somerset House and fall under the divisions of Taxes, Stamps, and Estate Duties. The leading officials are the Chairman, Deputy Chairman, and Commissioners, and in addition Special Commissioners of Income Tax, Joint Secretaries, Chief Inspectors of Taxes Department, the Secretary of the Estate Duty Office, the Accountant and Comptroller General, and the Controller and Registrar of Stamps.

INSIGNIA, RETURN OR REFLECTION OF—Under each Order of Knighthood we have given the official directions for its own case, but there may be a convenience in our here tabulating the entire series.

To be returned at Death to St James's Palace. K G, K T, K P, G C B (except as below), Star of India (all Classes), G C I E, K C I E.

To be retained by relative. G C B Star and Badge, K C B, G B, SS Mich and George (all Classes), C I E, Roy Vict Order (all Classes) O M, D S O, and I S O.

To be returned on Promotion to a higher Class in same Order. All lower Classes to St James's Palace, except those of Roy Vict Order, which go to Privy Purse.

INSPECTOR-GENERAL OF THE FORCES—This is an office created since the abolition of that of Commander-in-Chief, and receives the highest pay (£5000) of any Officer in the Army, the Chief of the Staff figuring next. A separate "Inspector-General of the Overseas Forces" has been lately appointed.

INVESTITURE—The ceremony of investing new Knights and Companions by the Sovereign.

IRELAND, CHIEF SECRETARY TO THE LORD LIEUTENANT OF—This official is invariably a member of the House of Commons, and latterly has been also of the Cabinet. When his superior does not belong to the latter body he is the medium between the Government and Irish affairs. His offices are at the Castle, Dublin, and Old Queen Street, London.

IRELAND, LORD CHANCELLOR OF—See under "Lord High Chancellor."

IRELAND, LORD HIGH STEWARD OF—See under "Lord High Steward."

IRELAND, LORD LIEUTENANT OF—The Viceroy or Deputy Sovereign of Ireland, charged with executive administration. He holds Courts and Levees and has the power of conferring Knighthood and of appointing Irish Privy Counsellors, also of commuting sentences upon criminals.

IRISH CONSTABULARY—See "Royal Irish Constabulary."

JUDGE ADVOCATE-GENERAL—Both in the Navy and Army there is an official bearing this title, his function being to superintend generally the administration of justice.

KEEPER OF THE PRIVY PURSE—One of the highest or the personal officers of His Majesty. The Privy Purse was made a fixed annual sum under the Regency, and its present amount is £110,000.

KEW ROYAL BOTANIC GARDENS—These gardens were founded in 1759 by the Dowager Princess of Wales (Princess Augusta). They are now under the control of the Board of Agriculture (late of the Office of Works), and are managed by a Director, with a staff of keepers, curators, and other assistants.

- KING'S ADVOCATE and KING'S PROCTOR—See under "Admiralty Court"
- KING'S BENCH, COURT OF—See "Lord Chief Justice"
- KING'S BODY GUARDS—The Hon. Corps of Gentlemen-at-Arms, the Yeomen of the Guard, and (Scotland) the Royal Company of Archers
- KING'S COUNSEL—Barristers, specially so dignified by the King. They are distinguished by the wearing of silk gowns (hence "took silk" at such a date). The title is dropped on their attaining to a Judgeship in one of the higher Courts (not a County Court nor as a Recorder). See page 23 as to retention by a Peer
- LABORATORIES, GOVERNMENT—A distinct Department, except that by its Deputy Principal it has connection with the Inland Revenue Office
- LABORATORY, NATIONAL PHYSICAL—An establishment at Bushy House, Teddington, devoted specially to the standardising of instruments used in optics, meteorology, electricity, metallurgy, and engineering. It is in part associated with the Kew Observatory
- LADIES IN-WAITING—See "Bedchamber"
- LANCASTER, DUCHY OF—See "Chancellor"
- LEGATION—See under "Ambassadors"
- LEVEES—This word (commonly but improperly spelt with an accent, the French word levée having no such meaning) denotes the attendances and presentations at Court of Gentlemen, as "Courts" is applied (more especially, though not quite exclusively) to the like visits of ladies. Admission is to be obtained by application to the Lord Chamberlain, but Officers of the Navy or Army, or persons connected with India, the Colonies, or any Government Department, should apply respectively to the First Lord of the Admiralty, the Adjutant-General, the Private Secretary to the Secretary for India or the Colonies, or an official connected with such other Department as may include themselves, legal gentlemen to the Secretary to the Lord Chancellor
- LIEUTENANT OF THE TOWER—See under "Tower, Constable of"
- LIEUTENANTS OF THE CITY OF LONDON—These gentlemen are chosen by the Lord Mayor and appointed by the Home Secretary, the appointment being for life unless for some valid reason. The present number is between 350 and 400, and is made up chiefly of Aldermen, Deputies, Members of Parliament for the City, Directors of the Bank of England, and personal friends of the appointing Lord Mayor
- LOCAL GOVERNMENT BOARD—This Board is one of the former Committees of the Privy Council, being then known as the Poor Law Board, but in 1871 it was divided off under its present appellation. It consists of the Lord President of the Council, the Lord Privy Seal, the Secretaries of State, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and its own President and head, who, with his Parliamentary and Permanent Secretary and a numerous staff of officials, transacts the actual business, the Board never meeting in any formal capacity. It constitutes the central authority for county, municipal, sanitary, and Poor Law administration in England and Wales. There are separate Boards for Scotland and Ireland
- LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL—For full particulars, including list of members, see "Whitaker's Almanack" (The London School Board is now absorbed in it)
- LORD ADVOCATE—The principal Law Officer of the Crown in Scotland, corresponding to the Attorney-General in England and Ireland. He is the leading Scottish Minister in the Commons unless the Secretary for Scotland is also a member of that House
- LORD CHAMBERLAIN OF THE HOUSEHOLD—To this functionary is entrusted the control of all the officers and servants "above stairs," as the Lord Steward presides over those "below." But not only the Bedchamber and Wardrobe, but also the State Band, the Sergeants-at-Arms, Trumpeters, Messengers, &c., and the Royal Physicians, Surgeons, Chaplains, and officers of the Chapels Royal, are all under his charge, and he has the regulation of Courts and Levees, the custody of furniture in the Houses of Parliament, and also the licensing of dramatic entertainments. In his absence the Vice-Chamberlain acts as his deputy, at other times he is his assistant
- LORD CHIEF JUSTICE OF ENGLAND—The President of the King's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice, in which Court are now merged those of Exchequer and Common Pleas. There are 14 additional Judges, all holding knighthood and designated "Honourable," as are the Judges and Justices in the following Courts: the Court of Chancery (Lord Chancellor and six Judges), the Court of Probate, Divorce, and Admiralty (President, who is "Right Hon.," and one Justice); and the Court of Bankruptcy (one Justice)
- LORD GREAT CHAMBERLAIN—This hereditary office—the history of which is given in the Directory under its last holder, the Marquess of Cholmondeley—is of great dignity at the time of a Coronation by virtue of his holding the control of the Palace of Westminster, he is also to the fore at the opening of Parliament by the Sovereign or at the trial of a Peer or Peeress, but has none of the various duties of the Lord Chamberlain above. On the Coronation Day he attends the King in his bedroom and hands him his wearing apparel, at the main ceremony he stands on his left, fastens the clasp of the imperial mantle, and arrays him in his purple robes before leaving the Abbey, he also serves the King with water for washing his hands before the banquet. The fitting up of Westminster Hall when required for a state purpose used to fall to his lot, but this use of the Hall is now in abeyance. He receives "forty ells of crimson velvet for his own robes," and is entitled to the gilt basin and the towels used at the above hand washing, and also now some £200 in lieu of the furniture of the King's bedroom, his former perquisites.

LORD HIGH ADMIRAL—This office is now held in Commission, as stated under "Admiralty."

LORD HIGH CHANCELLOR OF ENGLAND—The nobleman holding this post is the highest judicial officer of the Crown and the first lay person after the Royal Family, ranking as he does between the two Archbishops. He is created by the mere delivery of the Great Seal into his custody, and is nominally the appointee of the Crown, though in modern usage he holds office with the Government of the day. He is ex officio a Privy Councillor and Speaker of the House of Lords (see under that House), and issues writs for the assembling of Parliament. He appoints all Judges of both Superior and County Courts, as well as all Justices of the Peace, and presides over the Court of Chancery and the Supreme Court of Judicature. He possesses a special jurisdiction over matters relating to charities and trusts, is visitor of royal foundations, patron of Crown livings, and guardian (through the Masters in Lunacy) of infants, idiots, and lunatics. The style has been accorded him of "Keeper of the King's Conscience." Till the time of James the First this post did not carry with it an hereditary peerage, but such is invariably now conferred if not already possessed. Formerly it was held by ecclesiastics, especially by the Archbishop of Canterbury. Cardinal Wolsey's name occurs prominently in this connection, but King Henry, when bent upon overthrowing the Church, transferred the appointment to Sir Thomas More. The Lord Chancellor of Ireland is not necessarily a Peer, his functions, however, are similar as far as can be.

LORD HIGH CONSTABLE OF ENGLAND—An office once hereditary but now held temporarily only, being granted at each Coronation to some distinguished person (in 1902 the Duke of Fife), whose duty it then became to accompany the Earl Marshal in the procession and during the ceremony.

LORD HIGH CONSTABLE OF SCOTLAND—This post continues to be hereditary, and is vested in the Earl of Erroll, who is thus entitled to walk in the Coronation procession carrying a silver baton tipped with gold at each end, and beneath those tips the Sovereign's arms at one end and his own at the other.

LORD HIGH STEWARD—Another office which (as far as England is concerned) has ceased to be hereditary and is conferred by special appointment at a Coronation (in 1902 on the Duke of Marlborough). The Peer chosen walks immediately in front of the Sovereign, carrying St. Edward's Crown upon a velvet cushion, he is attired in white satin and gold under dress, with a long red mantle and ermine tippet. For his appointment and functions on the trial of a Peer see as per Index. The Lord High Steward of Scotland is the Prince of Wales, as Duke of Rothesay (who in 1902 appointed the Earl of Crawford as his deputy), and of Ireland the Earl of Shrewsbury, who as such carries a white staff.

LORD LIEUTENANT OF IRELAND—See "Ireland", for Counties, as below.

LORD MAYOR OF LONDON—There had been "Mayors" of the City from 1189, but in 1354 Edward the Third elevated the style to its more dignified form. The Aldermen (25 in number) fill this post as a rule in order of seniority. The Lord Mayor acts as a magistrate at the Mansion House and Guildhall. He receives £10,000 for his year of office, but is understood usually to expend much more than that in dispensing hospitality and maintaining the dignity of his post. His State Coach weighs over 3½ tons and is drawn by six horses. For some years past he has received a baronetcy on or before retirement.

LORD PRESIDENT OF THE COUNCIL—The Chairman of the British Privy Council, a post changing with the Ministry, but regularly held by a Peer.

LORD PRIVY SEAL—The functionary to whom the Privy Seal is entrusted. This must be affixed, on the warrant of the Sovereign, to charters, pardons, and other such documents before they are passed for the Great Seal. The post is usually held by a Peer, and it ranks him before all Dukes and next to the Lord President.

LORD STWARD OF THE HOUSEHOLD—The authority of this official extends over all officers and servants except those of the Chamber, the Chapel, and the Stables (see "Lord Chamberlain" and "Master of the Horse"). His office is known as the Board of Green Cloth.

LORD WARDEN OF THE CINQUE PORTS—See "Cinque Ports."

LORD WARDEN OF THE STANNARIES—See "Stannaries."

LORDS IN WAITING—Peers appointed by the King, who attend the Court in turn and reside at the Palace while on duty.

LORDS LIEUTENANT OF COUNTIES—These are always gentlemen of high position or standing, but not necessarily titled. They have charge of the Sessions Rolls (styled as such Custodes Rotulorum), appoint Deputy Lieutenants and if needful Vice Lieutenants, and recommend to the Lord Chancellor gentlemen suited to act as Justices of the Peace. It may be noted that in Yorkshire there is a Lord Lieutenant to each Riding, though there is a single Sheriff to the entire county. The same office is held in the counties of Scotland, but in Ireland the term is "Lieutenant" only, for the obvious reason of avoiding confusion with the Viceroy.

LUNACY COMMISSIONERS—Of these there are one unpaid and six paid (three each Legal and Medical), also a Chairman, two Masters, and three Visitors.

MAIDS OF HONOUR—These ladies attend upon the Queen in rotation. Upon marriage they resign their post and receive a donation of £1000. They bear the title of "Honourable," and this remains with them through life.

MARINES, ROYAL—A body strictly Military, though attached to the Navy as a provision in case of close fighting upon shipboard, formerly its Officers were Naval, but now they bear the regular titles of the Army. It consists of two divisions, the Royal Marine Artillery and the Royal Marine Light Infantry, each with its own General and Staff. The Royal Indian Marine is the Indian Navy.

MASTER OF THE HORSE—A member of the Ministry who has charge of the royal stables. He is the third great officer at Court, and in state processions his place is next behind the Sovereign. The Equerries and Pages of Honour are under his superintendence.

MASTER OF THE HOUSEHOLD—An official ranking next after the Comptroller, and having charge of the accounts and oversight of the servants.

MASTER OF THE ROLLS—A Judge of the Court of Appeal ranking next after the Lord Chief Justice. Formerly he had charge of the Public Record Office.

METEOROLOGICAL OFFICE—An offshoot from what was formerly the Meteorological Department of the Board of Trade, its principal duty being the issuing of warnings of expected storms at sea. It is controlled by a body of Directors appointed by the Royal Society, and its leading officials are the Chairman of the Council and the Marine Superintendent.

METROPOLITAN WATER BOARD—A body of 66 members which from 1903 has taken over the control of the separate Companies (The Metropolitan Board of Works no longer exists).

MINISTERS PLENIPOTENTIARY—See under "Ambassadors." The second official at the Paris Embassy now always bears this title.

MINISTRY—See "Cabinet," and for complete list of the officials both within and without that circle see 'Whitaker's Almanack.'

MINT, THE ROYAL—The great coining establishment of the British Isles and the Empire generally, except that there are branches at Sydney, Melbourne, Perth (W. Aust.), and Ottawa, whilst in a case of urgency some of the copper coins have been struck off at Birmingham. The Master of the Mint is the Chancellor of the Exchequer for the time being.

MISTRESS OF THE ROBES—The superintendent of the Maids of Honour and nearest attendant of the Queen on state occasions. A Mistress of the Robes is also at the head of the Ladies of the Household of the Queen Mother.

MUSEUMS AND GALLERIES—We are here concerned with such only as are national property. Each of these is under the control of a Director with a more or less extensive staff. They include the British Museum (antiquities, books, and manuscripts), with its branch at Bethnal Green, the Natural History Museum (a part of the British), the Victoria and Albert Museum (called the South Kensington Museum until the erection of the preceding close by gave rise to confusion), the Imperial Institute (for Colonial and Indian products), and the National Gallery, the

National Portrait Gallery, and the National Gallery of British Art ("Tate Gallery") These establishments are under the control of the Education Department

NATIONAL DEBT COMMISSIONERS—For the appropriation of the Sinking Fund in reduction of the Debt the following seven officials constitute a Commission: the Speaker, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, the Lord Chief Justice, the Master of the Rolls, the Paymaster-General, and the Governor and Deputy-Governor of the Bank of England. The executive head is the Controller General

NAUTICAL ALMANAC OFFICE—This is under the control of the Admiralty. The work is regularly published three years in advance for the benefit of ships on long voyages

NAVY—Although the Navy is esteemed the principal arm in our defensive force, it is for its Ships that this distinction is given it, for as compared with the Army its Officers and men are decidedly few. A complete list of the Ships is furnished in 'Whitaker's Almanack,' together with the number of guns, tonnage, &c.

The Navy is now distributed as follows

Channel Fleet—First Cruiser Squadron

Home Fleet—Fifth ditto

Atlantic Fleet—Second ditto

Mediterranean Fleet—Third ditto

N. American and W. Indies Fleet—Fourth ditto

Eastern Fleet—Cruisers stationed at China, E. Indies, Australia, and the Cape

To these must be added the Indian Marine and the Squadrons at the various insular possessions

The Officers in the Navy, though so much fewer in number than in the Army, display a greater variety of titles. Of those Commissioned we find in the "Military" Department—Admirals of the Fleet, Admirals, Vice Admirals, Rear-Admirals (these are styled "Flag Officers"), Commodores (a temporary appointment), Captains, Commanders, Lieutenants, and Sub-Lieutenants, in the Engineering Department—Engineer-in-Chief of the Fleet, and Engineer Rear-Admirals, Captains Commanders, Lieutenants, and Sub-Lieutenants, in the Medical Department—Director General, Inspectors-General of Hospitals and Fleets (with Deputies), Fleet Surgeons, Staff Surgeons, and Surgeons, in the Pay Department—Paymasters-in-Chief, Fleet Paymasters, Staff Paymasters, Paymasters, and Assistant Paymasters, Clerks and Assistant Clerks (apart from those at the Admiralty), after these come—Chaplain of the Fleet, Chaplains, and Roman Catholic Chaplains, Naval Instructors. Of Warrant Officers (some of whom are also Commissioned) the list runs—Carpenter Lieutenants, Chief Gunners, Gunners, Chief Boatswains, Boatswains, Chief Signal Boatswains, Signal Boatswains, Chief Carpenters, Carpenters, Chief Artificer Engineers, Artificer Engineers, Chief Schoolmasters, Head Schoolmasters, Head Wardmasters, Midshipmen, Clerks, and Cadets. Of Petty Officers we have such of the preceding as have not obtained the full qualifications. The obsolete post of Staff Captain in the Navy bore no resemblance to the position of that Officer in the Army, for instead of being allotted to superior duties he was rather on probation; and so with Navigating and Supplemental Lieutenants. A Captain in the Navy, if of three years' seniority, ranks equal with a Colonel in the Army, and a Naval Lieutenant of eight years seniority is equal with a Major. See also "Admiralty" and "Aides-de-Camp."

ORDNANCE SURVEY—The main establishment is at Southampton, but there are branches at Clifton and Redland (both Bristol), Carlisle, Redhill, Shrewsbury, York, and Edinburgh. See under "Agriculture and Fisheries."

PAGES OF HONOUR—These are always youths connected with noble families, and their present duties are the attendances on the Sovereign at Court and other ceremonies. Their number is four, but at Coronations Peers with certain duties to perform are attended by their own Pages of Honour. Besides the four preceding, who belong to the Department of the Master of the Horse, there are enumerated under that of the Lord Chamberlain—Pages of the Back Stairs, State Pages, Pages of the Chambers, Pages of the Presence, and Men Pages.

PARKS AND PLEASURE GROUNDS, ROYAL—Of these there are the London Parks, Regent's, Hyde, St James's, and Green, and in the suburbs, Greenwich, Richmond, Bushy, and the Hampton Court Gardens.

PATENT OFFICE—This is presided over by a Comptroller-General, whose chief assistants are the Registrar of Designs and the Chief Examiner. The staff of subordinates is very numerous.

PAYMASTER-GENERAL'S DEPARTMENT—A distinctly Civil office, the function of which is the remuneration of the work of the Civil Service and Government Departments generally. The Assistant Paymaster-General would appear to perform the bulk of the duties, as his superior is unpaid.

PECULIAR, COURT or—This Court, if it still possesses any more than a nominal existence, has the charge of some 13 "Peculiar Benefices," which he within the London Diocese but were not till recently under the jurisdiction of the Bishop. The Chapel Royal of the Savoy is still a Royal Peculiar.

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS TO THE KING—Of these there is a large staff entered under the Royal Household (as per 'Whitaker's Almanack'), and in addition His Majesty has his Physicians and Surgeons in Ordinary in Scotland and Ireland, and his Honorary Physicians and Surgeons in both the Navy and Army.

POLICE FORCES OF LONDON—The City Police Force is a distinct body concerned with the City alone. Including superior officers it numbers over 1000 men and is under the control of a Commissioner and Assistant Commissioner, with Superintendents of the Executive and Detective Departments. The Metropolitan Police Force takes charge of the extensive districts outside the preceding and spreading in most directions somewhat beyond the London Postal District. It numbers nearly 18,000 officers and men, and is directed by a Commissioner with three Assistant Commissioners. It too has its Superintendents of Executive and Investigation Departments, as well as Superintendents of Divisions, and among these are included the River Thames and the Dockyards of Chatham, Devonport, Pembroke, Portsmouth, and Woolwich.

POOR LAW BOARD (late)—See under "Local Government Board."

PORT OF LONDON AUTHORITY—A newly constituted body which takes part of the functions of the Thames Conservancy and is entrusted with the charge of the Lower River and the Docks. Six Committees were in March 1909 arranged as follows: Dock and Warehouse, River, Finance, Staff and Stores, Works and Improvements, and Parliamentary. The Authority meets weekly on a Thursday.

POST OFFICE, GENERAL—The work of this great Department comprises the four divisions of postal work proper, telegraphs and telephones, money orders, and savings banks and insurance. The penny post came into operation on Jan. 10, 1840, and the number of letters and other packages delivered has continued to rise till it now reaches much over three thousand millions per annum, yielding a profit to the State of about four million pounds. The Department is controlled by the Postmaster General, who is a member of the Ministry and of one of the two Houses of Parliament, with him are an Assistant Postmaster General, the Secretary, the Second and six Assistant Secretaries, and Controllers, Superintendents, Examiners, &c., in one or other of the branches of the establishment.

PREMIER or PRIME MINISTER—The head of the Government of the day and the intermediary between the Cabinet and the Crown. He appoints not only his own Ministers, but all officials coming under the patronage of the Crown, ecclesiastics included. No salary is attached to this office as such, so that he always holds some other in addition, usually that of First Lord of the Treasury. He has lately been granted precedence next to the Archbishop of York.

PRESIDENT OF THE COUNCIL—See "Lord President."

PRIVY PURSE—See "Keeper."

PRIVY SEAL—See "Lord Privy Seal." There is also a Keeper of the Privy Seal in the Duchy of Cornwall.

PROBATE, COURT OF—See under "Lord Chief Justice."

PUBLIC BUILDINGS—See "Works."

QUARTERMASTER—A regimental officer, always appointed from the ranks, who has special charge of Transport and Supply. The Quartermaster-General (Q.M.G.) has superintendence of this branch for the entire Force (British and Indian being distinct), whilst under the various local or other divisions there are appointed successively the Deputy Quartermaster-General, the Assistant Quartermaster-General, and the Deputy Assistant Quartermaster-General.

RECORD OFFICE, THE PUBLIC—This office dates its foundation from the reign of Henry the First. The Keeper of the Records is the Master of the Rolls, and he has his Deputy and Assistants.

REGISTRAR GENERAL, THE—The General Register Office is presided over by this functionary, with whom are a Chief Clerk, Superintendent of Statistics, &c. The Census Office forms a special branch. For Scotland there are the Lord Clerk Register, the Keeper of the Records, and the Registrar-General with subordinates.

REVENUE—See "Inland Revenue."

ROYAL COMPANY OF ARCHERS—The King's Body Guard for Scotland, its Captain-General being one of the Gold Sticks

ROYAL IRISH CONSTABULARY—The Military Police of the sister kingdom, numbering in all some 15,000. They are armed with rifle, sword, and pistol, and their often proved fidelity was recognised in 1857 by the alteration to the above of their former title, "The Constabulary of Ireland." They are under an Inspector General

ROYAL MINT—See "Mint"

ROYAL WARRANT HOLDERS—Tradesmen who, being accustomed to supply the Royal Household, have received a warrant entitling them to use the Royal Arms

SALFORD HUNDRED COURT OF RECORD—A local registry which has existed from Anglo-Saxon times and been allowed to remain from respect for its antiquity

SASINE OFFICE—An office in Edinburgh for the registration of title deeds. Sasine, or infeftment, was formerly a symbolical ceremony, but the mere registration is all that is now required

SCHOOLS—See "Colleges"

SCOTLAND, COMMITTEE OF COUNCIL ON EDUCATION IN—A body which, as constituted in 1909, consists of the Lord President of the Council, the Secretary for Scotland, Lord Shaw, the First Lord of the Treasury, the Secretary for War, the Lord Advocate, the Earl of Elgin and Kincardine, and Lord Reay

SCOTLAND, LORD HIGH CONSTABLE OF—See "Lord High Constable"

SCOTLAND, SECRETARY FOR—The member of the Government who has charge of all Scottish affairs, except such as pertain to the Lord Advocate

SERGEANTS-AT-ARMS—Officials who walk before the Sovereign on state occasions bearing maces of silver gilt, they wear silver collars marked "SS" (see under "Officers of Arms," page 85). The Sergeants-at-Arms in the Houses of Lords and Commons have charge of the exclusion of intruders and the apprehending of persons committed by order of the House

SESSION, COURT OF—The most important judicial body in Scotland. It is divided into an Inner and an Outer House, of which the former has two subdivisions styled First and Second and presided over respectively by the Lord Justice General (who is also Lord President of the entire Court of Session) and the Lord Justice-Clerk, the Outer House has no special President, but its five Judges are styled Permanent Lords Ordinary. In each Division of the Inner House there are four Judges (including the Presidents), and the entire body of Judges, together with the Lord Advocate and Solicitor-General for Scotland, constitute the High Court of Justiciary. Every Judge of either House has the bench-title of "Lord" (equivalent to the English "Lord Justice," but implying no peerage rank though the wife is now to be styled "Lady"—see page 21) in a few instances this is prefixed to a title which is not the surname, but all who are neither Peers nor Privy Councillors take the designation "Hon" instead of "Rt Hon"

SHERIFFS OF COUNTIES—These gentlemen are in the first place nominated, on the Morrow of St Martin (Nov 12) in each year, by the Lord Chancellor, the Lord President of the Council, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and the body of Judges (or some of them), when three names for each county are selected and passed to the Sovereign, by whom, on the Day of the Purification (Feb 2), one of these three, presumably the first, is definitely appointed by the ceremony of "pricking" or punching the parchment against the name chosen. The Sheriffs are responsible for the due carrying out of the judgments of Courts, including sentences of death, and they have power to compel any person to assist them in arresting a felon. In England and Ireland they are conventionally known as "High Sheriffs," but in Scotland they are termed "Sheriffs Principal," these having their deputies, "Sheriffs Substitute"

SHERIFFS OF THE CITY OF LONDON—These are chosen annually by the citizens, the election taking place on Midsummer Day, and their entry into office at Michaelmas. They usually obtain a knighthood. Till 1888 they were Sheriffs of "London and Middlesex"

SIGNET, WRITERS TO THE—The Signet Office is a branch of the General Register House in Edinburgh, and the Duke of Montrose is the Keeper of the Signet. Its certificated writers have passed a legal examination and constitute as such a high rank in that profession, they are authorised to append "WS" to their names

SILVER STICKS—The Lieutenant-Colonels of the Household Cavalry Regiments act in this office as attendants for a month each in rotation. The origin of the office was coincident with that of the Gold Sticks, Charles the Second having presented a silver-headed staff to the second Officer of the Life Guards

SOLICITOR GENERAL—The second legal adviser of the Crown in position and duties similar to the Attorney General, a member of the Ministry and of the House of Commons, and always knighted. There are Solicitors-General for Scotland and Ireland, but these are not knighted as such, nor is it even peremptory that they should be Members of Parliament

SOMERSET HOUSE—The headquarters of the Inland Revenue Office (q v), of the Probate and General Registry, and the Licensing Department

SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS—The chairman and controller of the proceedings of the House. He is elected by the votes of the Members, practically therefore by the party which is in majority at the time, but when once elected he is usually accepted by both sides, and thus continues in office till he voluntarily retires, when this takes place he has latterly received a Viscounty. At each new Parliament, however (not each session), he has to undergo re-election. He does not take part in the debates, nor give his vote unless a casting vote is required—thus being altogether in a different position from that of the Lord Chancellor in the Lords. He has, besides his salary of £5000, a furnished residence contiguous to the House, and he ranks in the scale of Precedence next after the Barons

STANDARD BEARER, HEREDITARY—For England, Scotland, and Ireland this office (at Coronations) was allotted by the Court of Claims respectively to Frank S. Dymoke, Esq., Henry Soryngeour Wedderburn, Esq., and the O'Connor Don

STANNARIES—The Stannary Courts of Cornwall and Devon were established for the administration of justice among the miners of those counties, there having existed some peculiar usages and regulations amongst them. The Lord Warden presided over these Courts, or in his absence one of the Vice-Wardens, of whom there was one for each of the two counties. They are now modified into ordinary county courts, but the Lord Warden retains his titular designation and is principal officer of the Duchy of Cornwall and first member of the Council of the Prince of Wales. See "Cornwall, Duchy of"

STATIONERY OFFICE—The establishment which prints and supplies books and paper connected with Government proceedings. Its Controller is King's Printer.

SURGEONS TO THE KING—See "Physicians"

TEINDS, LORD ORDINARY OF—A Judge of the Court of Session who is specially allotted the jurisdiction affecting "teinds" (tithes). The Judges of the entire Inner Houses are Lords Commissioners for Teinds

THAMES CONSERVANCY BOARD—Part of the duties of this Board have been taken over by the new Port of London Authority. It retains the oversight of the Upper River. The Conservators now number 38, and they are appointed severally by the Admiralty, the Board of Trade, Trinity House, the City Corporation, the Metropolitan Water Board, and the County Councils and County Boroughs of localities adjacent to the river from its source to its mouth. A few also are chosen by owners of sailing craft, wharfmasters, &c.

TOWER, CONSTABLE OF THE—Both this officer (the Governor) the Lieutenant and the Major hold their posts by patent from the Crown

TRADE, BOARD OF—Several high Officers of State are upon this Board, but it is practically controlled by its President and Parliamentary Secretary. It has the oversight of matters connected with railways, shipping, water and gas companies, weights and measures, bankruptcy, and trade and labour in general, whilst it also collects statistics on matters respecting revenue, commerce, population, and whatever else falls under its care. Besides the above two officers there are a Permanent Secretary and Assistant Secretaries to the respective departments of Harbours, Marine, Finance, and Railways, a Controller-General of the Commercial Department, an Inspector-General in Bankruptcy, a Chief Inspecting Officer of Railways, a Chief of the London Traffic Branch, with numerous subordinates. There is a separate Board for Ireland.

TREASURER OF THE HOUSEHOLD—The officer next below the Lord Steward, and his deputy in his absence

TREASURY, COMMISSIONERS OF—These are the First Lord, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and the four Junior Lords. See following. The Department comprises the Financial, Patronage, Permanent, and Assistant Secretaries, with the Solicitor, Parliamentary Counsel, and numerous subordinates, for whom see "Whitaker's Almanack"

TREASURY, FIRST LORD OF—A practically sinecure office which has been most frequently borne by the otherwise unbrid Premier, or sometimes by some other Leader of the Commons.

TRINITY HOUSE—This is an association of five maritime societies, located at London, Hull, Newcastle, Leith, and Dundee, and devoting their attention to such subjects as pilotage, lighthouses, and beacons. It dates from 1512, and is stated to have an annual income of $300,000. The Corporation of the London Trinity House consists of 13 acting Elders Brethren and 11 Honorary ditto, with an unlimited number of Younger Brethren, who may be described as in statu pupillari, whilst the Elders exercise all the duties and fill up vacancies in their ranks from those of the Youngers, these having all belonged to the naval service or the mercantile marine. The 13 include a Master (the Duke of Cornwall) and Deputy-Master.

UNDER SECRETARIES OF STATE—To each Secretary there are attached both a Parliamentary and a Permanent Under Secretary, the former going out of office on a change of Government.

USEEP OF THE WHITE ROD OF SCOTLAND—This post was granted at the Coronation as attaching by right to the Walker Trustees.

VICEEROY OF INDIA—Since the transfer in 1858 of the Government of India to the Crown, a Governor-General has been the chief executive authority, and his tenure of office is usually for five years. His procedure is subject to the control of the Secretary of State in England. He has an Executive Council consisting of five official members besides himself and the Commander-in-Chief, and a wider Legislative Council which comprises the preceding with several additional members, both European and Native. If this Council meets in one of the Provinces other than Bengal, the Governor or Lieutenant-Governor of that Province is added.

VICEEROY OF IRELAND—See "Lord Lieutenant."

WAR OFFICE—The leading officials in this Department are here arranged under the respective seven members of the Army Council (for their numerous subordinates see "Whiteaker's Almanack" under one of the two heads "War Office" and "Military Administration").

- 1 Secretary of State, Military Secretary (with Assistant), Parliamentary and Permanent Under Secretaries (with latter's Assistant as below)
- 2 Chief of the Imperial General Staff, Directors of Military Operations, Staff Duties, and Military Training, with General Staff Officers of 1st, 2nd, and 3rd grade
- 3 Adjutant-General, Directors of Organisation, Recruiting, and Personal Services, and Director General of Army Medical Service (with Deputy)
- 4 Quartermaster-General, Directors of Transport (with Assistants), of Movements, Supplies, and Equipment (each with Assistants), and Director-General of Army Veterinary Service
- 5 Master General of the Ordnance, Directors of Artillery, Fortifications, and Barrack Construction
- 6 Civil Member, Director-General of the Territorial Forces and Comptroller of Lands
- 7 Finance Member, Assistant Financial Secretary and Directors of Contracts, Financial Services, and Army Accounts

To these must be added—

The Permanent Under Secretary of the War Office, under whom are his Assistant Secretary, the Chaplain-General, and the Judge Advocate-General.

Also, though given in the 'Army List' as distinct from the War Office—

The Inspector-General of the Forces, having under him Inspectors of the seven Departments of Cavalry, Royal Horse and Field Artillery, Royal Garrison Artillery, Royal Engineers, Army Service Corps, Army Medical Service, and Equipment and Ordnance Stores.

WAR, SECRETARY OF STATE FOR—Formerly this official was styled Secretary-at-War, and he was subordinate to the Home Secretary. In 1794 a Secretary of State for War was appointed to manage all military business and in 1801 he was given the control of the Colonies. In 1854 the Secretary of State for War was relieved of Colonial business, and a fourth Secretary of State was appointed for the Colonies. The Secretary always belongs to the Cabinet, but may be chosen from either House.

WARDEN—See "Lord Warden."

WARDENS OF THE TOWER—See "Yeomen of the Guard."

WARRANT HOLDERS—See "Royal Warrant Holders."

WARRANT OFFICERS—The term is used in both the Navy and Army, and includes certain ranks intermediate between Commissioned and Non-commissioned. In itself the term implies that the appointment has been made by warrant from a superior or a department instead of by commission.

WOMEN OF THE BEDCHAMBER—See "Bedchamber," where the distinction between "Women" and "Ladies" of this service is noticed.

WOODS, FORESTS, &c., COMMISSIONERS OF—The Land Revenue of the Crown are now under this Board. It has a Branch Office in Dublin.

WOOLBAGG—The seat of the Lord Chancellor in the House of Lords, placed in front of the Throne. Its origin is stated to be that when the export of wool was forbidden, in the reign of Elizabeth the texture in question was thus dignified in token of its importance to the national prosperity.

WORKS AND PUBLIC BUILDINGS, COMMISSIONERS OF—These officials consist of a First Commissioner, the five Secretaries of State, and the President of the Board of Trade, but obviously, as in similar instances, the First Commissioner is the executive controller and the others are a consultative committee when so required. Their functions are the charge of the Government works, public buildings, and parks.

YRONEN OR THE GUARD—The English Body Guard of the Sovereign in conjunction with the Gentlemen-at-Arms. Their quaint costume (in which they are known as Beef-eaters) consists of a red tunic faced with blue and gold, red breeches and stockings, a broad brimmed dark blue hat, waist and shoulder belts, knee bows, shoe rosettes, white muffs, &c. Their Captain is a Peer, the Lieutenant must have been a Lieutenant-Colonel in the Army, and their Ensign a Major, there are also a Clerk of the Cheque and four Evons (a word corrupted from the French sound of "exempt," i.e., an officer who had once been, but was no longer, in the Garde du Corps). They attend the Sovereign only. The Wardens of the Tower are similar in attire except that they omit the cross-belt: they are also known as Beef-eaters, but are a body totally distinct. As to this term of "Beef-eater" it is questioned whether it is a corruption of the French buffetier (a buffet-keeper) or a slang designation from their portly appearance.

REMARKS ON CLAIMANT BARONETS AND OTHERS

DOUBTFUL claimants present themselves from time to time in every rank—Peers of our own country and abroad, "Ladies," "Honourables," Knights, and above all Baronets. There are probably a few amongst these who are genuinely entitled to the style which they claim, but, taking them in the bulk, it is evidently safe to say that those who are not downright impostors are the victims of a delusion. The modus operandi of these latter is apparently this: they become aware of a lapsed Baronetcy of their own surname, the last holder of which was either certainly or possibly a relative, no one else has assumed the title, so why should not they? The other class, believing that a Baronet's title will give them a standing or secure them longer credit from tradesmen, hunt up some name in Burke's 'Extinct Baronetcies' (if it does not happen to be their own, what is easier than to make it such?), give it out that the latest holder left a son or brother whose name was never registered, and that from that son or brother themselves are descended, servants and shopkeepers have perforce to give them their title, and thus a fictitious local position is secured, which probably suffices for the main purpose of most of them. Some of them tell us that they cannot afford the fees necessary for establishing their claim, thus ignoring the law of society that what a man cannot pay for he has to do without. They may say that in their case no person is injured by the unauthorised assumption, but if they injure no individual they degrade and insult the Baronetage at large. Aspirants whose claim is good do not usually assume the title till they have established it, and the converse is reasonable as to those who first assume what they know they never can establish. A Mr Robert Dennis, who had gone deeply into the subject, lately wrote to The Times characterising the many of these pretenders as a race of unmitigated scoundrels, whilst the late Editor of 'Dod's Peerage' in a subsequent letter stated that if an investigation were instituted there would probably be as many as fifty who would go by default. There are a few "Ladies" entered in West-End Directories but in no 'Knights,' so that they would do well to establish their credentials. These last do not appear in our pages at all, but in the case of known claimants to any rank, if the claims clearly require substantiation we now print them in smaller type. There are however one or two Peers and Baronets as to whose position a technical flaw has been pointed out, but which we do not intend to place under the ban so long as they are retained in 'Burke.'

MODES OF ADDRESSING PERSONS OF TITLE

* For Conclusions of Letters see near the end of section

ADMIRAL—The title and name only, any other ascription following this office thus "Vice-Admiral Lord A," "Rear Admiral the Earl of C" (or "the Hon C D") So with other Naval and Military Officers, &c

ALDERMAN—If of London, and having passed the chair, officially addressed "Right Worshipful," in all other cases "Worshipful"

AMBASSADOR—"Your Excellency" (but a Duke "Your Grace"), "His Excellency Sir Y Z," H B M's Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary to the Court of R" (but see Envoy or Minister for any lower rank) Wife, no title

ARCHBISHOP—"My Lord Archbishop," "Your Grace," "His Grace the Lord Archbishop of C" in formal addresses "The Most Reverend Father in God, John, by Divine Providence, Archbishop of Canterbury," elsewhere, "by Divine Permission" (The Abp of Armagh is in Ireland styled "His Grace the Lord Primate of All Ireland") Wife, no title (nor precedence)

ARCHDEACON—"Venerable Sir," "Sir" (in repeating), "The Venerable A B" or "The Venerable the Archdeacon of C" (retains prefix "Ven" but not "Archd" when retired)

BARON—"My Lord," "Your Lordship," "The Right Hon Lord A," Baronesse, "Madam," "Your Ladyship," "The Right Hon Lady A" (but "Baronesse A" if the title is in her own right) The term "My Lady" is relegated to servants, and even "The Right Hon" is usually cut down to "The Lady A" (no Christian name), the word "The" being understood as a substitute for "Rt Hon" and distinguishing a Baron's Lady or the daughter of a Peer from the wife of a Baronet or Knight See also at end of Duke Son or daughter, "Sir," or "Madam," "The Hon C D" Son's wife, "The Hon Mrs D" (if eldest son of present Peer) or "The Hon Mrs John D," unless her own rank is higher, in which case attend to Note on "Marriage of Peeresses," at pp 29-31

BARONET—"Sir" ("Dear Sir Thomas" is common, but without the surname it is rather too familiar to be used by inferiors), "Sir T A, Baronet" ("Bt" preferred to "Bart") Note the remarks appended on p 58 Wife, "Madam," "Your Ladyship," "Lady A" (with out any Christian name unless she is a Lady by birth, as daughter of a Duke, Marquess, or Earl, in which case "The Lady Mary A" if daughter of a Viscount or Baron "The Hon Lady A" otherwise "Lady A" without "The"—see preceding paragraph) For widow, see under Dowager Ladies Son or daughter as commoners

BISHOP—"My Lord," "Your Lordship," "The Right Reverend the Lord Bishop of D" formally, "The Right Reverend Father in God, John, by Divine Permission Lord Bishop of D" Wife as a commoner Colonial Bps the same, and so also by courtesy Bishops Suffragan, and Irish, Scottish, American, and even Missionary Bps, unless they are known to object to the word "Lord" (thus word requires address by the diocese and not the surname) Retired Bishop, "The Right Reverend Bishop A" (the surname), but "My Lord" The Bishop of Meath takes the style of "Most Reverend"

CANON—"Reverend Sir," "Sir" (in repeating), "The Reverend Canon B"

CARDINAL—"Your Eminence," "His Eminence Cardinal B" (or "H E Joseph, Cardinal B")

CLERGYMEN—"Reverend Sir," "Sir," "The Rev E F," "The Rev Lord F" If an "Honourable," "The Rev the Hon" (so "Right Rev the Hon," "The Rev Canon the Hon"), better than "Hon and Rev," though this latter form is far more common, even among those in a position supposed to know In the Gazette we sometimes find the form "The Rev and Hon"

COMPANIONS OF KNIGHTHOOD—No distinction "E F, Esq, C B" So with a CVO

CONSUL—"B C, Esq, H B M's Consul at D"

COURTESY LOOPS—Eldest sons of Dukes, Marquesses, and Earls, precisely as if their own title was that of an actual Peerage For other sons, see under Duke &c

DEAN—"Very Reverend Sir," "Mr Dean," "Sir" (in repeating), "The Very Rev the Dean of B" But a Dean ought not to be addressed as Dean with his surname

DIVORCED LADY—In her maiden name, but with "Mrs" instead of "Miss" (no retention of any former title whether claimed or not) If divorced on her own petition the presumption would seem to be that she would be eager to be quit of the obnoxious name, but in spite of its gross inconsistency the retention appears to be the more customary course, and that even when many the surname and not an actual title is concerned Of course no such title would be recognised at Court, but the Cowley case shewed a judgment from the House of Lords, that, while such assumption can have no legal right, its conventional adoption cannot be interfered with by a Court of Law, and can only be dealt with by the Committee of Privileges See further under "Divorces" on p 31

DOWAGER LADIES—Directions for the correct use of the term "Dowager" or its substitute will be found under "Peer's Widows" on page 31 The forms of address will then be such as "The Most Hon Maria, Marchioness of A," "The Right Hon the Dowager Lady B," "Her Grace the Dowager Duchess of C" or with a Baroness, "The Dowager Lady D" (this article here seems indispensable and does not do duty for "Rt Hon" as in the case cited under Baron), or "Emily, Lady E" A Knight's widow suffers no change of title, for there can be neither Dowagers nor confusion between mother and wife where there is no hereditary succession, still (as stated p 27) a Christian name can be prefixed to "Lady," when there are more than one of the same surname There appears to be no settled practice as to whether the word "Dowager" shall precede or follow the essential term of honour We once even met with an advertisement commencing "Dowager the Lady H will gladly," &c

DUKE—"My Lord Duke," "Your Grace," "His Grace" (or "The Most Noble" the Duke of A) formally, "My Lord Duke, May it please Your Grace" Duchess, "Madam," "Your Grace," "Her Grace the Duchess of A" For widow, see under Dowager Ladies Eldest son and his wife addressed by the courtesy-title, and precisely as if it was a genuine Marquessate or Earldom as the style may be (for the children of these, see under "Courtesy Titles," p 24, and again address pre-exactly as if their father was an actual Marquess or Earl) Younger son, "My Lord," "Your Lordship," "The Lord Henry C." Daughter, "Madam," "Your Ladyship," "The Lady Sophia C.," so younger son's wife, but "The Lady Henry C." unless herself a Duke's daughter, when "The Lady Sophia" will again be correct. For the status of married daughters of Dukes and other Peers, see at pp 23-31. The prefix "Right Honourable" is by courtesy assigned to younger sons and all daughters of Dukes and Marquesses, and to the daughters of Earls (i.e., to those taking the title "Lord" or "Lady"), but it is void used in any of these cases, the substitution of "The" is, however, imperative, but still only by courtesy.

EARL—"My Lord," "Your Lordship," "The Right Hon the Earl of A." Countess accordingly, but see Baroness. Eldes son and any daughter as under Duke (with necessary conformation), younger son as Baron's son.

EMPEROR—"Sire," "Your Imperial Majesty."
ENVOY—"A.B., Esq., H.B.M.'s Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary at the Court of B."

FOREIGN PEER—Only the article "The." But Canadian, "Rt Hon" and see "Maltese."

GENERAL—See Admiral.
GOVERNOR OF A COLONY—"His Excellency Sir A.B. the Governor of D." (if a Duke "His Grace"), "His Excellency Governor B." Wife, "Her Excellency" (if she resides in the Colony).

IRISH ANCIENT TITLE-HOLDER—Titles like "The O'Donoghue" are complete without "Mr." or "Esq." Wives are addressed as "Madam."

JUDGE OF A COUNTY COURT AND OF CITY OF LONDON COURT—"Sir," "Your Honour" (on the bench), "His Honour Judge A." (but not after retirement).

JUDGE OF SUPERIOR COURT—"Sir," "My Lord" (on bench), "The Hon (Sir) Henry B." (not after retirement). If a Peer, address as such.

JUSTICE OF THE PEACE—Officially, "Your Worship," "The Worshipful."

KING—"Your Majesty," "The King's Most Excellent Majesty." Commence "Sire," or, "May it please Your Majesty."

KING'S COUNSEL—"A.B., Esq., K.C."

KNIGHT—As Baronet, substituting for "Bt" the correct initials, and if a Knight Bachelor, omitting any affix, though "Knight" is appended in formal style. Wife also as Baronet's. For a widow, see under Dowager Ladies.

KNIGHT OF THE GARTER, THISTLE, OR ST PATRICK—A Peer bearing either of these titles should have the respective initials appended to his name—in fact, the initials of any Order.

LORD ADVOCATE—"Sir," "The Right Honourable."

LORD OF APPEAL—As other Barons. So wife, and now so children also.

LORD CHANCELLOR—"My Lord," "Your Lordship," "The Right Hon the Lord High Chancellor."

LORD CHIEF JUSTICE—Similarly, but "The Rt Hon the Lord Chief Justice of England."

LORD HIGH COMMISSIONER (Scotland)—"Your Grace," "His Grace the Lord High Commissioner of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland."

LORD JUSTICE OF APPEAL—"My Lord," "Sir," "The Right Hon Lord Justice B." (or "Sir William B.")—Distinguish "Lord of Appeal."

LORD LIEUTENANT OF IRELAND—"His Excellency" ["Grace," if a Duke—so Ulster's book of Rules] the Lord Lieutenant," and according to rank Wife, "Her Excellency" (see "Precedence among Ladies").

LORD MAYOR—"My Lord," "Your Lordship," "The Right Hon the Lord Mayor of B." (no distinction retained after retiring). Wife, "The Right Hon the Lady Mayoress," and as Baroness.

LORD PROVOST—"My Lord," in Edinburgh, "The Right Hon the Lord Provost" in Glasgow, "The Hon" Wife as commoner.

LORD OF SESSION (Scotland)—"My Lord," "Your Lordship," "The Hon Lord A." Wife, "Madam," "Your Ladyship," "Lady A."

MAGISTRATE—See Justice.

MAID OF HONOUR—"Madam," "The Hon Alice B." (not "Hon Miss" in any case).

MALTHESE NOBLE (of any rank)—"My Lord," "Your Lordship" or "Ladyship," "The Most Noble the Baron B."

MARQUESS—"My Lord Marquess," "My Lord," "Your Lordship," "The Most Hon the Marquess of A." (avoiding the common error of "Most Noble"). Marchioness, "Madam," "Your Ladyship," "The Most Hon" &c Sons &c, see under Duke, treating the hair's tails as a genuine Earl's or Viscount's.

MASTER (Scotland)—"The Hon the Master of," and as Baron's sons Wife, "The Hon Mrs A." (see p 31).

MASTER OF THE ROLLS—"Sir," "My Lord" or "Your Lordship" (on bench), "The Right Honourable" (Is not a Lord Justice).

MAYOR—"Sir," "The Worshipful the Mayor of D." in a few cities "Right Worshipful" Wife, no distinction.

MEMBERS OF COLONIAL MINISTRIES &c (see p 27)—"The Honourable" Wife, no distinction.

MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT—No distinction as such beyond the letters "M.P." which follow "Esq." "Bt." &c, when these occur.

MINISTER ABROAD—"Sir," "A.B., Esq., H.B.M.'s Minister" (or "Minister Resident"). See Ambassadors and Envoy.

OFFICERS, NAVAL AND MILITARY—See under Admiral. Lieutenants in the Army and Sub-Lieutenants in the Navy are addressed as "Esquire," affixing R.A., R.R., R.N., &c, when correct. When the prefix "Honourable" occurs there is not even in practice the same licence as under Clergymen, but the arrangement must be "Capt the Hon" as "Hon Capt" implies "Honorary Captain."

PREMIER—According to rank, adding after the name, "Head of His Majesty's Government."

PRIMUS OF EPISCOPALIAN CHURCH (Scotland)—"Most Reverend Sir," "The Most Reverend the Lord Bishop of C." (or "Most Rev Bishop A.")

PRINCE OR PRINCESS—"Your Royal Highness," "His (Her) Royal Highness Prince (Princess) A." (or "the Duke (Duchess) of B.") Commence "Sir," or "Madam."

PRINCIPAL OF A SCOTCH COLLEGE—"Very Reverend" (if in orders).

PRIVY COUNCILLOR—"Right Honourable" (unless a Duke or Marquess) Commence "Sir" (unless holding rank). Wife, as commoner.

QUEEN—"Your Majesty," "The Queen's Most Excellent Majesty." Commence "Madam," or formally, "May it please Your Majesty."

RECORDER—"Sir," "Your Worship," "The Worshipful," but in London, "Right Worshipful."

SECRETARY OF STATE—"His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the H. Department," prefixing rank, if any.

SERGEANT-AT-LAW—"Mr. Sergeant A." SHERIFF OF LONDON—"As Recorder of ditto SPEAKER—"The Right Honourable the Speaker."

VISCOUNT—"The Right Hon. the Viscount [or "the Lord Viscount"] A.," otherwise as a Baron. Viscountess, "The Right Hon. the Viscountess A." Son or daughter, precisely as under Baron.

Widows—See Dowager Ladies.

CONCLUSIONS OF LETTERS—As these are too lengthy for general insertion in individual cases as above, we may here present a few examples.

France—"I remain, Sir, with the greatest respect, Your Royal Highness's most dutiful and most obedient servant."

Duke or Archbishop—"I have the honour to be, My Lord Duke [Archbishop], Your Grace's most obedient and humble servant."

Other Peer—"I have the honour to be, My Lord [My Lord Marquess, My Lord Bishop, Your Lordship's obedient and humble servant]; So a Lord Mayor.

Peer's Son or Daughter—If styled "Lord" or "Lady," "I have the honour to be, My Lord

[Madam], Your Lordship's [Ladyship's] most obedient and humble servant." If "Honourable," "I have the honour to be, Sir [Madam], your obedient servant." So a Baronet, Knight, or Judge. Archdeacon—"I have the honour to be, Venerable Sir, your very obedient servant." So Dean, but "Very Reverend Sir, your most obedient servant."

Clergyman—"I am, Reverend Sir, your obedient servant."

ADDRESSES TO BOARDS, CORPORATIONS, &c.—The following notes may be of service.

Lords of Civilis Siers (if Lords see Lords Commissioners, below), Sanitary, and School Boards, County Councils, &c., may be addressed as "The Honourable."

City Companies—"The Worshipful." Gen. Assembly of Church of Scotland—"The Venerable."

House of Commons—"The Honourable the Commons of Great Britain and Ireland in Parliament assembled."

House of Lords—"The Right Honourable the Peers Spiritual and Temporal of," &c., as Commons.

Inns of Court—"The Honourable Society of Gray's Inn."

Lords Commissioners—"The Right Honourable."

Piebyteries—"The Reverend."

Provincial Synods (Scotland)—"The Very Reverend."

* The common form "Czarina" has no warrant in Russian. As to the cz or ts, the latter precisely represents the original to us, as cz does to the Hungarians. It may here be added in reference to "Fedorovna" that the termination -vna implies "daughter of" just as -vich implies "son of." As to the use of v or w in transliterating from Russian characters, the v is correct for English use and w only for German.

INDEX TO THE ROYAL FAMILY

*. There is an unavoidable imperfection in the following index, consisting in the fact that the generality of royal personages possess such a long string of names, from which it is often impossible to select with certainty the one or two which are conventionally used. When, however, a name is found cited under some variation—viz., if Prince Adalbert of Prussia is termed 'Prince Bismarck'—a reference to "Prussia" would conduct the searcher to the only possible house under which the name could stand. The employment of parentheses commonly marks a junior member of a family in the same way, hence we have to read "Prince Adalbert of Prussia" and not "Adalbert Prince of Prussia." German names are usually anglicized in the index, whilst French names are allowed to retain their native forms.

ORDER OF SUCCESSION TO THE THRONE

The rules furnished earlier on, with reference to the Descent of the Nobility, will enable any person to draw up for himself as long a list of heirs to the Throne as he may desire, the only differences to be observed being that daughters are eligible for succession in order of their own seniority, but not till after the youngest of the sons. Thus after the five sons of His Majesty would come his daughter, then, as he has no brother, his sisters, with the children of the eldest in preference to the second sister, then the second daughter of the late Duke of Saxe-Coburg, his eldest daughter, now the Crown Princess of Roumania, having formally renounced on her marriage all possibility of claim to the British Throne. After traversing the Saxe-Coburg branch, we treat similarly those of Connaught and Albany. Having thus exhausted the families of all Queen Victoria's sons we turn to her daughters, beginning with the house of the late Empress Frederica, but as this line, with the German Emperor at its head, is wholly out of practical bounds, it would be pointless to pursue the investigation any further. It may, however, be worth noting that granddaughters who are descended from sons will by the above law take precedence of daughters even if these are older than those sons (the daughter of the late Duke of Albany ranking prior to the line of the late Empress Frederica), as well as precedence of such sons as are not older. Compare her late Majesty's succession in preference to the Duke of Cumberland.

Duke Platoon Band of Stake-Coburn & Salfeld

GEORGE III — Queen Charlotte

OBSERVATIONS ON THE OPPOSITE TABLE

It will at once be noticed that the Hanover Line is here exhibited by thick lines, and that of Saxe-Coburg by thin ones. Directing our attention to the former, we observe in the 1st and 3rd places two sons who became well known to us as Sovereigns, and in the second place Frederick Duke of York, who died in 1827. In the 4th place comes a daughter, Charlotte, Princess Royal, who must be carefully distinguished from the better-known Princess of that name, the only child of George IV. and first consort of King Leopold I. Next in order comes the Duke of Kent, then two more daughters, the Princesses Augusta and Elizabeth, then the Dukes of Cumberland, Sussex, and Cambridge, and lastly the Princesses Mary, Sophia, and Elizabeth, and the infant Prince Octavius and Alfred, omitted from table to avoid overcrowding.

Turning to the line of Saxe-Coburg, we note at its head H. S. H. Frederick Anthony, reigning Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha till his death in 1806. He was succeeded by his eldest son, Ernest Frederick Anthony, Duke Ernest I. of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, this latter Principality having been acquired by a family compact, while Saxe-Weimar was passed over to Saxe-Meiningen. The Duke died in 1844 and was followed by the elder of his two sons, Ernest Augustus Charles, Duke Ernest II., the younger son being Albert, the late lamented Prince Consort. The second Duke Ernest died in 1893 and was succeeded by his nephew H. R. H. the late Duke of Edinburgh, and he in turn by his nephew the Duke of Albany. As elsewhere notified, the succession would naturally have fallen to the Prince of Wales (afterwards King Edward VII.), but His Royal Highness, as heir to the English throne, had formally renounced his claim in 1853.

Referring to Duke Francis, we note his two eldest daughters, who became respectively the Countess of Mendelsdorff-Pouilly and Duchess Alexander of Wurtemberg, then his 2nd son, Duke Ferdinand, whose own eldest son became Regent of Portugal, whilst the 2nd married a Princess of the Bourbon-Orléans House, and a daughter became Duchess of Nemours. Some of the descendants of these returned by marriage to Saxe-Coburg or passed to Saxony, Hohenzollern, Bavaria, or Austria, which States, with the already noted Belgium, Wurtemberg, Portugal, France, and others that might be added, including Baden, Hesse, Leiningen, Mecklenburg, Hanover, Tuscany, Naples, Greece, Bulgaria, Roumania, Russia, Denmark, the Netherlands, Sweden, Spain, and Norway, make up very nearly the whole of Europe for the regions into which our present Royal Family has spread or from which its alliances have been drawn. The three pages following furnish the evidence for this.

Duke Francis's 3rd and 7th children were two Princesses whose names are wholly omitted in the table: the former, Princess Juliana, married the Grand Duke Constantine of Russia, but after twenty-four years the marriage was dissolved in 1820 and the Princess died without issue in 1860, the 7th child, the Princess Marianne, died in childhood. The 8th and youngest was King Leopold I. already mentioned, who, as second consort, married a daughter of King Louis Philippe, by whom he became father of King Leopold II. We have reserved for the last place Duke Francis's 5th child, the Princess Victoria Mary Louise, mother of her late Majesty Queen Victoria, but in the first place wife of Prince Emich Charles, who till his death in 1814 was reigning Prince of Leiningen, and whose two children, Prince Charles Emich his successor and Anne who became Princess of Hohenzollern-Langenburg and Countess Gleichen, were the parents (especially the latter) of the extensive lines of first cousins of His late Majesty numbered 245-95 in our list of the Royal Relatives.

After the death of Prince Emich Charles the Princess Victoria married the Duke of Kent, and then only issue was our late Queen. By their marriage the Houses of Hanover and Saxe-Coburg were again united after the unhappy severing of their former alliance by the death of Princess Charlotte, but the subsequent union of her late Majesty with Prince Albert, son of Duke Ernest I., effected a second amalgamation from which the two Houses have become almost identified.

MARRIAGE ALLIANCES WITH FOREIGN HOUSES.

*. The following list consists in large degree of references to the preceding table of the Royal Family, the paragraphs in fuller form are those all but restricted either to alliances which are wholly past (reaching back to Henry VIII.) or to those which are derived through some member earlier than her late Majesty. Note.—The above list, which had been omitted from our issues of 1904-5-6-7, has been again introduced, and, though occupying less space, it comprises every one of the original notices, together with several of marriages which have since occurred. The reduction in space is solely due to a cutting-down of the formal wordiness and needless repetitions which had previously been so conspicuous. With this process, however, a note has disappeared which remarked on the frequent double ceremonies of marriage, the former often by proxy, which were observed when the parties were of different religions. In its original form the list was prepared by an outside contributor for 'Whitaker's Almanack,' but being there from the first crowded out, it was adopted in the present work from its commencement (in 'Whitaker's Titled Persons') in 1897.

DESCRIPTION OF TITLE-PAGE

THERE is here either patent or latent a considerable amount of illustration of the preceding pages. Turning first to the corners, we have representations of the Stars of the Orders of the Garter, the Thistle, St. Patrick, and the Military Division of the G. C. B., exhibiting the correct form of a Maltese Cross (the shafts in which are, however, in some cases deeper). Next as to the coronets in the oval design surrounding the letter-press, we need only remark that "Nephews" corresponds to "Princes and Princesses of the Blood," and "Royal Dukes" to "Princes of the Blood Royal," whilst the "Cap of Dignity" or "of Maintenance" has been not only a head-dress of Royalty (much favoured by Henry the Seventh), but is met with in the coats of arms of forty of the nobility, including the Dukes of Norfolk, Hamilton, Richmond, Grafton, St. Albans, Leeds, Rutland, and Northumberland, together with several Peers so recently created as Barons Howard of Glossop, Norton, Brabourne, and Playfair. It is borne also by twenty-one Baronets. As to the Archbishop's mitre, which some protest ought in nowise to differ from a Bishop's, our remarks under the headings of these two Orders will suffice to make our position clear in the matter. The intermediate devices connected by chainwork are intended to show the forms of the Collars worn by the respective four Orders of Knighthood just described, to each of which belongs that quarter of the Collar lying nearest to its own figured Star. Thus perpendicularly under the Garter corner is a medal-garter depicting one of the twenty-six which are worked into the actual Collar, and on each side of it, though interrupted by the coronets, is a true-lovers' knot as described in loc. The adjacent upper quarter is devoted to the Thistle, and exhibits the device of that symbol with the intervening sprigs of rose as they are found in the Collar of the Order. Against the quarter of St. Patrick will be found the harp, rose, and knot, the series of which three make up the St. Patrick Collar. Lastly, against the Bath corner we have the crown of four arches (which we have ventured to call the Albert Crown from its having been the form worn by the late Prince Consort), the device of rose, thistle, and shamrock, and the knot. The entire chainwork, being double, may also be said to belong more particularly to this Order, as in the Collar of the Garter it appears on the inner margin only, and in those of the other two Orders the objects are attached together by their edges and without chains. Surmounting the entire oval of the title-page are the St. Edward's or Imperial Crown, and the Sceptre Royal.

PLAN OF THE DIRECTORY.

THE system of alphabetical arrangement is carried consistently out, to the entire ignoring of precedence. It would be difficult, if not impossible, to carry out this latter rule consistently in a work which places all ranks under a single alphabet. We accordingly adopt the following order in cases of more than one person having the same surname or title.—First a surname standing alone (family name), then the titles of honour, in the alphabetical order.—Archbishop, Baron, Baronet, Bishop, Count, Duke, Earl, Hon. Lady, Knight, Lady, Lord, Marquess, Master, Privy Councillor, Viscount (the widows of each rank coming immediately after that rank itself, as "Baron," "Baron's Widow"), the headings "Hon. Lady" and "Lady" being used almost exclusively as references, then follow those having a Christian name in the heading (chiefly Ladies, Honourables, and Companions of Orders), succeeding each other solely by order of those names the connecting titles, Captain, Hon., Lady, Lord, Reverend, &c., being printed in small letters and wholly ignored in the alphabetising. A Baronet or Knight who is also a Privy Councillor is placed under this latter heading as the higher in precedence. When of the same surname, Baronets are arranged in the alphabetical order of their topographical distinctions, and then widows in each case follow them, Knights and their widows stand in the order of their Christian names. The list under a simple surname is exhausted before the compounds of that name are commenced, and an arrangement is adopted which brings all the names of the same compound together. Compound names connected by a hyphen are placed under the second or last name, unless some other is the only one in use, but titles (as "Castle Ouffe," "Mount Edgecombe," "Saye and Sele," and such forms as "Egaton of Tatton" and "Wilmington de Broke") are placed under the first name, whilst those commencing with St, Du, Le, &c., and mostly De and Van (see note under "De"), stand under the respective prefixes. "Mac" is treated as if spelt Mac, and "St" as Saint. See for illustration the Preliminary List under "Campbell."

The names of wives are usually omitted when their husbands' titles do not extend to them and they bear no title of their own by birth. This rule applies to the wives of Bishops, Privy Councillors, and Companions of the Orders of Knighthood.

Under Peers' Issue the deceased offspring of former Peers are omitted. "Hereditary Dukedom," or other leading title, implies as a rule held to all the titles borne, when otherwise it is so stated. The expressions, "Title of heir when a son" and "Title of eldest son" of course refer only to sons of the existing Peer. In the Indices under surnames the same person is often repeated under more than one of his or her Christian names—simply because the first is not always the one in conventional use. The addition sep implies a separate entry under the surname.

Under Baronets, if there are more than one of the same name, the topographical distinction is added in italics in the heading. In many other instances, however, it is appended in the text, as where there is still a surviving widow of an extinct line, or where two names are pronounced alike but differently spelt (as Bailey and Bailie).

Under Knights, it may be noted that former titles since absorbed in higher ones are only appended (in parentheses) when they serve to indicate the date at which the person was first addressed as "Sir." Honorary Companions of Orders (also Hon. O.V.O.'s and generally Honorary Knights) are not inserted. Military Knights and Companions marked (e.g.) "D.S.O. (1900-1)" were so created by King Edward in 1901 but given precedence of 1900 as if conferred by the late Queen.

One Club is given (if known) when there is no other address (at least to any person higher in rank than an M.V.O.), but not otherwise unless from some specially stated reason.

The "Canthons as to Spelling of Titles &c." will now be found at the close of the Introduction immediately before Royal Families.

AIRLIE, EARL OF. DAVID LYNLPH GORE WOLSELEY Ogilvy, 6th Earl (Scot.), a minor. son of 8th E.; b. July 18, 1893, suc. 1900. Seats, Airlie Castle, Forfarsh., and Tulchan Lodge, Glenisla, Perthsh., both Alyth; Cortachy Castle, Kirriemuir, Forfarsh.; Auchterhouse, Dundee.

CREATIONS. Scot.: Ld. Ogilvy of Airlie, 1491; E. of Airlie and Ld. Ogilvy of Alyth and Lunthraen, 1639. "Ld. Ogilvy" is the courtesy-title of an eldest son—The 1st Lord Ogilvy was Ambassador to Denmark; his grandfather had been High Treasurer of Scotland. The 7th Lord was created Earl. The history of this line is involved in two Acts of Attainder which have given rise to confusion among authorities as to the number who are fairly to be classed as Earls. We have followed 'Burke' and 'Ponsonby' ('Lodge') in regarding the present Peer as the 6th, but some term him the 11th or 12th, 'Debrett' the 7th. The earlier of the two attainders cancelled the title of the elder son of the 3rd E., the latter that of the elder son and grandson of the 4th. Indeed this 4th is himself, and his younger son whom we accept as the 5th, were considered during their lifetime as also legally excluded, and this certainly gives warrant to their omission by 'Debrett,' but the subsequent Parliamentary recognition of the 6th E., their immediate descendant, seems to have been regarded as tacitly removing their own disabilities. The former of the two attainders, it may be added, was in consequence of participation in the Earl of Mar's rebellion of 1715, the latter for siding with the Pretender at Culloden.

1506, Bn Herbert of Herbert, 1509, D of Worcester, 1554, M of Worcester 1642, D of Beaufort, 1688—The Potestourt Dny was first granted to Jno de Potestourt, but fell into abeyance on the death of his son in 1406, so continuing till 1764, and again from 1776 to 1863, when it was revived to the 5th Duke. The Herbert of Herbert Dny is stated to have been first conferred upon Wm
Herbert, afterwards Earl of Pembroke, beheaded 1459.
His son succeeded him and had his baronetcy changed for that of Huntingdon. Sir Chas Someset, K G and Kt Beaufort, a natural son of Henry Beaufort, Duke of Somerset, was created Bn Herbert of Pembroke &c, but, having married the heiress of the preceding, he was summoned to Parliament as Bn
Herbert of Hereford, thus uniting the two Baronies.
Sir Chas was afterwards created Earl of Worcester.
The 6th Earl was raised to the Marquessate the and Marg before succession was addressed by the king as Earl of Glamorgan, but this title does not appear to rest on any actual creation. Not does that or Viscountess though the ruins of Beaumont Castle still exist in the late grounds of the Duke in Monmouth shire. The 3rd Marq was created Duke of Beaufort

CREATION Bn Beaumont Eng 1809 by writ—The 1st Bn Henry de Beaumont was son of Louis de Dienne (by an heir- or the Beaumonts of Noi mally whose name he assumed), and grandson of John de Lillme, King of Jerusalem by Beaugars, sister of Ferdinand King of Castile and Leon, being thus cousin to Edward II he was also a relative and companion-in-arms of Edward I in his Scottish wars. The and Baron John, married Eleanor Plantagenet, daughter of Henry Earl of Lancaster who was grandson of Henry III and great grandson through his mother Blanche d'Artois of Louis VIII of France. Isabel, daughter of the 1st Baron married Henry Duke of Lancaster and was grandmother of Henry IV. On the death of the 7th Bn in 1597 the Peerage fell into abeyance and so continued until 1840. A second but much brief abeyance followed in 1866 when the 10th Bn left at his death two daughters, to the elder of whom the succession was awarded by the Crown in the next year.
The 6th and 7th Bns held the title or Vis Beaumont [1440-1507], this constituting the first creation of that rank in England

CREATIONS. Eng. Bn Russell of Cheneyes, 1539; E of Bedford, 1550; Bn Russell of Thornhaugh, 1603; D. of Bedford and M. of Tavistock, 1694. Bn. Howland, 1695.—An Earldom of Bedford and two Dukedoms had existed between 1150 and 1495, but had all become extinct the earliest to hold the Dukedom was a brother of King Henry V., who became Regent of England and Constable of France during the next King's minority. The above Bny and Earldom were conferred upon John Russell, a gentleman residing on the Dorsetshire coast, whose cousin Sir Thos. Trenchard had hospitably entertained the Archduke Philip of Austria, who, in a voyage from Flanders to Spain, had been driven into Weymouth by a violent hurricane. Sir Thomas acquainted the Court with the presence of the illustrious visitor, but deputed the actual attendance upon him to Mr. Russell, who had lately returned from the Continent and was familiar with the Spanish language. He was in consequence introduced (with the Archduke) to Henry VII., by whom he was taken into favour, and this continued under his three successors to the throne. The 5th Earl obtained the Dukedom and Marquessate, the 2nd Duke before succession being given the Howland Baron, that of Thornhaugh having been awarded to the 4th son of the 2nd Earl, whose own son succeeded as 4th Earl William, Lord Russell (courtesy—title; he was "Hon. Wm. Russell" until the death of his elder brother), the distinguished statesman who was beheaded in 1683 on a charge of high treason, was 2nd son of the Earl who became 1st Duke. The youngest brother of the 9th Duke became 1st Bn. Amptihill, as stated in loc.

Scott the 2nd Lt. Scott had carried on a predatory warfare against the Douglas, but on the conclusion of a peaceful arrangement he was delivered up as a hostage and when in England was brought before Queen Elizabeth who imperiously demanded of him how he had dared to engage in such deeds. But for once the haughty woman had found her match for the rowdy answer came: "What is there that a man dares not do?" Struck with the reply she turned to a Lord in waiting and said: "With ten thousand such men our brother of Scotland might shake the firmest throne in Europe." This brother was James VI. who on becoming James I. of Great Britain among his first acts made a Lord of the Intimacy a Viscount. His successor obtained the honours of 1859. The 6th Vis. in his married name, Duke of Montagu, a natural son of Charles II., who afterwards assumed the name and received the Dukedom of Buccleuch with the Dalketh Earldom. He was afterwards executed for rebellion, but the titles were unaltered being held jointly by his wife to whom those of 1859 and 1859 had come by inheritance. The Queensberry Dukedom was "Queensberry, Mary", with other titles of 1706 came into this line through the 3rd Duke or B. becoming, succeeded to the 4th of Q. The original surname was Scott to which the 4th Duke prefixed Montagu, and then the 5th inserted Douglas.

Mount Stuart, Cumbriae (prob. orig. Cumbria—see that art.), and Inchmarnock, 1703. Gt. Br. Ld. Mount Stuart, 1761; Bn. Cardiff, 1775, M. of Bute, E. of Windsor, and Viscount Mountjoy, 1796—'Burke' gives as the founder of this family Jno Stuart, son of King Robert II., who about 1335 constituted Bute and the adjacent islands into a county and appointed the son of the above its Hereditary High Sheriff. A descendant was created 1st Bt. In a distinct family, Sir Robt. Crichton was made Ld. C. of Sanquhar for repelling an English invasion of Scotland. The 6th of this title was hanged for procuring the assassination of a person who, seven years previously, had deprived him of an eye in a fencing-match. The 7th Ld. obtained the titles of 1622-33; among these was the Dumfries Ealdom, the 6th holder of which became and Marq. of Bute (his mother, daughter of the 5th Earl of D., having married the 1st Marq.). Sir James Stuart, 3rd Bt., one of the Commissioners engaged in arranging the Union with England, was recipient of the 1703 Scottish honours, which included the Ealdom of Bute. The wife of the 3rd Earl was created Bnss Mount Stuart of Gt. Britain, whilst her son, the 4th Earl, became 1st Marquess, having, before succeeding to either of the older titles, been himself created Bn. Cardiff.

Dwyer, Byron Lodge, 29 Fitzjohn's Avenue, Hampstead, N.W.

CARYON, BN BYRON ENG 1843—Sir John Byron Kt of the Bath and M.P. for Nottingham who took his brother who succeeded him by special remainder was a devoted officer in the army of Charles I. was the first of this line of Peers, repaid illustrious by its sixth representative. The 5th Bn. was obliged before his peers for killing Mr. Chaworth in a duel but the privilege escaped with a fine on the strength of a substitute of Edward V.L. His successor the poet (George Gordon Noel Byron) was his great nephew, son of a disolute captain in the Army, but his grandfather the and son of the 4th Bn. was the renowned Adam Byron whose adventures were being wrecked in the S. Pacific as well known and are expressly depicted in a paragraph of Lambell's Pleasures of Home. The poet Byron himself however was a more lament his intemperance of errors with some admirable qualities, is all but universally acknowledged to his life as a minister of surpassing genius and may reward him as the greatest of English poets since Milton. He was remarkably free from anxiety, whilst the nobility or his conduct in throwing himself into the struggle of the day or in the day-dying of a fever on what is now Pease Bay at Misoloughi in 1826, when but 36 years of age—must ever endear his name with all who can appreciate deeds of true generosity.

CASTLESTEWART EARL HENRY JAMES Stuart-Panlson 5th Earl (Irel), and a D L (Scot) son of 4th D, b March 21 1837, assumed by licence the addit name Richard in 1867, suc 1874, mar 1866 the late Angeline Le Vicomte Massy-Richardson (d 1908), widow of Maj Hugh Massy (to whose name she had appended "Richardson") and dau of the late Maj W S Richardson-Brady. Seat, Stuart Hall, Stewartstown, Co Tyrone.

CHAMBERS Irel Lt Stuart Bn of Castlestewart, 1802, Viscountstewart, 1803, Earl Castlestewart, 1804. A D L 1804. "Viscountstewart" is the courtesy title of the heir when a son. The ancestry includes in a Duke of Albany, four Lords Ivandale, and two Lords Saur. of Uchillie. The successor of these but still a Baron, but was afterwards created Lt Stuart of Castlestewart, the 6th Lt becoming Viscount and Earl. The orthography of the above title is variously given but by the courtesy of his Lordship we are able to give a clear account of the confusion. When the present Peer proceeded to prove his right, it came to light that in the patent of his leading title he was created "Earl Castlestewart," whilst in those of both the Barony and Viscounty the form was "Castlestewart." This latter or else "Castle-Stuart" has obtained a footing among the relatives, and been followed by some of the "Peers"—N B The Imperial Barony of the Moray Earldom, which of course is wholly distinct, is given in the Roll of the Peers as "Stuart of Castle-Orkney"—essentially identical in form with one in the first line of this paragraph.

CHATELHERAULT, Duke or Two Dukes in our Peerage hold the French title of Duc de Châtellerault—the D of Abercorn by inheritance from James Hamilton, E of Anan, who received it in 1549, and the D of Hamilton, who obtained it by a new creation from Napoleon III. in 1854. (Both their Graces are of the Hamilton line.)

*The original Dukedom passed from the 3rd D of Argyll to the 3rd Marquess of Argyll and Duke of Hamilton, but upon the death of the 1st of these 3rd, the male issue the succession devolved upon the D of Abercorn. This new creation of 1854 is thus the restoration of a former by-law

Chamberlain (acted during last reign), a D L for Norfolk, formerly Lieut Chesh Yeom. son of Chas Geo Cholmondeley, Esq., who died 1866 (son of Lord William Cholmondeley, who in 1870 became 3rd Marq., succeeding his elder bro.), b July 3, 1838, suc 1884 (C), mar 1879 Winifred Ida, dau of the late Col Sir Robt N F Kingscote, KCB Seat, Cholmondeley Castle, Malpas, Cheshire, Houghton Hall, King's Lynn CREATIONS Irel Viscount Cholmondeley, 1861, Bn Newborough (Wexford), 1872, Flag Bn Cholmondeley, 1889 Earl Cholmondeley, 1891 Viscount Malpas, 1895 (UK, Bn Newburgh (Anglesey), 1895 UK M of Cholmondeley and E of Rocksvale, 1895—Robert Cholmondeley was the first to receive the Irish Viscounty, together with other honours, but he died without issue and these all lapsed, after which his nephew was created 1st Viscount and 2nd Viscount obtained the English Earldom and other Peerages of 1839 and 1895, his successor the 3rd Earl was awarded the Baronies of Newborough and Newburgh, and the 4th Earl was raised to the Marquessate.

The post of Lord Great Chamberlain is held jointly by the Marq. of Cholmondeley, the Earl of Ancester, and Earl Carrington, who exercise its functions alternately, reign by reign, Earl Carrington being now the one in office. We find first mention of it as conferred by Henry I. upon the father of the 1st Earl of Oxford, and it remained for centuries in that now extinct line, but the elder and heiress of the 17th Earl married the 12th Bn. Willoughby de Eresby, and their son the 13th Bn. established his claim as successor to the appointment. It thus passed down, with the Barony itself to the Baroness numbered 21st, and jointly to her younger sister, who married the 1st Marq. of Cholmondeley, the two sisters had been joint heiresses to the Barony and therefore to the Chamberlainship also (a lady holding the office would doubtless have acted by deputy), the post being thus divided between them, whilst the Peerage went into abeyance till awarded by the Crown to the elder of the two. Almost precisely the same procedure followed the death of the 2nd Bn. who had become Joint Lord Great Chamberlain with the Marquess. He left two sisters as joint heiresses the elder, after an abeyance, was awarded the Barony, whilst the younger married the 2nd Bn. Carrington and thus introduced a line of third partners to the post under notice. This question of succession under the last reign was the subject of a contest before the Committee of Privileges of the House of Lords, the Duke of Atholl also advancing a claim as senior heir general of the 12th Earl of Oxford. But after prolonged deliberation the Committee decided that the previous arrangement was the correct one, the office being vested in the lines of the three former holders, whose duty it now was to choose one of their number to exercise its functions. Naturally this choice was determined by order of rotation. The Marq. of Cholmondeley thus succeeded to the Earl of Ancester until the death of his late August King Edward, when he was succeeded in his turn by Earl Carrington.

Bn. Somerset, 1866 — Ulster Duke, of the line or feudal Lords of Clanricarde, was awarded the title of 1842. The 4th Earl obtained the Marquessate and the U.K. Barony, a son of the 3rd Earl having been created Viscount Burke, with remainder to the male issue of his father. The 4th Earl had been granted some English and Irish titles, and the 5th an Irish Marquessate, but all these honours expired. The 6th Earl was Colonel of a regiment in the army of James II. and was taken prisoner, attainted, and outlawed, but pardoned and restored under Anne 1. and Marquessate lasted 1769-97.
The 7th under the 3rd creation (1865) was Ambassador at St. Petersburg, Prussian General and Lord Privy
Seal. His Lordship writes his title "Clanricarde", and has courteously informed us that eleven of his predecessors in the Earldom adopted the same orthography, though the other has been observed in both the English and Irish Rolls of the Peerage

The 9th Bn. was made Earl of Lincoln, and the two titles were associated till the death of the 5th Earl in 1692, when the Barony fell into abeyance till 1721 (see "Newcastle, Duke of"). A second abeyance followed in 1751, but was removed in 1760 by the death of one of the ladies, the other, who succeeded, marrying the 2nd Earl of Orford, their son becoming 3rd Earl and 16th Bn., but the Earldom expired at his death, till re-created in 1806, whilst the Bn. went to a cousin. The 20th Bn. in 1867 assumed by licence the additional names Hepburn-Stuart-Forbes, he having married the heiress of Sir Jno Stuart Forbes, 8th Bt. of Pittsligo, who himself had assumed the name Hepburn, and whose whole estates went to this daughter.

CONWAY OF RAGLEY, Baron (Eng 1703),
 OF KILLULTAGH (Irel 1712)—see "Hartford,
 M of," whose title is "Bn Conway" on Irish Roll

CONYERS, BARONESS—see "Fauconberg and Conyers," also "Darcy de Knayth"

*• The three Baronies of Fauconberg, Darcy de Knayth, and Memill, Peerages by writ which had been in abeyance for several centuries, were in 1903 brought before the Committee of Privileges of the House of Lords as jointly accruing to the two daughters of the 14th Bn Conyers. The decision arrived at was that in the line of Fauconberg and Darcy the said ladies were strictly the co-heiresses, but not in that of Memill it not being certain that any person had ever sat in the Lords under that title. The abeyance as thus defined lasted but a few weeks longer. His Majesty in September awarding one of the two Baronies to each of the two sisters as presently stated. The elder of these had already obtained the Conyers Barony by a like determination of abeyance in 1888, thus having lasted for the four years from her father's death, whilst she had previously become by marriage Ctes of Yarborough, as her sister in 1890 became Ctes of Powis. The award consequently makes the Ctes of Yarborough Bn in her own right of Fauconberg and Conyers, and the Ctes of Powis similarly Bn of Darcy de Knayth.

CONYERS, BARON'S WIDOW—see "Darcy de Knayth and Conyers"

*• In the course of the above deliberation of the Committee of Privileges it was decided that the Barony of Darcy, instead of remaining along in abeyance from 1828, was really called out of that condition ("determined") by a new patent in 1847 the ancient rule as to Baronies by writ subsisting nevertheless.
 Thus the late 18th Bn Conyers who died in 1888 was posthumously established to have been de jure Bn Darcy de Knayth and Conyers, and that double title is therefore now the designation of his widow

 Bn Minister, 1802—The Rt Hon Henry Conyngham, M.P. was the 1st Bn, that title having originally been awarded him in 1793, but without the special remainder to his nephew which the later creation contained. He had also received the Earl and Viscount, but these lapsed at his death and were granted afresh to the 3rd in line, and followed by the Marquessate and its accompanying honours. The nephew who was his immediate successor was his sister's son, William Burton, M.P. who then assumed the surname, Conyngham. It was to this latter's son that the revived titles of 1799 and onwards were awarded

CREATIONS As Bn Boyle of Youghal, 1615, E of Cork and Viso Dungannon, 1660 Viso Boyle of Kinnemurky, Bn Broghill, and Bn of Bandon Bridge, 1666, E of Orrery, 1660 Gt Br Bn Boyle (of Marston), 1712—Sir Richd Boyle (Kt), P J, obtained the first three of the above titles, being afterwards made Lord Treasurer of Ireland and obtaining the popular designation of "The Great Earl of Cork." His son was made Bn Broghill, and the 3rd created Earl of Orrery (whose grandson, the 4th Earl, invented the astronomical contrivance known as an orrery or planetarium) The said

Earl of Cork was made Earl of Burlington in England but this title lapsed and was created in the Devonshire house. Upon the death of the 4th Earl of Cork the 5th Earl of Orrey succeeded him and thus equalised the numbering of the two titles. The 1st Earl of Shannon was a nephew of the earl of Orrey, but the Scottish Earl of Glasgow, though also bearing the same surname, is totally distinct.

COWPER (pron Cowper), ELEANOR (St Br 1718)—extinct 1905 on death of 7th Earl (surname Cowper)

* Sir Wm Cowper, 3rd Bt, an eminent lawyer and statesman, was created Bn and Earl Cowper and Vice Lord of the Treasury shortly afterwards appointed Lord Chancellor of Great Britain The poet Cowper was his great nephew The titles Butler and Dingwall were inherited by the wife of the Earl, and that of Lucas by the wife of the 5th Of these three Baronies, that of Butler is by writ and therefore subject to abeyance, the other two, though also open to female succession, are not hampered by that condition, that of Lucas being a patent which admits of a female in default of a male, and that of Dingwall, though open to heirs whatsoever, following Scottish rules, under which abeyance is not recognised. Both of these titles have accordingly passed to Anthony Thos Herbert, son of the late Earl's sister Lady Florence Herbert, but the Butler Bar has gone into abeyance between Lord Lucas and Dingwall his sister Ann Lou Herbert, and the Lady Dumborough (Mrs H. arms with Lord Welles upon London Bridge before King Richard II. and his Queen. The 6th Earl was one of the many Scottish nobles who fell at Flodden Field. The 15th Earl fought on the Royalist side at Marston Moor. On his death without issue the Earldom passed to that of Lindsay (see note there) but the Lordship to another collateral who was made 1st Lindsay of Balcarres, his successor becoming Earl of the same and 1st Balcarres. The 6th Earl of Balcarres succeeded as 2nd of Crawford and the 24th Earl of Crawford obtained the U.K. Barony.

CREATON H of Crampton, Vise Turbat, and Bn Castlehaven and MacLeod, U.K. 1861—This is a revival of an earlier Peerage, which was granted to the 2nd Lt Mackenzie of Turbat, but forfeited by the 3rd Earl (Cromarty res) through his share in the raising of 1746.

The latter creation was bestowed upon Anna, Duchess of Cumberland, descendant in 5th generation from the 3rd Earl of the older line. Upon her death her son, Francis, succeeded, but he left no son, and the terms of limitation which run into six clauses appeared to accentuate any restriction, which caused a delay of 25 months in the succession of the present Countess. The expression "called out of abeyance" was adopted in the legal instrument, but of course there could be no abeyance in the usual technical sense in the case of a Peerage by patent. The family name till quite recently was Sutherland and Leeson lower then was lately Mackenzie, Lillan, and Blunt Mackenzie.

CREATION Eng Bn Darcy de Knavyth, 1322 by writ, called out of abeyance by patent with former prece denials and limitations 1342, and again on investigation in 1352. —The 2d Bn was John Darcy brother of Philip 8th Bn Darcy of Nocton, whose line is presumed to have been in abeyance from his death about 1350 up till now. The 2d Bn of the line at 1322 was distinguished in the Scottish wars. His successor married Elizabeth, Bns Meimil in her own right, thus giving occasion to the view that this title also accrued to the positioners in the late suit for "Conyers". Her descendant the 4th Bn D and 5th Bn D died in 1228 without male issue, whereupon his titles both fell into abeyance, which endured as to them both until 1342 when Conyers Darcy, who was descended through his mother from the lines of both Darcy and Conyers, received two patents of "restoration and creation" according him the titles of Bn Darcy and Bn Conyers. This is regarded by Nicolas as a new and distinct creation, leaving the old Bn Darcy by writ in its existing abeyance —especially as the patent limited the succession to heirs male. But in the argument before the Committee of Privileges it was demonstrated that this limitation was an error as being contrary to the terms of the title which it was expressly meant to restore. Hence the conclusion that in 1778 the late creation expired and the older one remained as in 1342 is pronounced erroneous for the abeyance had been terminated in 1342, and the title really passed, together with that of Conyers, to the wife of the Marq of Carmarthen, and from her to the 5th and 7th Dukes of Leeds. The 4th Bn Darcy and Conyers were created Earl of Holderness, and that title endured up till the death of the 4th Earl in the above year 1778. The joint titles of Darcy and Conyers also, as now corrected, expired de jure up till 1888, when they did in reality fall into abeyance between two sisters, to each of whom by the successive determinations of 1829 and 1893, one of the two titles has been assigned another Bay, that of Farnborough, going also to the possessor of that of Conyers. There are five Bns of Darcy mentioned by Nicolas, all of the same original house, and the above 2d Bn Darcy and Conyers derived his descent from the Knavyth line through the medium of that of Darcy of Darcy another line was that of Conyers of Newar, a fourth, that of Nocton, is mentioned above, and the fifth was that of Chiche, out of which the Colchester Viscty is stated to have arisen

dau of the late Rogd Cartwright, Esq), mar 1860 12th Bn Conyers, posthumously established to have been de jure also 15th Bn Darcy de Knavyth (d 1838, when both Bns fell into abeyance, that of Conyers being "determined" in 1892 and that of Darcy in 1903—see preceding art and also "Conyers"), is mother of the preceding, and also of Bns Farnborough and Conyers Res, 26 Grosvenor Gdns, S W

DE - Note (lately revised) on the treatment of that prefix in this work.

This prefix, which is usually, either French or Dutch in its origin, has been adopted in many names of our own aristocracy and others and is thus sometimes combined with the names of the various European countries. It is treated in a similar manner (including even "Castile" and "Mount") precisely as if they were all thus combined. In the list that follows, however, there are many names of the kind which are foreign altogether, and in the case of these we have hesitated as to entering the name under the prefix, for this often seems on its very face like entering an English title under the word "DE." In fact, the straightforwardness of that plan in the case of a foreign name has been so urged upon us that we have felt compelled to force the traditional conference of uniformity and to remove from the prefix to the leading word such names as appear to be territorial titles preceded by de or de la, van or van der or von. The Italian di is never made the leading word, and our French adviser informs us that the practice in France is mainly to disregard all prefixes, whether prepositions or articles. Thus de is clear and consistent rule, but for our English use we are not at present prepared to adopt it in the case of an article. Hence a complication arises. The Editor was informed about 25 years ago that the authorities of the British Museum were disposed to make the distinction de, van, and to carry it to the extent of entering names in de under de, and those in van or van der under der, but they did not adopt that plan, and without some high authority neither shall we. But, again, we have the inseparable prefixes continuing both preposition and article—de and des in French, de in Italian, and da in Portuguese, and in all these cases the prefix is to be followed. In other instances the rules we shall endeavour to follow are these: An article alone (French le, or la and Dutch de) is also always to be the leading word, a preposition alone is not to lead if the title appears to be territorial and not a part of the surname, and the compounds de la and des are to be treated as simple prepositions, just as if there was no article in the case. It is, however, but a minority of our entries that will be affected by these alterations and references will be given whenever it appears that a name would reasonably be looked for elsewhere. As to capitalizing the prefix, experience has shown that no rule can be laid down each family having its own preference for de or des though we may presume that the former denotes an essential part of the original name, and the latter points to a territorial association.

CLIFFORD Bn de Clifford, Eng 1909 by writ—Sir H Nicolas mentions four Bns by tenure of this title dating from the reign of Henry II. Robt Clifford, the grandson of the last of these was the 1st Bn by writ. The 3th Bn was slain in 1456 in the Civil Wars and his honours were forfeited, but they were restored to his son whose assistance his mother had kept concealed from his birth in 1456, she bringing him up as a shepherd. The 2nd to 5th Bns were also Earls of Cumberland but that title now passed to a brother and shortly became extinct. The titles of Countess of Dorset, Earl of Thanet and Countess of Leicester appear subsequently in this line but the old Barony eventually emerged as a title by itself

Creatio 4th Bn De La Warr, 1872, with precedence or 1879 (written) 1st Bn Earl De La Warr and Viso Lantape, 1872 (UK Bn Buckhurst, 1884—The original creation of the De La Warr Barony was in 1299, the recipient being Roger Le Warr who had attended Edward I in his wars with France but the line fell into abeyance in 1554, together with that of West (1554 and 1555), conferred on Sir Thos West (who had fought under the 3rd Edward) and repeated to his grandson of same name the title having by marriage become merged in that of De La Warr. The abeyance was never formally terminated, but a nephew of the latest Bn, Sir Wm West (Kt), who had served in the English Army in France, was re-created in the title of De La Warr in 1772. The 7th in his line a General in the Army and Knight of the Bath, who had been Governor of New York and of Guernsey was elevated to the Earldom. The family name of West became altered by the marriage of the 5th Earl with Lady Eliza Sackville, daughter of the 2nd Duke of Dorset, on whose death in 1842 with extinction of his line, the Earl prefixed his surname to that of West, whilst the 7th Earl dropped West altogether. The above Lady Elizabeth was created Baroness Buckhurst, and the 4th son of her marriage with the 5th Earl obtained the Sackville Boy (1841)

CREATIONS. Eng E of Derby, 1848, a Bt Lord U.K. Bn Stanley of Buckerstaffe, 1859, Bn Stanley of Preston, 1886 (Peerage granted to late Earl whilst he bro held the Earldom)—Sir M of Stanley, K G, Lord Lieut of Ireland for six years, an Comptroller and Chamberlain to Henry VI, was raised to the Peerage in 1456 by the title Bn Stanley, his son being advanced to the Earldom in recognition of his services at the Battle of Bosworth Field, where he placed King Richard's crown upon the head of Richmond. Sir Edw Stanley, and son of this 2nd Earl, figured later on at Flodden Field, being rendered famous by "the last words of Marston." For this service he was raised to the Peerage by Henry VIII as Bn Montagu (or Hornby Castle, Lancs), a title which has been in abeyance from about 1386. The original Barony of Stanley also fell into abeyance between daughters on the death of the 5th Earl (the Earldom itself going to a brother), and the title Stanley of Buckerstaffe, granted to the 13th Earl, is apparently the form of revival. The 14th Earl, the well-known reformer of the middle of last century, was summoned to the Lords in his father's lifetime by the title of this last Barony. He entered the Commons in 1822, and held various offices during his career in both Houses (under Lord Godolphin and others) till himself appointed Premier in 1852, 1858 and 1868. He was Chancellor of Oxford University and author of a valuable translation of the Iliad. He was the 15th and 16th Earls also had distinguished careers in both Houses of Parliament, the former having been Secretary of State for India, Foreign Affairs, and the Colonies, whilst the latter was Secretary for War and the Colonies and Governor General of Canada.

CREATION. Bn. de Ros, Eng. 1264 by writ, Premier Baron of England on the Roll, and as such the late Peer did homage for the Barons at the Coronation of 1292—Robert de Ros, one of the Barons who took a leading part against Henry III., and grandson of one of the 25 appointed to enforce the observance of Magna Charta, was awarded this title by Sir Simon de Montfort, and the House of Lords in 1841 allowed this title and that of Le Despencer to stand as from that date (see note in "Historic Peerage"). Sir H. Nicolas, who spells the name "de Roos," enumerates five Bns by tenure previous to the above Robert. The 4th Bn de Ros led the 2nd division of the English army at Crecy. The 13th Bn, Thos. Manners (female succession having caused a change in the surname), was created Earl of Rutland, but on the death of the 6th Earl (13th Bn) this title passed to a brother, and then on the latter's death to a cousin, who is the founder of the line of the present Dukedom. The Barony went to the previous Earl's daughter, who married Geo Villhous, 1st Duke of Buckingham (assassinated 1629). Their son became 2nd Duke and 20th Bn. He died without issue in 1637, when the Dukedom expired and the Barony fell into abeyance until 1866, when that condition was terminated in favour of Charlotte, daughter of Hon. Robt Boyle-Walsingham and wife of 1st Henry FitzGerald, descended on her mother's side from the above 6th Earl's sister: she assumed the additional name of De Ros after FitzGerald, but the marriage of the present Baroness has effected another change.

DEVON, Dnpt of CHARLES PETER, Countess, 14th Earl (E 7) and a Bt F.S. late C.P. and Hon Maj 3rd Batt Somerset LI (Mil) son of the late Lord Courtney and grandson of 13th E, b July 12, 1870, suc 1904 (C), married 1904, Powderham Castle, Exeter, the Castle, Newcastle West, Co Limerick, Walshedon Manor, Tavistock, Ford House, Exton Albot, Devon, LL 1918, 35 Buckingham St, S W

CREATIONS JAMES E of Devon, 22nd, a Bt 1644. "Lord Courtney" was courtesy title of an eldest son. This Earldom has been five times extinct and once dormant, and the history of its line given in Burke's records four subsidiary and four subsidiary sons in the latter by order of Edward IV for their descent on the Lancastrian side, a third falling to the subsidiary of the Earl of Warwick's line. The earliest appearance is in the reign of Henry I the surname then being De Redvers, but on the death of the 5th Earl this name was changed to the title as it is derived some 50 years later in the reign of Henry II by marriage. It is connected with the older line. Other creations followed under the 7th and 8th Henry—the latest of these being accompanied with the dignity of Marq of Exeter, but its holder, on losing it, was, as usual, re-created and bore it. The 2nd creation was made by Queen Mary and in the person of Edward Courtney son of Henry VIII a late victim, but on the death of this Earl, in 1566, the title became dormant and so remained for 25 years except that another Earl who left no successor was created in 1567, until in 1591 it was re-created by the House of Lords to the 3rd Viscount Courtney. On his decease 10 years later the Viscountcy became extinct, but the Earldom has this time survived, though with the usual accompaniment of a Lordship as the number who may be regarded as Earls as yet is only a few of this last creation but a actually borne or even claimed the title, but Mr Coke's enumeration 33 when all are told from the first creation

No record exists of any family connection with the Duke of the title but we have been obligingly supplied by Mr Coke with a solution of its origin. As noted above, it is, in fact, an Earldom, and the titles of Earls used, contrary to a habitually taken from some 1000, so, as that of Derby is an already appropriated Devonshire was selected as the next in order that was vacant CREATION Viso Dillon, 1st Vis—Sir Theobald Dillon (Kt), who commanded a troop in Queen Elizabeth's reign, was created 1st Vis after having been made a Knight Banneret on the field in 1559 by the Earl of Essex. 'Burke' relates of him that 'he had so numerous a progeny that he assembled at one time in his house above a hundred of his descendants'. The 7th Vis was outlawed in 1696 for having raised the Dillon Regiment in support of James II. The 12th Vis conformed to the Established Church it was he who assumed the additional name of Lee as noticed under the family name above. The present heir to the title has lately rejoined the older religion.

*A The late Baronet wrote to us in 1904, expressing an objection to our term "and heir," or rather to the use of the word "heir" at all. There appears to exist an old legal pronouncement "Nemo heres est vivens." No one is heir of a living person, but in Johnson's quarto Dictionary we find the Latin definition "Unusquisque est inherens aliquid et sua present possessione," and this is fortified by quotations from Locke, Shakespeare, Pope and Swift, whilst the frequent employment of the word in Shakespeare &c "One born in my house is mine heir," Gen. vi 3, and "This is the heir let us kill him," Matt. xxi 38) is surely, in conjunction with the preceding, abundant justification for what is now the all but universal usage.

CREATIONS Bn of Dunboyne, Irel 1794 by writ, 1841 pat. giving the precedence to William Le Petit, Lord of Dunboyne and Mullingar, was according to 'Foster (now styled 'Lodge'), summoned to the Irish Parliament by King John in 1207, but Sir Thos le Botiller, who on a like summons took his seat in 1344, counts as the 2nd, according to Burke, of the series of 25 Barons. Burke's still gives 1794 as his summary of creations and the late Peer gave same date to ourselves but neither authority makes mention of any summons being issued in that year. He was younger brother of an Earl of Curragh created by Edward II and soon extinct. The 16th Bn obtained the patent. The 20th Bn was R O Bishop of Cork. The late Baron took the surname Offord Butler, but it has gone so far, has only issue being married daughter

CHRONICLE Eng Bn Fauconberg 1895 by writ, Bn Conyers 1899 by writ—The 1st Bn Walker is Fauconberg, is known to have been summoned by Edward I to a Parliamentary assembly at Shrewsbury in 1263 and slain 1266, and he was one of the signatories to the letter of the Barons to the Pope in reference to the opposing claims of Edward and Boniface to be ruler of Scotland. The 6th Bn was created Earl of Kent, but at his death in 1403 that title became extinct, and the Barony, which was strictly his wife's, fell at her decease into an abeyance of some four and a half centuries between their three daughters the youngest of whom was wife of Sir Jno Conyers. The son of these two, Sir Wm Conyers, was created Bn Conyers, he served at the siege of Norham Castle and at Flodden Field and was Constable of Richmond and Middleham Castles. In the 18th century a Lane Conyers married the Marq of Carmarthen, affds 5th Duke of Leeds, and the title remained in that Duke dom till 1899 when the death of the 7th Duke without issue or brother devolved the primary succession upon a cousin, but permitted the present Barony to pass to the son of his deceased sister. As stated under "Conyers," upon the death of the 12th Bn of that title in 1888 an abeyance of four years ensued

ff—Note on the proper names commencing with ff or hf

The use of a double f, at the beginning of proper names, still affected by a few families, is merely a mistaken use in print of the written form of capital F which was in almost universal use, as a relic of mediæval script, up to the early part of 17th century. Most London leases, for instance, engrossed a century ago or even less, will show that not only proper names but all other nouns, which would have been printed with an initial F, were engrossed or written with a letter which in appearance amounts to two small f's intertwined. But there is no more reason why a man named "French" should have his name printed "french" or "Prench" than that he should print Freshold, flue, flodden-field or fliea. In fact, the ancestors of every Banton, whose name begins with F to-day, wrote their names at one time with an intertwined "ff," although these names invariably appeared in print with a simple capital F. The Fenches, Farringtons, Folkes, Fieldens and Finches of to-day have thus no more warrant for affecting the double "ff" in print than have the Fentons, Fields, Fosters, Fasers or any other family whose name begins with F. The whole mistake has arisen in consequence of their names written in some old document with what they believed to be a double f, whereas in reality the letter was only the then usual form of a written capital F. To be logical, even in writing, these families should continue to write "the" as "ye."

GALLOWAY, EARL OF RANDOLPH HENRY STEWART, 11th Earl (Scott) s. et. as Bn Stewart of Garlies (St D.), formerly Capt 42nd Ror Highlnds and served in Crimea and Indian Mutiny son of 9th E and bro of 10th, b Oct 14, 1836, suc 1901 (C), mar 1891 Amy Mary Pauline, dau of the late Anthony J Cliffe, Esq Seats, Cumloden, Newton-Stewart, Wigtownsh, GlenTrol Lodge, Bannan, Kirkcubbin, nr Newton-Stewart, town addres., Prince's Hotel, 37 Jermyon St, S W

CREATIONS Scot. Id. of Garlies, 1807, E of Galloway, 1856 Gr Br Bn Stewart of Garlies, 1796

This house is descended from Sir Wm Stewart, who was made a Knight Banneret about 1385 was Clerk of Audit to the King, Ambassador to England, Sheriff of Teviotdale and "The Forest" (see Selkirk), and figured as a Captain at Otterburn (Cherry Chase), but was after wards captured at Homildon Hill and while in prison put to death by Hotspur The family records have been destroyed by fire, but he is believed, as stated by Burke, to have been a younger son of Sir Alex Stewart of Darnley, whose eldest son, Sir John, was ancestor of the Earls and Dukes of Lennox and of Lord Darnley, from whom descended the Stuart line of Kings An earlier ancestor of the family was Alexander, 4th Hereditary Lord Stewart of Scotland, who was granted the Barony (i.e. the estate) of Garlies in reward for his services in defeating the Danes in 1265, this passed to his wife then to her son John, Earl of Moray and by him it was transferred to his uncle Sir Walter Stewart, and eventually to a kinsman, the Abbot Sir William A later Sir Alexander was in 1507 made Lord of Garlies, and in 1563 advanced to the Earldom His son the 2nd Earl was made a Bt before succession, but the creation was cancelled 1564 The 7th Earl obtained the British Barony All the elder branches having become extinct, the Earl of Galloway is now the recognised head of the house of Stewart

CARRONS A Bt Gt Br 1784, Bn Gardner, Ir-I 1800, UK 1805—Adm. Sur. Altn. Gardner, M.P. for Plymouth and Westminster, a Lord of the Admiralty, and a distinguished officer under Eli Howe, obtained successively all of these titles

* * The 3rd Bn. died in 1833 leaving no legitimate male issue. Contested claims to the name were now advanced by two and coming both from branches of the and son of the 1st Bn. The claimant still lately supposed to stand alone was Alan Hyde, and son of the 2nd son just named, but he died in 1850 leaving a son, the 1st claimant Alan Hyde. But a rival claimant is usually another Alan Hyde, grandson of the 1st son of the above and son, whose father (d. 1805) bore the same name, and who traces his line upon an alleged irregularity in the marriage of his rival's grandfather, stating that his father, which was effected with an Indian man, a cousin of his own his grandfather, who is further laying married an Indian princess, who is adopted as a daughter by the Emperor of Delhi. The 1st claimant himself, the father of Alan Hyde was the third to marry a native Indian girl, the ceremony being performed in their case by a Mahomedan minister in the house of the claimant's father. His first wife, the Alan Hyde who died in 1805, was an artist in the Indian, where he assumed the title of Baron. His son, of the same name, now continues the rivalry. Theirs have been four Alan Hydes in the pedigree—1st son of the 1st son d. 1805, father of the claimant Alan Hyde, and the 3rd son, with his own son and grandson the rival claimant

Sent, Brownswood, Ennisorthy, Co Wexford, town 125, 14 The Boltons, S Kennington, S W

CREATION Ld Gray, Scot 2444—The present Bess is sometimes given as the 20th in line. The contested point is whether it was Sir Andrew Gray (Kt) or his untitled son of the same Christian name who was originally summoned as Ld Gray. 'Lirke' says distinctly the latter, and as the Union Roll places the Barony after that of Raitoun, created 2445, and as neither 'Burke' nor 'Dahurst' goes earlier than 1444 as its starting point, whereas the knighted Sir Andrew died in 1438, we are compelled in consistency to call this the 19th Barony, though possibly 'Dahurst' ('Lodge') may be right in dating it "before 1437". It was a matter of dispute almost at its beginning. On the death of the Bess 17th in line the succession devolved upon her and cousin the 14th Earl of Moray by whom the Barony was held from 1870 till his death without issue, when the former title was released by the succession of his niece.

23rd in line (the Barony having been in abeyance 1868-85, when determined in her favour), b.

Nov. 14, 1858, suc. 1887 (C.), mar. 1892 the late Evelyn Isobel Ida Charlotta (d. 1905), dau. of Jas.
Foster, Esq., of Windsor Seat, Bellows Grove,
Mt. Bellow, Co. Galway.

CREATION. On Grey de Ruthyn, Eng. 1294 by writ (see "Hastings, Marquessate, class of notes")—The 2nd Bn. by writ was Roger de Grey, who according to "Nichols' Ws."
son of the 3rd feudal Bn. 6153 of Codr. a line abt. from 1294, but "Lurke" gives him as 4th son of the 2nd and Bn. Grey de Wilton (this line persisting till abt. 1294 and eventually revived 1801 on the creation of the Wilton Earldom). The 4th to the 17th Bns. Grey de Ruthyn were also Earls of Kent, but this title passed to a cousin, one of whose descendant's wife was made Marq. and Duke of Kent, but upon his death in 1792 all three titles expired, and the next appearance of the Dukedom was on its bestowal in 1793 on the father of our late Queen.
Then we find the 17th Bn. Grey de Ruthyn created in 1797 Earl of Sussex, but th. it title lasted only to the 3rd Earl and 18th Bn. The Bn. sat in line married the 2nd Mar. of Hastings, then elder son succeeding to that title but dying before his mother, the 2nd son became 4th Marq. and 2nd Bn. but died without issue, the Marquessate expiring and the Bn. going into abeyance between his sisters.

Creations Scot Bn of Binning and Dykes, 1853 D of Haddington, 1852—Sir Thos Hamilton a Lord of session (as Lord Drumcarril), and afterwards Secretary of State, was successively awarded these two Peerages, the Earldom at first under the title of Melrose, but this was changed to Haddington by a new patent in 1667 retaining the original precedence. The Earl who took the side of the Covenanters against the tyranny of King Charles and Land, was in 1650 blown up in his castle by the treacherous conspirators of one or more of those from within. The family name is variable, but from the examples below it appears that the addition or Arden is restricted to the line of succession

March 6, 1862, suc. 1895 (C), mar. 1901 Nina Mary Bentinck, dau. of Maj. Robert Peere Sears, Hamilton Palace, Lanarksh., Dunsgravel, Strathaven, same Co., East Knyle Ho., Salisbury.

CHARACTERS. Scit. E. of Angus, 1369, M. of Douglas and Id. Abernethy and Jedburgh Forest, 1353, D. of Hamilton, M. of Clydesdale, D. of Argyll, Lenark, and Cambridge, and Id. Argyll, Polmont, Machanishire, and Innerdale 1363, for E. of Selkirk and Bn. Dair and Shortclough, 1368 and 1369, as encl. of 4th paragraph of Br. D. of Brandon and Bn. Dair, 1372, James D. of Châtelherault 1364. The Duke of Hamilton descended on the male side from the Earls of Douglas and on the female from the Lords Hamilton (themselves successors to the Lords of Cadzow) whilst from a younger son of these same Lords Hamilton (by that time become Earls of Argyll) the Abercorn house takes its origin, the Duke of Abercorn being thus constitutional male end of the house of Hamilton, whilst the Duke of Hamilton is head of that of Douglas. This statement by itself is not to a complicated history, and it is a numerous additional titles bestowed upon each branch run or the account will now be a needful of very careful analysis.

The extinct Earldom of Douglas was awarded in 1352 to Sir Wm. Douglas who had distinguished himself at Poitiers and in other battles. The line became extinct on the death of the 9th Earl in 1423. But the 1st Earl had also a natural son, by Margaret, Countess of Angus in her own right, and through that descendant the Angus Earldom has been continued to the present day, the 17th Earl was in 1656 made Marq. of Douglas the 3rd Marquess in 1793 made Duke of Douglas (his title expired with himself) and son of L. 1st Marquess created in 1815 Earl of Selkirk. His daughter Anne Duchess of Hamilton in her own right and thus brought the Dukedom into the Douglas family.

We must now return to the house of Hamilton. It was apparently about 1255 that Sir Wm. Fitz-Gilbert Hamilton was given by King Robert Bruce the feudal Lordship of Galloway and was the 1st holder of the title was created Lord Hamilton, the 2nd Lord was made Earl of Argyll, and the brother of the 3rd Earl promoted to be Marq. of Hamilton (as son of this 1st succeeding both as Marquess and Earl) and the 3rd Marquess becoming 1st Duke. This last Peer was succeeded by his brother, who fell in 1562 at the Battle of Worcester, when by a special remainder the Dukedom passed to the above Anna daughter of the 1st Duke, whose marriage with the Earl of Selkirk has just been narrated. This Earl was himself granted the title of Duke of Hamilton for life, upon which he surrendered the Earldom, and his wife shortly afterwards surrendered the whole of her own titles, so that every Peerage in the direct Hamilton line became temporarily extinct. All of these however, with the exception of the Hamilton Marquessate and the Cadzow and Hamilton Lordship, were recreated by a new patent in 1603, assigning to them all precedence of 1513.

The subsidiary titles must now be accounted for. In 1656 the said Marq. of Hamilton received the English Peerages of Earl of Cambridge and Br. Cumberland. These, after lasting some years expired with him and Duke of Worcester, but they had already been doubled to his predecessor as Scottish honours in the original creation of the Dukedom in 1363, excepting only that "Innerdale" (in Cumberland) had then corrupted into "Innerdale." The said 1st Duke and 4th Marquess had no before his accession to these titles, being granted the honours of Earl of Lenark and Id. Polmont and Machanishire, and though these lapsed at his death they were renewed in the patent of 1603. The 1656 creation had run—Duke of Hamilton, Marq. of Clydesdale, Earl of Argyll and Cambridge and Id. Argyll and Innerdale—the Marquessate and the Argyll Lordship (no split in that patent) being now contiguous together with the Dukedom, whilst the Argyll Earldom was ancient and the remaining two honours have just been detailed. The 1603 patent, bearing the 1513 precedence, consequently repeated all these with the additional three just mentioned as having been borne by the said Duke. But mentioning the titles of the house of Douglas had not been interfered with by the surrender, and they consequently remained in to it line until the death in 1762 of the 3rd Marq. of Douglas (the one Duke of that title, when they passed to the 7th Duke of Hamilton as direct heir to the Earl of Selkirk, son by and marriage of the 1st Marq. of Douglas. This Marquessate therefore with its subsidiary honours of Id. Abernethy and Jedburgh Forest as also the old Douglas title of Earl of Angus now came into the Hamilton line and extended the already long list of Scottish honours of the 7th Duke to—Duke of Hamilton, Marq. of Douglas and Clydesdale, Earl of Angus, Argyll, Lenark, and (Innerdale), and Id. Argyll, Polmont, Machanishire, Innerdale, Abernethy and Jedburgh Forest, even to these were to be added the British titles conferred on the 4th Duke of Duke of Brandon and Bn. Dair. The Earl of Selkirk's succeeding titles, comprising with the Earldom the Lordship of Dair and Shortclough were renewed by a fresh patent in 1688 with the original precedence of 1465, but by a special limitation to his 2nd son, with a proviso save Burke that if such son succeeded to the Dukedom the title should pass to his next brother. Hence these titles are in abeyance, and Lord Geo. Nigel Douglas-Hamilton stands to succeed to them on the death of the present Duke.

The incidents in this long double line are numerous, and we keep our historical statement clear as have left such of them as seem of interest to the close. The 1st Earl of Douglas married Margaret, Countess of Mar, and held that Earldom in his wife's right, it passed at his death to his daughter Isabel, who married into the Eschins family with whom that title has remained to this day. Her brother who succeeded as Earl of Douglas, married a daughter of King Robert III., he figured as one of the heroes of "Chery Chase" (his Battle of Otterburn 1388, in which himself though victor, was slain, whilst on the other side, Hotspur and another son of "the stout Earl of Northumberland") were taken prisoners. He left no legitimate issue, but his natural son William, was ancestor of the Queensberry line, whilst the Earl's half-brother, natural son of the 1st Earl, was through his mother the 1st of the Earls of Angus the 17th of whom, who is stated to have lived in great magnificence at St. Castle of Douglas, was raised to a Marquessate by that title (the Douglas Earldom having then been long extinct). Turning to the Hamilton line we find that upon the death of James V. in 1542, the 2nd Earl of Argyll was chosen. Recent of Scotland and in the next year declared her presumptive heir the Queen, he was also made Duke of Châtelherault by Henry II. of France. He left four sons of whom the oldest succeeded as 3rd Earl but became insane through rejection of his proposal of marriage to Mary Queen of Scots, the second son was created Marq. of Hamilton, a title which has descended from the Scotts Peerage though removed in that of Ireland to the Dukes of Abercorn the 4th son the founder of this last line was created Earl of Family. The 1st Duke of Hamilton had been elevated from the Marquessate for his devotion to Charles I. but was beheaded in 1653 by the Parliamentarians, his brother and successor was slain at Worcester in the cause of the said Charles. The 4th Duke, who received the British Dukedom of Brandon fought a duel with Id. Mohun, in which he slew his antagonist, but was immediately slain himself through the treachery of the other's second, Gen. Col. Macartney who was found guilty of murder. For the Châtelherault succession see that article.

CREATIONS Bn Dacre, Eng 1321 by writ, Visc Hampton, U K 1884.—Ranulph de Dacre, a distinguished soldier, was in the reign of Edward I summoned to Parliament as vis Bn Dacre. In consequence of female succession, the surname changed from time to time, but that of Brand was brought in by the marriage in 1772 of the Bn's 17th in line. The 6th Bn was extinct for being concerned in a deer stealing affair in the course of which one of the keepers was killed. The 14th Bn was made Earl of Sussex, but the title expired with himself in 1775 and was re-created in 1777 in the Grey de Ruthyn line. That of Teynham was also briefly announced by the and marriage of the 25th Bn. The Viscy was awarded to the Rt Hon Sir Henry W Brand, G C B, speaker of the House of Commons 1874-84, six years after retirement he succeeded his brother as 3rd Bn Dacre. The illustrious John Hampton, the patriot, was one of the ancestors of the family in which this later Peerage was created, and out of which same family as above stated, the present Viscy has grown. One of the daughters married Sir Jno Trevor and a grandson of this pair who had assumed the name of Hampton, succeeded to an early Trevor Bny and was in 1776 created Visc Hampton. But both these titles became extinct, though the Viscy is now revived.

CREATIONS Eng Dn Hastings, 1293 (by writ), a Bt 1566—Sir Henry de Hastings appears to have been the first to receive the above writ of summons, but the recognised founder of the family was Sir Thos de Astley one of the Barons who fought at Evesham against Henry III, and whose family became eventually united by marriage with that of Hastings. From the death of the 5th Bn (3rd and 1st Earl of Pembroke in that line) in 1297 this lineage was in abeyance for 460 years, till in 1847 this condition was terminated by the awarding of the title to Sir Jacob Astley, 6th Bt, who is now accounted to have been the 16th Bn, though the ten intermediate names are not supplied, and obviously are made up of those who never held the title in their lifetime

CHARLES'S Ld. Headley, Bn. Allanson and Wynn,
Irish 1897, a Bt. Eng 1860 and Gt. Bt. 1876—Sir Geo.
Wynn, who had previously been created 1st Bt. of the and creation was descended from the and son of his namesake of the 18th, was raised to the Irish Peerage by this compound title. The "Peerage" have stated that he in 1876 assumed by licence the surname Allanson, and "Allanson Wynn" also appears in "Burke's" reprint of the Irish Roll. But his Lordship writes us expressly that "no previous Peer was ever styled Allanson Wynn," but that Wynn (orig. Wynn) they have "never dropped." Allanson is part of his own Christian name, though the heir presumptive has adopted the compound form. It would appear that the licence was obtained, but never made use of in practice.
